Alice Roosevelt's Disappointment

Has a Naughty Fairy Pursued Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and Upset Their Ambitions ever Since the famous White House Wedding a Year Ago?

CURIOUS CARTOON OF MRS. LONGWORTH BY THE FRENCH ARTIST CAPPIELLO.

"THAT'S Alice Roosevelt's husband," whispers the usher in the visitors' gallery in the House of Representatives.

"That's the man who married Roosevelt's daughter," shout the Washington guides as they pilot honeymoon parties around the capital.

"Over there is where the President's son-in-law lives," is explained to the visitors at the top of the Washington monument.

And so it is wherever he goes; whatever he does. The Hon. Nicholas Longworth, Representative from the First Ohio Congressional District, has lost his personality completely. He has become an interesting exhibit as "Alice Roosevelt's husband."

All this is a glorious thing, of course, a distinction, to be sure, which no other man is entitled to. And yet Congressman Longworth wears a far-away look in his eyes and seems of late to have cares on his mind. Things have not turned out altogether as the future promised; and many things have developed which Mr. Longworth could not have foreseen.

And all this is reflected in the features of Mrs. Longworth—in her disappointment and the curious anomaly of the position which she has slipped into. Just what the ambitions of Alice Roosevelt were it is hard to say; but that they have not been realized in her marriage is entirely certain. To drop from the queen of the White House to simply "a Congressman's wife" is very trying. Things have not turned out as she expected.

When Mr. Longworth married the White House bride he acquired an unexpected dowry of unpleasant entanglements, some of which have been very distressing to him and to his wife.

Of course, during the triumphal honeymoon tour in Europe Mr. Longworth was quite eclipsed by his bride. King Edward and his Queen talked long and earnestly with "Princess Alice," but quite forgot her husband. The newspapers pictured and interviewed the bride, but not the groom. Everywhere it was the same—the Congressman from the First Ohio District had already learned that he had become simply "Alice Roosevelt's husband." But Mr. Longworth is amiable, and he didn't care much.

Hardly had they returned from their honeymoon before the first serious entanglement of the new marriage confronted the young couple. Mr. Longworth owed his place in Congress to Cox, the political boss of Ohio. They had been faithful friends for years, and Mr. Longworth's term was about to expire. But President Roosevelt was in a violent row with Cox, and had sent Secretary Taft into Ohio to scalp him and organize a fight against everybody who supported Cox.

What was Longworth to do—repudiate his old friend Cox, to whom he owed much, because his father-in-law was fighting him, or stand by his old friend and present to the country the spectacle of the President trying to defeat his own son-in-law?

Neither horn of the dilemma was a pleasant one to seize, but he repudiated Boss Cox and won his re-election with the President's help.

That political row which Mr. Longworth was unwillingly drawn into has had many and far-reaching results not very pleasant for him. His reduced political majority of 10,000 votes at the election last Fall was a sad blow.

When Mr. Longworth had to fight for his seat in Congress last Fall it became evident how greatly his marriage had endangered his position. His wife made the most strenuous efforts to help his election, and the harder she worked the worse his chances seemed to become. She gave dinners, receptions and teas to his constituents smiled at the men, kissed the babies and did everything that an attractive young woman could imagine to create enthusiasm for her husband. Every move she made turned out unfortunately. When she asked one woman to tea, she put the noses of a dozen out of joint.

While Mrs. Longworth and her father's enemies weakened her husband's position in Congress, she deprived him also, though quite innocently, of every hope of gaining an office which he once desired more than anything else. That was the post of Minister to Japan. When he entered political life he made himself a specialist on two subjects—the diplomatic and consular service of the United States and Japanese affairs. He served continuously on Congressional committees having these subjects in charge. He introduced a bill reforming the diplomatic and consular service. He traveled in Japan and the East and industriously studied the relations of the United States and Asiatic countries.

He was regarded by the Republicans as the most promising candidate for Minister to Japan, and he would certainly have obtained the mission but for his marriage. As soon as he became the President's son-in-law it was evident that he could not be appointed. If the President sent the name of his son-in-law to the Senate for this desirable office he would immediately be accused of nepotism, and this would furnish a very plausible ground for opposing the nomination. The President did not wish to arouse opposition by an action which would be of no real advantage to himself, and so Mr. Longworth had to stay at home.

This has seemed an injustice which Mrs. Longworth is unable to reconcile herself to.

"Of course Nicholas ought to be Ambassador to Japan; we would just love to live there. I don't believe anybody would mind if papa made him Ambassador."

The downfall of Bellamy Storer, United States Ambassador to Austria, was indeed a distressing family affair. Mrs. Bellamy Storer was formerly Miss Maria Longworth and is the aunt of Nicholas Longworth, being his father's sister. When Mr. Longworth married Miss Roosevelt the Storers were, of course, brought into intimate relations with the Roosevelts. The Storers are very devout Catholics and great admirers of Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul. Through his intimacy with the Roosevelt family Mr. Storer found himself authorized, as he believed, to convey to the Pope an intima-

TOO POOR TO MARRY— Just tell Mr Gordon

Here's a Nice, Rich Gentleman Who Believes That Marriages Are Made in Heaven—and Yet if it's a Little Matter of Money Bothering Cupid on Earth; Well Just Let Him Know.

MISS MARY M'NAMARA.

MISS JENNIE LOWELL.

"Yes, marriages are made in heaven, but heaven needs financial aid in sending down to earth its showers of wives."

"It's a Crime Not to Marry"

ARE you a despondent lover, who would marry if your pockets were not empty and your prospects a blank?

Or are you a lovelorn maiden who cannot marry because you have not enough money to buy your trousseau?

Don't despair. Don't weep. Just tell Mr. Gordon.

Mr. Gordon is the friend of all unhappy lovers, of all forlorn maidens. He believes in matrimony and he extends his sympathy if you have not achieved marriage. Moreover, he may help you, as he has helped others, to marry.

Recently three town clerks of three villages in Massachusetts were surprised to receive contributions from Mr. Gordon, who instructed them to give the sums he had forwarded to any young girls who would like to marry, but who were not rich enough. One of these sums has already been donated to a happy, prospective bride, Miss Mary McNamara, of Milford.

From Boston and Hartford Mr. Gordon has received requests from so many poor brides that he has sent the money directly to Miss Jennie Lowell and Miss Irene Lamont, who, in consequence, will be married next month.

Mr. Abraham Gordon is a wealthy manufacturer of New York. He himself married at fifteen and his experience has convinced him that marriage is a brilliant success. But it was the wedding of his daughter last month that led to his matrimonial philanthropy.

The wedding ceremony was in progress. The guests leaned forward in admiring attention. Miss Rosamond Gordon, wrapped in her shimmering white satin wedding gown and veil as in a fleecy white cloud, turned her dark eyes brimming with happiness and her sweetly blushing face toward the bridegroom. Her father saw that look and realized anew, he said, that the real happiness of life comes from the mutual love and trust of a man for a woman and a woman for a man.

"How happy Rosie is!" he whispered to his wife. "I should like to make other young girls, poorer than she is, as happy."

The next day he began his matrimonial philanthropic experiment. To the town clerks of Milford, Medway and Holliston he sent checks. "These you will pay to any good young girl who wants to get married but cannot because she has not enough money," he wrote to the amazed officials.

The next day he received a reply from Clerk C. A. Cook, of Milford, saying he had already presented the check to a "poor girl, who is as good as she is pretty, and who went away the happiest girl in Massachusetts. She will be married June 1." H. C. Austin, of Medway, and Wilson T. Sage, of Holliston, have written that they are making haste slowly because there are so many claimants for the check that they must use discretion in deciding who is the worthiest and at the same time the neediest of the applicants.

Mr. Gordon, a modest philanthropist, amazed at the interest shown in a charity which he says every millionaire should emulate, told this newspaper why he established the fund, and what he thinks of the relative usefulness and happiness of married and single men and women.

By Abraham Gordon.

I HAVE always believed that a man is far better off married than single, and that a woman might as well never have lived as never have married.

I have always believed that a man is far better off married than single, and that a woman might as well never have lived as never have married.

I have had an object lesson in this in my own life, for I was married at fifteen and my bride was my own age. Too early you say? But my experience proves that it was not. I have been happy. I have been successful. I am thirty-seven years old and have eight children. I am not too old to be a companion to my oldest child. That is one of the strongest arguments for an early marriage.

Another is that a married man is more liable to make a success of his business life than a bachelor. Marriage is a steadying influence. It develops energy and industry in a man. The bachelor is lazier than the married man. Three friends of mine whom I advised to marry when I did remained single. I have acquired plenty of this world's goods. They are shiftless and haven't a cent. The reason I believe to be that I married and they did not.

Children are the result of the married state and children humanize a man and make him happy. The sooner he has their influence in his life the better.

The children of young parents are healthier and of higher spirits than those who are born of older fathers or mothers, or both. This is one of the strongest arguments in favor of early marriage.

Contrary to the wail of the cynic, the man and woman who marry while they are very young have a greater chance for happiness. Young lovers on their wedding day always remind me of the innocence and beauty of a flower. Far sweeter and holier is their union than that of a pair in whose faces are graven deep the lines of age and experience.

Marriages are made in heaven, but heaven sometimes needs a little financial aid in sending down to earth its showers of wives. I have lived each Summer for several years in my farm near West Medway, Mass. Life here is the antipodes of the manner of life in New York. In the city we touch elbows with people and pass on. The conventions and restrictions of life are such that we seldom have a peep into the hearts of other human beings. But in the country life is more candid. Human nature is more trustful. The veil between human lives is thinner.

At West Medway I came to understand the life of the New England spinster. I began to see that spinsterhood in overcrowded sections of our country is due, not to any morbidly "new" anti-marriage notions, but to oversupply of women on one hand and lack of money on the other.

The women of New England, though perhaps of less physical attractiveness than the women of other parts of the United States, are of sterling character. They would make faithful wives, excellent God-fearing mothers. But in ratio to the marriageable men they are as three to one in New England. Besides, Yankees are famous for their thrift, and they never make foolish, ill-considered marriages. They look far into the future and if they see the bogie of extreme poverty they forego the marriage ring as their forefathers denied themselves the pleasures of the flesh for the triumphs of the spirit.

I saw these pallid, thin-faced, hollow-chested spinsters fading into premature age for lack of love and companionship as a plant for lack of sunshine and dew, and I knew that I was glimpsing one of the tragedies of womanhood.

Perhaps this impression had temporarily faded, but an event in my own family made it vivid last month. My daughter, Rosamond, was being married to the man of her choice, Mr. Joseph Areel, of Boston. When I saw her turn her pretty, blushing face up toward her husband's, my own life, beginning, as it seemed to me it did, at the altar, arose before me and seemed to pass in review. I remembered the emotion with which I saw my wife give me at the altar the same look I saw my daughter Rose turn upon her husband, the look of absolute trust and love. I knew that a life's happiness had been placed in my keeping, and young as I was I had a full sense of that tremendous responsibility. I recalled how poor we were, how we managed somehow to live on three dollars a week until I earned more. Those were dark days, yet I would be glad to live them all over again rather than not have had the joy and the success—yes, the ultimate success of the early marriage.

And as I saw my daughter turn that look as of the flower toward the sun upon her husband I said to my wife: "How happy Rosie is. I should like to give other girls, poorer than she is, a chance to be as happy."

I began in a small way. The three checks I sent to Milford, Medway and Hollister, were only starters. I shall begin in a small way I said, and pray that larger benefits may result in time."

Twenty-five dollars isn't much to get married on, but it helps. It would have looked very big to me on my wedding day twenty-two years ago. Sometimes the man and the girl are earning just enough to live on, and if they had a little money to buy furniture they could marry very well. Or sometimes a girl needs a trousseau and very properly does not want the bridegroom to pay for it. I have known such a thing to prevent a marriage.

I am opposed to long engagements on many grounds. One of these is that if they wait too long misunderstandings arise and the whole thing is broken off.

By waiting a long time the girl or the man are courting the temptation to unfaithfulness. They are likely to go about, first with one then with another, and their love for each other loses its first delightful bloom, which, once destroyed, can never be coaxed back into life.

There is also the temptation to immorality which is very great to the young who are unmarried. I hoped by this gift to one young couple in each of the towns to promote righteousness as well as happiness.

Mr. Cook writes me that he bestowed the check on one who was good and pretty and deserving the day he received it. The other clerks seem to be trying to find the most needy and worthy.

When my son marries I shall probably begin making gifts to young men under similar circumstances. No one man can do a great deal in this way, for an individual fortune is soon swallowed up. But I hope the wealthy men of this country will take up the plan and establish a fund for the promotion of marriage among worthy young couples.

I am convinced that one cannot give money to a better cause. Every citizen of fortune should feel that it is his duty to promote marriage and so promote the prosperity of his country.

Such men should put aside, as I shall, a part of their fortunes for that purpose. They should recognize that it is a crime not to marry. People who do not marry are committing a wrong. In marriage lies not only true happiness, but the only right mode of life.

Without good, home-loving people public buildings and public institutions are a mockery. The real betterment of our country begins with the individual.

The checks I sent are mere drops in the ocean of humanity's work for humanity. I hope to do more, much more, but I wish that every man who is worth more than twenty thousand dollars would recognize his duty to do the same. I appeal to his patriotism, for the greatness and perpetuity of a nation depends upon the number and integrity of its families.

How Work Helps to Spoil a Woman's Looks.

HOUSEWIVES, as well as business women, it must be truly said, lead a life that is as strenuous, and in many cases more so, than that of their husbands. Indeed upon their shoulders rest duties which demand concentration, close application, constant thought and heavy responsibilities. All these are of necessity apt to produce the same lines in a woman's face that they do in a man's. These lines undoubtedly give strength, and by so much they add beauty, but it is beauty of a type which few people admire.

Ask the average man what his ideal of a beautiful woman is, and he will, in ninety-nine cases out of every hundred, express preference for an unclouded brow, eyes that shine and dance, a mouth that suggests kisses rather than care, and the softness and delicacy which are the inevitable lot of the woman who is shielded rather than the characteristics of the woman who has to go forth and fend for herself.

Women who have to take upon themselves such duties are, however, comparatively few and far between. Where they do occur, they generally manage to shift some of the responsibilities on to a man and exercise a supervision over their affairs, leaving the hard grind of them to their male employes.

To apply the same statement to the average woman in business is to belie the use of one's eyes. One has only to go into any establishment where women are employed to see that business does not produce a deleterious effect on the charms of those who are engaged. Let any one who doubts this go into any of the large shops where a great many women are employed and see what a large proportion of them enjoys the advantages of good looks.

Perhaps it would not be fair to take young ladies who are engaged, for instance, in showing off the dresses in the fashionable shops; for naturally they are specially selected for the attractiveness of their presence and their fine figures. It is in other shops that the average must be sought, and every one will admit that it is a high average.

On the other hand, it goes without saying that in times of stress, when the sales are on, during the Summer season, when long hours are the lot of every employe and tiresome and inconsiderate customers, who want the whole of a department ransacked to meet their particular needs, girls in business are apt to be tired. Then they get that dragged-out look, which is the antithesis of good looks, as every woman knows.

Happily, times of stress do not last long, and as soon as the strain is removed the naturally resiliency, which is a blessed part of every woman's endowment, comes to her aid, and she soon blooms up again like a flower. The same kind of remark applies to the large body of business girls who do secretarial work.

There is nothing in the employment itself calculated to destroy a woman's looks, but if she is kept for any length on the strain, typewriting against time to catch the mail, or, with a lack of consideration which unhappily still characterizes some employers, is constantly made to stay until late in the evening without a break for a proper meal; then the adverse conditions will tend to detract from her good looks in exactly the same way as the infringement of every natural law of hygiene does. Loss of looks is the penalty which every woman has to pay for such disobedience. Part of it is seen in strained and wearied eyes, with pale lips, than which nothing can be more ugly.

Again some women take an active part in political life. These somehow acquire a hardened or masculine appearance. The present writer is acquainted with a woman who, ten years ago, was as pretty and soft-looking, in short, as feminine a woman, as could be met with in the proverbial day's march. During the interval she has lived for politics, in politics, and by politics.

She admits that it is often sometimes closely akin to a bore to continue the work, but she does continue it, perhaps because otherwise her hands would be absolutely empty, and she would have no interest in life, as she is a rich woman, and being without children, though she has a husband, has been denied the domestic life, which not only softens and refines a woman but undoubtedly keeps her young.

This woman, although not anything like middle aged, has not only lost the grace of her femininity, but has acquired a hard, set expression which has completely ruined her looks. She is eminently selfish, so perhaps some of that hardness may be set down to her lack of sympathy, for there is nothing which tends to beautify a woman more than a sympathetic outlook on life, and a desire to make others happy. It begets happiness, and happiness, as every one knows, is the greatest beautifier in the world—better than all the rouges, powders, cosmetics, massages, creams and beauty doctors.

Alice Roosevelt's Disappointment.

tion that President Roosevelt would be very much gratified to see Archbishop Ireland raised to the rank of Cardinal. This apparent attempt of the American President to interfere with the affairs of the Church was regarded as very offensive at the Vatican, and the sentiment of the Church was conveyed to President Roosevelt. To cover himself he then recalled Mr. Storer and administered a stinging rebuke to him. In the controversy which followed the painful spectacle was presented to the world of an American President and his relative by marriage casting severe reflections upon each other's truthfulness.

And now comes the strangest complication of all, for it appears that Mrs. Longworth has been indirectly the cause of Archbishop Ireland losing all chance of obtaining a Cardinalate. This statement might appear incredible were it not for the word of a very high Catholic authority that it is well founded. We have seen that the marriage of Miss Roosevelt brought the Storers into close relations with the President, which led to Mr. Storer's effort to influence the Vatican in favor of Archbishop Ireland. The same chain of circumstances also ruins the Archbishop's prospects of ever obtaining the Cardinalate, in the opinion of Dr. Michael Walsh, formerly editor of the Catholic Herald, of New York, and the leading Catholic journalist of America.

"Had Pope Leo XIII. lived," said Dr. Walsh, "Archbishop Ireland would have been a Cardinal before now. I destroyed only recently a large quantity of correspondence with the Vatican. It showed very plainly that Pope Leo believed that the Church in America should have another Cardinal and that Archbishop Ireland was the logical candidate," Dr. Walsh explained.

"But since the Storer affair Archbishop Ireland's chances have vanished, because his elevation would be imputed to the interference of the American President, and that would be objectionable alike to the President and to the Church." Dr. Walsh believed that America would receive another Cardinal, and that the most probable selection would be the Archbishop of New Orleans.

Still another great dignitary to suffer disaster through the malefic influence of the unfortunate bride is Sir Mortimer Durand, the British Ambassador at Washington. He has been recalled by his Government in a manner that implies that he has been a failure in his post, and he will retire permanently from the diplomatic service. The reason for this is that he had failed to make himself popular with the President, which is the first duty of an Ambassador. One of the many causes that have led to his recall was the attitude of Lady Durand toward Mrs. Roosevelt's and Mrs. Longworth's social functions. The President's wife has introduced a new and very ceremonious code into official Washington society. For instance, she gives 5 o'clock teas, and it is obligatory upon women invited to attend them, just as it would be if they received a "command" from the King. Strict formality marks these occasions. Mrs. Roosevelt receives in the Blue Room, attended by Mrs. Longworth and a few other young women, just as the Queen of England receives at court surrounded by a group of princesses. The guests assemble in the East Room, and then proceed to pay their respects to the head of society. In Europe it is the custom for the hostess, whatever her rank, unless she be Queen, to pass around among her guests, and the difference between this and the present White House custom has been much commented on by Ambassadors' wives.

Lady Durand is said to have commented sarcastically on the etiquette of the "parvenu republican court" and upon the position of "the Princess Royal," as Mrs. Longworth is sometimes called, this being the title given to the eldest daughter of the King of England.

Lady Susan Townley, whose husband was recently counsellor of the British Embassy, also contributed to the friction between the Embassy and the Roosevelts. She was continually making disrespectful remarks about the President, which partook in their nature of lese majeste. For instance, she said:

"The old rule about not speaking to the King until he speaks to you is not needed here, because no one could get in a word edgewise with the President if he tried."

The friction created in this way has combined with other circumstances to lead to the Ambassador's recall. He was too stout and slow, and could neither keep pace with the President in his sports nor in his intellectual pursuits. The President is alleged to have compared him to an owl. On the other hand, the German Ambassador, Baron Speck von Sternburg, has made himself an intimate chum of the President; plays tennis with him, rides with him on particularly muddy days and wades through canals with him. The French Ambassador, M. Jusserand, who is a brilliant literary man, is at least on very friendly terms with the President. Thus it happens that the British Ambassador exercised hardly any influence at all at Washington compared with his rivals. To end this state of affairs the British Government has sent James Bryce, who is greatly esteemed in America and a friend of the President, to be Ambassador at Washington.

There remain a great many other instances in which Mrs. Longworth's influence is credited with working disaster. She and her husband decided to help Representative Landis in his contest in the Eleventh Indiana district at the last Congressional election. Landis, who was as pleased as could be by their visit, arranged a reception at Logansport, Ind., in honor of Mrs. Longworth. He chose a committee of sixty Logansport women to take charge of the former Miss Roosevelt. Immediately every Logansport woman who had not been chosen for the committee felt aggrieved at Mr. Landis. The neglected stayed away from the reception and stirred up their husbands and men folk against Landis. His opponents jeered him unmercifully for making "a pink tea affair" of his campaign.

As a result Mr. Landis was defeated by 3,000 votes in a district which he had formerly won by 8,000.

WHAT ALL WASHINGTON WANTS TO KNOW

COL. CHARLES A. EDWARDS.

Who Stabbed Senor Garland of the Peruvian Legation?

Did Colonel Charles A. Edwards Commit the Deed?

Why Does Senor Garland Refuse to Complain?

Where Is Miss Louise Scott?

What Concern Had She In the Fight? and

Why is Senor Garland Sheltering Himself Behind Diplomatic Immunity?

WHAT all Washington wants to know is just what happened when Senor Alejandro Garland, of the Peruvian Legation; Colonel Charles A. Edwards, of the Democratic Campaign Committee, and pretty Miss Louise Scott met at the witching hour of midnight.

Did Colonel Edwards inflict the dangerous stab wound from which Senor Garland is obviously suffering and, if so, why is Senor Garland so unwilling to make a complaint?

The Ambassadors and diplomats want to know what happened, because they think it a very strange country where a leading politician lies in wait at midnight and stabs a foreign representative, and they feel that something ought to be done about it.

The politicians want to know what happened, because they feel that the episode as reported is somewhat discreditable to the dignified body.

Miss Louise Scott herself is an enigma. By the police of the capital she is known as the "disappearing girl," because of her aptitude for vanishing suddenly. Already she has disappeared several times since the tragic occurrence aforesaid, which came within an ace of causing death, and it seems to be doubtful whether she will be found again when she is wanted to testify.

The diplomat is a handsome young bachelor—Senor Alejandro Garland, of the Peruvian Legation. He is the victim in the case, and for several days lay at the point of death after receiving a dangerous stab wound in the left side of the chest.

This injury, so nearly mortal, appears to have been received by young Garland in consequence of certain attentions which he was paying to Miss Scott. His admiration for the lady was not approved by Colonel Charles A. Edwards, who is at the present time clerk to the Democratic minority of the House of Representatives and secretary of the Democratic Campaign Committee. He is a man-about-town, six feet high, heavily built, fifty years of age and married.

Now, in attempting to relate the story of the tragedy, it may be said that the first mysterious incident leading up to the "personal difficulty" which followed was a call made by Edwards at the De Soto apartment house, on the southwest corner of Thirteenth street and Massachusetts avenue, on the night of Wednesday, May 15. It was at the De Soto that Miss Louise Scott was living. But it was not for her that Edwards asked. He wanted to see Miss Jean E. Raison, daughter of Mrs. T. W. Raison, with whom Miss Scott was staying.

A Strange Midnight Call.

Under ordinary circumstances a call made by Mr. Edwards upon Miss Raison would have been a wholly commonplace matter, inasmuch as the two were acquainted. But in this instance the hour was close upon midnight—long after Miss Jean had gone to bed, and certainly an unsuitable time to choose for a visit. Secondly, when Edwards was gently requested to go away, he did nothing of the kind, but sat down on the granite front steps of the De Soto and proceeded to wait.

It seems that Mrs. Raison, when notified that Edwards had come to call, sent down word, saying: "Jean has gone to bed; it is too late for you to see her." Why was it, then, that Edwards did not take his departure? Instead, he sat down on the step, as stated, and waited. The presumption is that he was expecting something, which presently came along Massachusetts avenue. The something was young Alejandro Garland, of the Peruvian Legation, with Miss Louise Scott on his arm.

Exactly what happened next nobody is able to say. At all events the three principals in the case will not talk—one of them, Miss Scott, having meanwhile disappeared—and there were no other immediate witnesses. Evidently, however, there was a bitter quarrel between the two men. It was followed by an exchange of blows, a clinch and a struggle on the sidewalk.

Meanwhile the noise had excited attention, and several windows were thrown up in front of the apartment house, which is imposing and fashionable. Benjamin Actie, the janitor of the house, had run out, and, though the night was dark, he saw a good deal of the fight. One witness avers that Garland, before the fight actually began, besought Edwards to allow Miss Scott to return safely to her apartment as a preliminary to starting the row; but Edwards would not acquiesce.

SENOR ALEJANDRO GARLAND, OF THE PERUVIAN LEGATION.

It all happened in less time than it takes to tell it. Suddenly, says Actie, Garland cried out and fell to the sidewalk, exclaiming: "I am stabbed!" Actie ran to him and lifted him to his feet, while Miss Scott fled up Massachusetts avenue, anxious only to escape from the scene. Edwards followed her. Whether he caught her or not nobody knows, but, at all events, she returned a few minutes later to the De Soto, in a state of much excitement, under the escort of Night Clerk Lippincott, of the Portland Hotel, which is one block distant.

Close by the Portland, at No. 1101 Fourteenth street, is the house of Dr. George N. Ruffin, a well-known Washington physician, and thither young Garland was taken by Actie, barely able to walk and leaving a trail of blood behind him as he went. The fight took place a little after midnight on Thursday morning, and by this time it was about half past twelve o'clock. Dr. Ruffin was in bed, but, understanding that it was an emergency case, he admitted Garland and applied first-aid treatment. He found a knife wound just above the heart, penetrating the left lung and causing some internal hemorrhage, which was stopped with great difficulty.

It seems odd that the first remark made by Garland to Dr. Ruffin was to the effect that nothing must be said about the unfortunate occurrence. Of course, the physician, by the etiquette of his profession, would have felt obliged, in obedience to this request, to maintain silence on the subject. But, in the meantime, somebody in the De Soto had telephoned an alarm to the police and a brief outline of what had happened found its way into the morning newspapers.

A few hours after he was taken to Dr. Ruffin's apartment the young diplomat was removed to the house of Senor Pardo, the Peruvian Minister, which enjoys diplomatic immunity from the intrusion of the police. Here all information was refused, even to the police, and no one was allowed to see Garland.

Why was the young diplomat so anxious that nothing should be said? It may be that he wanted to shield Louise Scott from the fact is considered that the police were unable to persuade Garland to make any charge against his assailant. Though weak from loss of blood, and literally hanging between life and death for several days, he declined even to make any statement in regard to the affair.

It is alleged that Colonel Edwards after the affray went home to his apartment, at the Rockingham, and that, when the elevator man remarked upon the fact that his clothing was covered with blood, he explained it by saying that he had been attacked a few minutes earlier on the street, that no attempt was made to arrest him until the following afternoon.

Meanwhile Miss Louise Scott had disappeared. Before 9 o'clock on Thursday morning she left the De Soto, with a couple of travelling bags in her hands; but Mrs. Raison, with whom she had been staying there, refused to say whither she had gone. Oddly enough, however, she turned up at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the same day at the Capitol, where, it appears, she went for the purpose of seeing Edwards. Why she wanted to see him nobody knows; but, at all events, a violent quarrel between them followed, which was only terminated by the interference of a policeman, who arrested them both.

Whereupon Edwards was taken to Police Headquarters, and the girl also, the former being held on a warrant issued by the District Attorney. Garland having refused to make a complaint, the technical necessities of nations and a "disturber of the public repose."

MISS LOUISE SCOTT, WHO IS AT THE BOTTOM OF ALL THE TROUBLE.

of information obtained from Actie, the janitor of the De Soto, Miss Scott was allowed to depart, after a summons to appear when called upon for her testimony had been read to her. Edwards secured bail in $2,000 and was liberated.

Miss Scott immediately disappeared. Altogether it is a very strange and inexplicable affair, the oddest part of it being that Colonel Edwards denies the charge of stabbing Garland. He says that he used no knife; that he had no such weapon; not even a penknife. The only weapons he employed were his fists. If this be true, how is it possible to account for the wound, two and a half inches deep, as described by Dr. Ruffin, which penetrated Garland's chest and left lung?

The succession has been made that Senor Garland drew the knife and that in the struggle his own weapon was turned upon him.

The case is greatly complicated by the circumstance that Garland cannot be compelled to testify if he does not wish to do so. He is officially a member of the Legation of Peru in Washington, his rank being that of an attaché, and as such he is not subject to the laws or to the authority of the United States Government. Under the law, as embodied in the Revised Statutes, any legal officer who tries to interfere with him would be liable to three years' imprisonment as a violator of the peace of nations and a "disturber of the public repose."

The Government of Peru, during recent years, has made a practice of sending to various European countries and to the United States young men of good family, who, being attached to its legations in different capitals, thus obtain exceptional opportunities for study and for the acquisition of knowledge which is expected to render them valuable later on in the public service, whether at home or abroad. Young Alejandro Garland is one of these quasi-diplomatic attaches. He is only twenty-one years of age, and for some time past has been a student in the school of architecture of the George Washington University, in Washington. Apparently he has been acquiring many other kinds of knowledge in Washington.

Garland is a handsome youth, rather small in stature. Edwards is twice his size, and should have been able to dispose of him easily in a fight. But, if credit is to be given to the testimony of the janitor, Actie, the Peruvian was by no means getting the worst of the struggle up to the moment when it was brought to an abrupt climax.

Summing up the whole case, attention may be called to a series of points not easily explained.

In the first place, what was the reason for the strange midnight call made by Colonel Edwards, ostensibly to see Miss Jean Raison? Why should he have come at such an hour?

Secondly, what, if anything, had Miss Raison to do with the affair?

Thirdly, why did Edwards, when refused admittance, sit down to wait, instead of going away? What was he waiting for? Was it with the expectation that Miss Louise Scott, or the young Peruvian, or both of them, would presently come along?

Fourthly, what was the cause of the trouble between the two men? Was it rivalry on account of the fair Louise?

Fifthly, why should Edwards use a knife in a quarrel with a man half his size? And, if he did use a knife, how is it possible that he should attempt to deny the fact, in view of the character of the injury received by his antagonist?

Sixthly, why has the young Peruvian shown such a persistent determination to be silent and to make no complaint against Edwards?

Seventhly, why did Miss Scott come to the Capitol in the afternoon of the same day, and on what subject did she quarrel on this occasion with Edwards?

Eighthly, and finally, who is Miss Louise Scott? Where did she come from—for people in Washington do not seem to know her—and why does she so persistently disappear?

There are some of the things that all Washington wants to know.

It is said that six years ago Miss Scott was arrested in Denver in a case involving valuable diamonds.

Her Lover's Voice.

Out of Lips She Had Never Seen the Voice Came to Her on a Phonograph Record from Across the Continent, She Answered By Phonograph, and By Phonograph He Courted and Won Her for His Wife.

MISS IDELLA DOTTER.

MR. SETH CABELL HALSEY.

NOTHING new under the sun? Yes, indeed there is. There's something spick span brand new—and in the hoary old department of romance, too.

What do you say to introductions, engagement and courtship, all by phonograph? "Her Lover's Voice" should be the title of this romance, for until weeks after she had learned to love him his voice was the only loved feature she could have recognized.

All this time they were three thousand miles apart—on opposite sides of the North American Continent. She had never seen him, nor he her. Her photograph had never met his gaze, nor hers his. Up to the minute that she first heard "Her Lover's Voice," she didn't know that he existed.

That moment deserves to go down in the history of epoch-making romances. To her home in Los Angeles, Cal., came an express package from Washington, D. C. She opened the package and found a phonograph record—nothing else, nothing even to show who had sent it.

"I wonder who it is from?" she said, inspecting it from all points of view, as women frequently inspect envelopes addressed in a strange handwriting, obliterous for the moment to the obvious expedient of inquiring of the contents.

Her Lover's Voice.

It suddenly occurred to her that phonograph records were to be interpreted through the medium of the phonograph mechanism, so she promptly put this one to the test.

"Gr-r-r, sc-r-atch, sque-e-k, rattle," and then, in clear, familiar tones:

"Dear Idella: Permit me to present to you Mr. Seth Cabell Halsey, a nephew of United States Senator Daniel, of Virginia. He's a dear friend of ours, and awfully nice.

"Ever yours, Maud."

Then a pause, and then, in manly, resonant tones:

"I am happy to meet you, Miss Dotter."

With those manly tones ringing in her ears, Miss Idella Dotter went right out and talked into a phonograph machine:

"Dear Maud: If Mr. Seth Cabell Halsey is within hearing, this is for him: Very glad to make your acquaintance, Mr. Halsey."

"Marked roundential," there followed a set of niceties about the owner of the manly tones, etc., etc. And when the record was ready, Miss Dotter sent it by express to Miss Maud Hunter, Washington, D. C.

That was the beginning. Mr. Halsey confided to Miss Hunter that Miss Dotter had the sweetest voice that had ever fallen on his ears. Sentiments of the same sort he also confided to a phonograph record, which he expressed to Miss Dotter's address in Los Angeles.

Miss Dotter, in a record addressed to Mr. Halsey, made adjuisions of a similar character. This launched a rapid fire phonograph correspondence, supplemented by another through the mails which facilitated an exchange of photographs.

But it was one or Mr. Halsey's phonograph records which contained his proposal of marriage. After due reflection, stimulated favorably by a frequent hearing of Mr. Halsey's phonograph love-making, Miss Dotter forwarded by phonograph the sweet-toned "yes" that was little more than a whisper. Four days later she received a telegram from Mr. Halsey.

"Leave to-morrow for Los Angeles."

All this, if they could have known it, would have explained many things to no less than five ambitious young men of the Pacific Slope who were aspirants for the hand of Miss Idella Dotter in marriage, and couldn't understand her sudden distaste for their society. And thereby hangs an element of the romance of which Mr. Halsey was profoundly ignorant.

The phonograph courtship had proved a most welcome innovation from Miss Idella Dotter's standpoint. She was harassed by the enmity of her nearest relatives growing out of the fact that the last will and testament of her mother, lately deceased, had left everything to her—a fortune of more than $100,000. Two sisters were contesting the will in court, and Miss Idella was fighting with all her strength for her rights by what she well knew to be her dying mother's wish.

She had been plunged into this family wrangle immediately at the end of four years of self-sacrifice for her mother's sake. Her two sisters were married; only she was left free to care for her mother during the years of helplessness that culminated in her death.

When this filial task first called her she was dreaming the dreams of a first love romance. The man she believed she loved had tried. They frowned at testimony for

"'Gr-r-r, sc-r-atch, sque-ek, rattle,' and then, in clear, familiar tones:

"'Dear Idella! Permit me to present to you Mr. Seth Cabell Halsey, a nephew of United States Senator Daniel, of Virginia. He's a dear friend of ours, and awfully nice.

"'And then, in manly, resonant tones:

had put the great question to her, and she was anger to say "yes." But now it was her duty to say "no." It would not be fair to say "wait," for it might be years before she would be free to give herself to him unreservedly. She was heroic enough to utter that "no."

Then she put away all thought of love and marriage. She devoted herself wholly to her invalid mother. For a time the men who loved her clung to his hope. She gave him no encouragement, and his visits grew less frequent, finally ceased.

At different times four other suitors offered themselves; in fact, all of their remained more de less hopeful until after her mother's death, until there were unmistakable signs (the phonograph romance, though they did not suspect it) that she would never yield.

These suitors attended sessions of the court where the will contest case was being tried. They frowned at testimony for the married sisters tending to show that Mrs. Elizabeth Dotter was not of sound mind when she made her last will, and they bounced upon witnesses who declared that the invalid mother had often told them that her property would go to Idella out of gratitude to her for sacrifices for duty's sake.

J. Campbell Dawes, at that time employed by the Title Insurance and Trust Company, testified that Mrs. Dotter told him she intended Idella Dotter to have the bulk of her fortune.

"She gave as a reason," said the witness, "that Idella had remained single and had nursed and cared for her while her two sisters had married. She told me that both Mrs. Carlson and Mrs. Barre, her other daughters, were well provided for and that Idella should not lose on account of the sacrifice she had made."

During the time that Dawes gave this testimony, Miss Idella with flushed face and closely clasped hands was a most interested listener. At almost every statement of the witness she nodded her head energetically. It seemed as if, to her, the incidents related by the witness were the events of yesterday. Perhaps she was thinking of the five suitors, or more probably she was thinking of the one.

"Five times young men asked me to marry," said Miss Dotter. "Five times I refused.

"I had two proposals while we were living at Santa Monica. There were two more while mother and I lived at Highland Park. The fifth was when we were living at 086 Magnolia avenue, Los Angeles.

One Suitor Couldn't Wait.

"There might have been more, but when young men called to see me mother asked them not to come again. I acquiesced because I was all that mother had left to care for her.

"All five of the young men who proposed were nice. One in particular pleased me most of all.

"Will I marry him now?" Miss Dotter repeated the question.

"No, not now. You see, he would not wait. He married before mother died."

At that moment probably she was thinking of the manly phonograph record tones of Mr. Halsey, for the strange, real romance of her life was then some weeks old. It helped her to bear the annoyance and worrying excitement of the trial.

Mr. Halsey, at the other edge of the continent, knew nothing of these tribulations suffered by the girl whose voice had charmed him into true love. It had not occurred to him to inquire especially about her family or her prospects in a worldly way. When Cupid is dead in earnest he usually manages that such details shall be overlooked.

In the case of these two of Cupid's victims their voices—though they were "canned voices"—made them known to each other as well as though they were eye to eye, lip to ear, and Cupid needed no other medium of communication between them.

For Miss Idella Dotter the "law of compensation," so long dormant, was at last in full operation. On the very day that her lover's telegram came announcing his departure from Washington to join her in Los Angeles, the will contest was decided in her favor. After four years of dutiful self-sacrifice her reward, full and complete, was at hand.

There is as yet no formal announcement of the engagement of Miss Idella Dotter and Mr. Seth Cabell Halsey. In view of the startling novelty of a courtship by phonograph, the young woman has preferred to defer that detail until they have had opportunity for a little good old fashioned courting.

Should a Man Marry on a Small Salary?

"CIRCUMSTANCES alter cases," is a who old saw which still is good and useful in spite of its age, and astutely leaves the answer of the problem of whether a man should marry on $15 a week to the individual bride and groom with their individual circumstances of tastes and character. Thrse apart it is impossible to judge. With them it is well-nigh impossible.

A tidy home body of a girl who loves her needle can work miracles, making money by saving it. Some girls indeed are so possessed with this sort of thing that they have estranged their husbands by preferring to all by the fire and spin on a rainy day instead of investing some pennies on an evening's diversion. Others are for butterflying all the time and sew not at all. Others sew only when they cut out new cloth.

Men differ like unto them. Everything all the wide world over is relative—relative to the viewpoint and the viewer and the viewed. One man's splendor is another man's squalor. One woman's fineries are another woman's necessities. There are varied tastes and tendencies according to our temperaments.

But in the dale or on the mountain side if we will, we can live on our $15 a week with a measure of decency and comfort. A few years ago a celebrated cook issued a mechanic's cottage in the country and in it supported a family of four for months at $11 a week and put by some considerable number of pennies. But she was a good financier.

Some of us know so little about the business of money that it is well we have the discipline of keeping an establishment on $15 a week. Then we are prepared for any fate, and when we shall have fortunes to spend we will know how to use our thousands to advantage, the advantage of others—thanks to the school of poverty—probably intended.

Rich or poor, some of us the most extravagant and luxury-loving among us, sometimes are so beloved of each other that we rather would give up earth and heaven than forego wedlock. Of course, this is excessively fond and foolish and infatuated, and not at all provident with respect to family responsibilities. Yet it may be wisdom for us. Our circumstances alter our case, and if we have but our $15 a week the political economies and the domestic science books cannot say us nay.

For Jen and Jemima such an income is ample: for Edwin and Angelina it is inadequate, perhaps unendurable, poverty. Edwin unmarried, and much in request at social functions, well connected, well bred, and good looking, manages by dint of strict economy to keep his end up fairly well on $15 a week; but he never would dare ask Angelina, whom he adores, to share his slender stipend.

As for Jemima, who never has had a maid, and who can "sew, knit cook, wash, sweep, and do all manner of work," and who is accustomed to make the most of the few shillings which she has, she serves gladly for love's sake, and makes her Jem a true home in the tiny flat, or small suburban house they can afford. She even saves money on her housekeeping allowance. As for Jem he is of the sort who cheerfully can accept "bread and cheese and kisses," when emergency prescribes such fare.

If two young people, with good health, simple tastes and truly in love with each another, are willing to endure poverty for the sake of being together, they will find themselves "passing rich" where another would find for the struggle win reap only regret and discontent.

There is but one way to manage upon a small income; rigidly in opposition income to expense, leaving a margin which is not to be touched save in case of dire necessity; and never to run in debt.

Milwaukee's famous formula: "Income $100, expenditure $95, result happiness; income $20, expenditure $20.01, result misery," ought to be framed and presented to every couple who marry upon a small income.

The two who venture to marry on $15 a week must be prepared to dispense with most of the luxuries of ordinary life. If they put their hands to the plough there must be no looking back. It requires far less courage to marry upon $15 a week than cheerfully and bravely to accept the consequences of the act.

And meanwhile it may not be a bad idea to adopt the mottoes conducive to domestic and other happiness, the following:

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine.

Learn to attend strictly to your own business—a very important point.

Learn to tell a story. A well-told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sick room.

Learn the art of saying kind and encouraging things, especially to the young.

Learn to avoid all ill-natured remarks and everything calculated to create friction.

Learn to keep your troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to care for your ills and sorrows.

Learn to stop grumbling. If you cannot see any good in the world, keep the bad to yourself.

Learn to hide your aches and pains under a pleasant smile. No one cares whether you have the earache, headache or rheumatism.

THE MIGHTY HAUGHTY 'MARYANNS' AND THE MERE DUCHESSES

Lady Helen Stavordale.

The Marchioness of Londonderry.

The Duchess of Buccleugh.

"To diminish this outlay in servants' tips, guests have been known to arrive accompanied by a retinue of their own waiting men and maids."

London, May 24.

"MERELY MARY ANN," the London "slavey" heroine of Zangwill's comedy, has asserted herself. She is now the heroine of such a servant-girl problem as England has never before struggled with. "Merely Mary Ann" is no more. It is a case of the mighty haughty Mary Anns and the mere duchesses.

Two of the latter—not triumphant American ones, but duchesses of the old, aristocratic, rock-ribbed British stock—were recently overheard comparing notes on the calamity.

"Would you believe it?" said the young duchess, "Matilda actually refuses to wait up for me when I go out in the evening. I have to undress myself and get to bed the best I can."

"I thought it would soon come to that, the heathen," said the old duchess. "What could you expect with hardly a housemaid in England who will wear a black stuff gown any more?"

"And when I have to engage a new parlor maid she cross-examines me as though I were in the witness box. She insists on her right to wear a teagown and sit in the drawing room window in the afternoon." There was a bright red spot on each of the young duchess' cheeks, and her eyes snapped.

"It's all due to that pernicious American example," groaned the old duchess. "These rich American girls who run after our titled men have no control over their servants. It's corrupting the whole serving class."

"Yes," assented the young duchess, "there's where the cap and apron got its death blow. Above stairs nowadays you can hardly find a cap and apron in England."

"It's being taken out of their beer, though, the unnatural infants" said the old duchess. "No more beer allowance in my servants' hall—nor in any of the houses where I visit. They may have their tea, and that's all."

All of which is true, not only in the case of these two duchesses and their servants, but throughout fashionable London society. "Merely Mary Ann," to a woman, has gone on strike—and the strike is a successful one.

The English capital, while socially paralyzed at the austerity of the proceeding, has had, with varying degrees of meekness, to accept the situation.

The trouble originally was over the matter of dress. That ancient, and it now appears hated, badge of servitude, the black stuff gown with a white cap and apron, will no more be worn by any parlor maid in London.

The sole exception to this sweeping displacement is at Buckingham Palace, where the royal servants, having of necessity remained out of this general parlor maids' strike, will make no change in their gowns.

It is not the cap or apron to which any single one of the "Merely Mary Anns" has objected. There will be retained, with the notable modification that, whereas formerly every smart housemaid had a natty short apron with plain hem, from now on she will insist upon an equally smart one finished at the bottom with a deep frill. Moreover, she will be generously frilling on the collar in the same, which in its latest fashionable phases takes on the ample dimensions of an ornate pinafore.

And in place of the absolutely and irrevocably discarded black stuff gowns, the fashionable parlor maids will in future attend to their duties gowned in white, gray, pink or blue, as their respective mistresses may prefer. But never again under any conditions, either through attempted coercion or bribery of advance in wages, will they be induced to resume the black stuff gowns upon which up to this time all well conducted houses of quality have insisted.

Neither rank nor wealth has sufficed to secure to any of the parlor maids of London, save always excepted the Countess of Mar and Kellie, the privilege of wearing the black stuff gowns in which up to the present time the fiancee of the present Bishop of London, is one of the four notably beautiful sisters, Lady Cynthia Graham, Lady Helen Stavordale, Helen Vincent and the late Duchess of Buccleugh, whose sallies of wit possess the happy faculty of having no cutting edge of sarcasm.

So rigorously insistent have the London parlor maids been upon this point of the black gowns that in every intelligence office the statement is now unequivocally made in advance that no matter how exalted the rank or wealth of the prospective mistress, the maid absolutely refuses to engage in her service unless this point of the black gowns is yielded.

From this it will be seen that the wall of America over the vexed servant question finds rigorous echo in England, where, until the past year, the rigorousness of class distinction had rendered the present condition of insubordination an unknown quantity.

It is interesting to note, at the same time, that while this spirit of unrest and dissatisfaction prevails generally throughout England, there is, on the other hand, an equally unanimous protest from the mistresses of all classes as to the increasing inefficiency of servants.

The old order, by which it was the mistress who laid down the law and gospel for the servants' hall and stated to each employe with exactitude the respective duties, has become obsolete. It is now in England very largely, as in America, the maid who designates in advance of hiring just what she will do and what leave undone in the realm of duties. And this ultimatum of the maids is adhered to with a subsequent amazing exactitude.

Some of these rules are of decided interest. In households of the titled contingent the maid having attended to her mistress in gowning her for dinner, formally makes her adieux, as after that time she serves her no more until the morning. Before leaving the sleeping apartment, however, the maid carefully arranges all things in readiness for the night, since, unbelievable as it may at first appear, my lady must, by one Spartan ruling of the maid, disrobe with her own fair hands. And with these same hands must as well lightly cover the gorgeousness of dinner or ball gown with the fine white India silk sheets put forth for this purpose by the attendant.

Under no conditions is it any longer incumbent upon the maid to wait up for the return of her mistress. In the morning, having served the matutinal cup of coffee, the maid shakes out the silken sheets and skillfully puts away the rich apparel put off the night before.

The late Queen Victoria recognizing the enormous strain upon average incomes engendered by the tipping system in vogue on occasions of country house parties, throughout her reign resolutely put an end to it. And with regard to any guest tipping a royal servant she was adamant in her command that it should be abandoned.

It is very unfortunate for poor but proud young men and young women with the entree to good English society that Queen Victoria's example in the matter of tipping servants is not followed in most of the circumstances allowed herself to be whipped into line by the parlor maids' dictum.

Lady Revelstoke, daughter of the late Earl of Faversham and formerly Lady Ulrica Duncombe, accounted the most austere by proud bourgeoisie of England, has, with unlooked-for suavity, yielded to the housemaids' demands for abandonment of the black stuff gowns. Lady Revelstoke, at one time the fiancee of the present Bishop of London, is one of the four notably beautiful sisters, Lady Cynthia Graham, Lady Helen Stavordale, Helen Vincent and the late Duchess of Buccleugh, whose sallies of wit possess the happy faculty of having no cutting edge of sarcasm.

A week-views, has refused the same extensive in- end of hospitality at such houses actually terest in all public charities and philan- costs more in the way of tips than the thropic measures for the uplifting of the masses. She is, moreover, a notably clever at home-

For no other purpose than to diminish this outlay in servants' tips guests have been known to arrive accompanied by a retinue of their own waiting men and maids—a truly royal procession.

Another momentous change in the servants' hall in London is in the matter of the allowance of beer. This, in many of the leading homes, and especially those of Mayfair, is entirely done away with. When engaging a servant it is now distinctly stated that not only will no beer be allowed, but that so long as the servant remains under that particular roof none will be permitted to be consumed in the servants' hall.

This concerted action of the employers has been taken in an effort to abate the fearful growth of the drink habit. To counteract this evil as much as possible the allowance of tea has been greatly increased, statistics in London having proved within the past few years that the enormous increase of afternoon tea shops has more largely than any other one cause tended to minimize the drink record.

An important effect of servants taking the initiative in defining their duties is that in England the day of the "slavey" is practically past. So true is this that at the present writing it is quite as much of a rarity in Great Britain to secure a servant willing to engage as a maid of all work as it is now in the United States.

The emancipation of "Merely Mary Ann" has also its funny side.

Mary Ann was always a great admirer of Tommy Atkins. It was her dearest ambition to be seen on her afternoon out hanging to the arm of a nattily uniformed young soldier. Well, along with her other triumphs, she has reduced this ambition to a practical basis. If she can't catch her afternoon Tommy in any other way she subsidizes him.

Tommy, notoriously improvident, finds the system eminently to his liking. He doesn't have to hunt Mary Ann; she hunts him.

Neither sticks for the formality of an introduction. Mary Ann strolls out when Tommys are promenading, chests out, cape jauntily tilted over one ear, and picks out the one that most strikes her fancy. Observing her frankly admiring glances, he approaches and lifts his cap.

"Walkin' out this afternoon, miss?" says Tommy.

"Yes," says Mary Ann. "Isn't the weather charming?"

"Rippin'," says Tommy. "Sorry I'm short three bob for lemon squash an' sweets."

This gives Mary Ann a chance to make her bid, after the fashion well understood by both.

"I've two an' six," says Mary Ann, opening her purse.

"Couldn't make it three bob, could you?" says Tommy Atkins.

"Well—yes, this time," says Mary Ann, handing over the silver, which Tommy pockets as she takes his arm.

If Tommy manages to take them both through the afternoon at a total expenditure of two shillings—at a gain to himself of one shilling, she pretends not to notice the small defalcation—Tommy being a very resplendent specimen and working greatly to her advantage with the other Mary Anns and Tommys they meet.

Beginning usually at two and stopping for an ordinary afternoon outing, the ambitious maid must increase this amount in ratio to the particular standing in the ranks of that soldier boy upon whom her choice has fallen. In other words, his prize for accompanying her upon an afternoon parade along Oxford street or any specified thoroughfare is arranged in accordance with the number of medals won by him for feats of marksmanship or valor. And, most curious of all, neither he nor maid nor to Tommy does such arrangement carry with it any suggestion of ignominy.

To the mistresses the most exasperating detail of Mary Ann's emancipation is her refusal as their maid to wait up to undress her. Said the young duchess above quoted:

"If our maids persist in this particular bit of mutiny I shall be driven to sharing my husband's valet with him."

Just a "Perfectly Lovely Time" and Lots of Good Things to Eat for Only Two Dollars and a Half a Week.

By Miss Carrie A. De Nike.

A TWO weeks' vacation in the country may not ring as pleasantly for some as for others, but it sounded very inviting, but if you had been a member of the party of six when they returned from this outing, you certainly would have been enthusiastic over the success of the vacation as we ourselves were.

This was our second vacation in the country and we "The Hungry Six," as we styled ourselves, left our farmhouse with as much reluctance the second time as we did the first.

For the benefit of any "shut in" teachers, bookkeepers, stenographers, artists, druggists or clerks who might desire to put our plans into practical operation this Summer, a few details might be of value.

Vacant farmhouses, conveniently located, are numerous in almost any farming community, and we were fortunate in finding one to a fair state of repair in the vicinity of a large creek, with woods nearby and accommodating neighbors at hand. The place selected involved a fifteen mile railroad journey and a drive of about two miles on a hay rack, surrounded by our two trunks, box of groceries, baskets of provisions and other necessary baggage.

We purchased a supply of groceries from one of our home merchants, who packed and sent the articles by Freight to our destination. We also sent three cot beds, the property of some of the members of the party, for lounging purposes, while our beds consisted of ticks filled with straw from a neighbor's barn, and sheets, blankets and sofa pillows taken from home; these beds were easily disposed of during the day by piling them in an unused bedroom. Each member also provided herself with a plate, fork, knife, two spoons, cup, saucer, glass and napkin. Other articles furnished by the party were a tablecloth, sugar bowl, creamer, tea pot, coffee pot, frying pan, granite kettle, two basins, dish cloth and towels, two large pans were secured from our next door neighbors for dishwashing purposes, as these bulky articles did not have to be packed, but the above mentioned articles, together with our wearing apparel and bed clothing were packed in two trunks.

Upon arriving at our house we found that former tenants had left a few chairs and a table which could be used; this furniture we made do, with the addition of a few boxes, the cots and trunks. We made arrangements for the house by correspondence with a party that one of our crowd was acquainted with, and at the same time arranged to have an old fashioned elevated oven store put up. This store was at first quite a trial to us, as wood was the fuel and we came from a gas-burning community, but after a few days we managed to acquire sufficient skill to build the fire and keep it going, and the variety of food that was cooked on the stove and in the old oven would be surprising.

The following may serve as a sample of a day's menu, so you'll see "The Hungry Six" were not always hungry.

The total expense of this two weeks' outing, including car fare, cartage, groceries, wood—delivered to us from a nearby farm—rent of house, and other necessary expenses, was about $30, giving to a most satisfactory two weeks' vacation at the rate of $5 apiece. This, of course, does not include the bread, cookies and salad dressing which we took with us and which were contributed by the various members of the party.

Following is a Detailed List of Expenses.

In addition to the above we took from home eight loaves of bread, four dozen cookies and a quantity of salad dressing. There was perhaps fifty cents worth of supplies left at the end of the time.

The requirements in the matter of dress were very simple. Aside from the necessary outfit for our railroad journey our wardrobe consisted of short light weight skirts, kimonos, comfortable shoes or oxfords, pinbonnets, and the simplest and most comfortable of underclothing. There were several places in the creek that were sufficiently deep and safe for bathing purposes, so bathing suits and shoes were taken by those who cared for the water.

Another matter that might be interesting was the unique manner of doing the necessary work and cooking. The party was divided into three groups of two each. Each party consisted of a "head cook" and "helper," so two did the cooking and housework for successive days, leaving the other four free all day. The housekeeper's time was only partially occupied, as we endeavored to do the work as easily as possible, although the amount of cooking was quite large, as our appetites were much improved by the outdoor air.

So much for the practical details. Now for the amusements. Four of the party were enthusiastic "fishermen" and spent a great deal of time on the banks of the creek, which abounded in fair specimens of the finny tribe, and the results of their efforts formed no "mean" for many meals. As impromptu bath in the creek was a favorite afternoon diversion, the party, and the scenes we could tell of the large fish that jumped off the hooks just before we landed them would have done credit to veteran fishermen.

We were fortunate in having beautiful Summer weather nearly all the time of our stay. What could be more delightful on a warm and sultry afternoon than to pack a lunch, take a sofa pillow and blanket and repair to the woods? Picking flowers and berries along the way, lazily watching the birds and squirrels, listening dreamily to the rippling of the brook; far away from the busy haunts of life; no shrill whistles, whirr of trolley cars or honk! honk! of automobiles to disturb the peaceful quiet of the Summer's day. Then to build an arch of stones, make a fire to cook our coffee, and eat our lunch in true picnic fashion. Later, when the shades of night were fading, to wander back along the fields and feel the cool night breezes, bearing to us the scent of new mown hay and the faint tinkle of the cow-bell, there to rest and dream our sleepy, sleepy, sleepy, with not a sound, except the chirping of the crickets, to disturb the stillness and quiet of us. Wherever we were was the most hospitable neighborhood those tramps ever struck. We were as welcome in our beds.

These Girls Came Back from Vacation with $3.00 More Than They Started With.

By Frances Clarke.

WE'RE going to do it again this year. That means that we—a happy family of nine "fresh-water" college girls—discovered last year the secret of an ideal vacation, "without money and without price." We actually came home with more money than we started out with. And besides this financial profit we laid in a store of health and high spirits that has carried us through the college year with a rush like that of a victorious football team.

But we didn't do it in kid gloves and chiffon. We came out of it as brown as berries and as hard as nails—and with hands that would have been the despair of a manicurist. Hah! What did we care!

Listen. New Jersey hasn't enough inhabitants to pick two-thirds of its berry and peach crop. If you worry your wits nine months of the year you can't do more to repair the damage than to keep and eat in a tent and pick berries during the other three.

No fun in it? Well, make fun out of it!

This is what we did last year:

At the beginning of the last week in June we packed up a few of our commonest duds and "hiked" for the Jersey berry country, just in time to catch one week of the strawberry season.

Maude, who is as sharp as they make 'em, had been over the ground and organized herself into a committee of one on ways and means. The main feature of the latter was a large canvas tent and nine narrow cots with a blanket and change of two folded sheets for each, all of which Maude borrowed.

Actually that first Jersey fruit farmer was waiting for us, with a raised floor of planed boards to pitch the tent on, and a little shack in the rear all fitted up with a rusty old cook stove and all the dishes and cooking utensils we needed.

It didn't take us two hours to get settled, including the stocking of our kitchen with provisions—mostly bought at the lowest prices from the farmer himself, and the rest from the country store three miles away. And the farmer's hired man did the carting for nothing.

Fifty Quarts of Strawberries.

That same afternoon we picked a total of fifty quarts of strawberries, though Maude and Jane "knocked off" at 5 o'clock to get supper. That meant $2.50 added to the treasury—for you must remember that the quarts we were paid for would make at least five of the "pint" boxes you pay your greengrocer for.

That day we didn't feel the strain a bit. We were so frisky after supper that our banjo and guitar quartet gave a concert, with vocal selections by the rest of us, all out in the moonlight, with the farmer's family for audience, that lasted till nearly midnight.

But "Oh, what a difference in the morning"!

It was 2 in the afternoon before we could drag ourselves to that strawberry patch.

"Jest a leetle sore an' stiff, hey?" grinned the farmer. "Oh, waal, it'll wear off."

He was right. It "wore off." We did our fifty quarts again, but we went to bed as soon as we'd had our supper. No concert that night.

On the second day of July, with a grand spurt, we finished the strawberry harvest—seven days' work, at an average of $3 per day—$21—and we hadn't spent $7. Besides for fun, we'd had two moonlight straw rides, and on two wet forenoons we had gone fishing—not to mention one fresh-water swim in a nearby lake. And we were as husky and healthy as so many dairymaids.

We found ourselves the wonder of all the country round. Fruit farmers came from miles around and entered into sharp competition for our services as the "champion berry pickers." We gladdened the heart of a farmer ten miles away, whose red raspberry crop was ripe, and who offered to transport us and our impedimenta free of charge, and who added:

The picnic was on the Fourth of July—a regular country "Fourth," with oratory and an awful chorus of salutes, with fire-cracker variations at intervals all day long. We provided the "musical programme," sitting on the platform with the local celebrities. Oh, it was a great day! The dinner provided by the farmers' wives and daughters, served on a long trestle table in a grove, was one to be remembered.

Red raspberry picking had a tendency to disturb our dreams of wealth somewhat. There wasn't so much stooping. Our backs had a new and then. But those blessed farmers and their sons and hired men never took their eyes off us. Wherever we were was the most inhospitable to our elbows! A total of thirty-two quarts—$1.60—for a set we would have been at home in our beds.

But we got used to it, and during the six day that the red raspberry harvest lasted we managed to pay expenses, with the bright prospect ahead of a neighboring big patch of blackberries, which you can gather in by the bushel, with hardly a scratch. We were $5 ahead when we had finished that blackberry patch.

At the end of the week we listened again to those anxious fruit farmers and went to work. As we were about $2 ahead each, we haughtily refused to work more than five hours a day. It was blackberries by the middle of July, and then a turn at early peaches.

Maude had been so confident about our earning capacity that we had taken with us as a "sinking fund" only $20. We never touched a cent of it, except the original railway transportation to our first camp—$6.50. The $13.50 left—$11.75, which amount about covered our fare home. But we had paid all our living expenses, and when Maude declared dividends on our return the amount for each of us was $4.80—a net gain of nearly $5, with a splendid vacation thrown in.

We never had to pay more than 20 cents a dozen for fresh eggs.

Trumps! Yes, there were. Weary Wagglesea hanging about

Jolly Times on a Hous

IF you want the healthiest, happiest and laziest va cation in the world, here it is, at the cost of only a dollar a day. You must have companions, half a dozen or more of them. But who wants to be a hermit on a vacation, anyway?

Rent a houseboat for two weeks. You can get one furnished, big enough for a party of nine or ten, for $25. The next big item is the horse. The animal himself should be big and healthy and well shod. His hire will be not more than $1.50 per day for the fourteen days, or $21 in all.

Somebody in the party ought to be able to beg, borrow or own a canoe, punt or other light craft that can be carried on the houseboat. You will find it very convenient, and if the trip is to be made on a river it is essential. A good big tent can be rented for a fortnight for $5.00, that is, if you can't borrow one.

The food supply, purchased mostly from farmers along the route, will be surprisingly cheap. You will find the farmers curious and good-natured and inclined to be very generous in return for answers to their questions. A party of nine, who took a houseboat trip of two weeks last season, found their food bill was just a few cents less than $40. They lived on the fat of the land, too, and got their vegetables, butter, milk and eggs right where they grew.

The automobilist is hated and feared, the yacht man is looked upon as a millionaire, and according both are overcharged for anything they buy. But the jolly party floating down-stream or being towed through a canal is liked and encouraged. If you u a horse he will rent you about $3.50 for his meals a stabling.

After you have negotiated with the farmer for t food of the passengers, and mention that the hor needs something to eat and somewhere to lay h head (figuratively speaking, because, of course, only wants to lay his feet), he will very likely ta care of the animal free.

If you live anywhere near a canal, by all mean try the canal trip. It is even more curious and fa cinating than a river. The canal necessitates the above-mentioned horse and a permit and a few tolls.

A party of nine who made the trip from Brist Pennsylvania to Mauch Chunk and return—a di tance of about 212 miles on the Delaware Divisi and Lehigh Canal—paid for permit and tolls $7.1 On a canal you can get along without a canoe o punt, but still it is well to have one along.

If you think a river is more suited to your taste or handier, you will need a good anchor and plenty o rope, but no horse. You can either have the house boat towed up the river and float down with the cu

[illegible]NSIVE WAYS TO TAKE YOUR VACATION.

How an Old Canal Boat Can Be Made to Provide as Much Fun as a Millionaire Gets Out of His Expensive Yacht.

By Miss Ina Grace Tabor.

WHILE we have not very elegant houseboats here in [illegible] we have the next best thing—[illegible] canal boats, and the difference is [illegible] so when one of us was [illegible] and [illegible] it was [illegible] some of the [illegible] suggested [illegible] that we spend a month aboard such a craft, journeying along the Erie in search of recreation, and also, incidentally, profitable and [illegible] sketching. It was not a very great task to eliminate this difference. Elegance is [illegible] therefore we did [illegible] certainly was cozy and inviting [illegible] the particular boat we finally [illegible] required standard of comfort and [illegible] shape.

One army cot or one canvas hammock.
One canopy of fine mosquito netting.
Three sheets, one pillow, two pillow cases.
Towels according to individual requirements.
One hundred Japanese paper napkins.
One knife, two forks, two teaspoons, one tablespoon.

The silver was not necessary, as the boat's pantry had a supply, but its appearance was so dubious that we preferred to carry our own. Dishes were on the boat.

We elected a commander at the very start, who did everything. This might seem a bit unfair to him at first glance, but, knowing him, we knew it was not. He [illegible]

Into his hands we each put $40, determining the amount needed from estimates based on the actual prices of various provisions, the cost of the boat, etc. A stock of dry groceries was installed, sufficient to last the month. Tea, coffee, cocoa, sugar, salt, pepper, baking powder and flour made up the list of these. Fresh fruits, vegetables, butter, milk, eggs, chickens and meat were purchased as they were needed from farmers whenever possible, rather than in the towns. Thus they came to the table really fresh and correspondingly de[illegible].

Canal boats have a deckhouse at either end, the one at the rear being divided into quarters for the crew and the galley. The cooking being thus confined to the stern, no odors of it are wafted across the cabin or into any other part of the boat.

In the forward deckhouse the women were domiciled, and though it was snug, it was by no means uncomfortable. The deck space forward, between it and the edge of the boat, was also reserved for them, and here some put their cots and slept in the open when they felt like it.

The large main deck between the two deckhouses was canopied over and was our living room and dining saloon by day and the men's cabin by night. The forward end was screened and curtained off for a dressing room, the piano and several trunks standing against the screens and reinforcing them.

Side flaps to let down around the cabin in bad weather were provided, but were not lowered unless it rained a veritable deluge. The furniture of the cabin consisted of the cots, which were beds at night and divans by day, the hammocks, which some had brought instead of cots; a large round table, which held books and magazines between meals and at which we ate; two or three steamer chairs and a piano. A dozen big Japanese lanterns furnished light of a most attractive quality and color; not bright enough to attract insects, as ordinary lamps do, yet sufficient for our purposes.

We did our own housework excepting the cooking and dishwashing—that is, we made our own beds. Of dusting and sweeping there was next to none, and there was nothing to get out of order.

We planned to pass through the towns and cities during the night, or at least the early morning, while everybody was asleep. By this arrangement we avoided every reminder of the strenuous and busy world. Daybreak—4 a. m.—usually found us under way, and the most of our journeying was done between then and the middle of the forenoon, with a short stop for a swim before breakfast.

And how de[illegible] those plunges into the clear, cool water were! No time of day compares with the early morning for a dip, and when it is taken in [illegible] the [illegible] even the most practical must watch out, else they will lapse into poetry.

It is hard to realize that this broad stretch of limpid water, fresh and sweet as a living spring and deep enough to afford excellent swimming, reflecting the wayside trees and the green of the meadows, and [illegible] pickerel that dart quicker than thought [illegible] the deeper shadow of reeds and grasses, is the result of man's work instead of nature's—of man's commercial enterprise primarily.

A Plunge Before Breakfast.

To those who know the Erie only from seeing it where it passes through towns and cities a voyage along its [illegible] waters would never suggest itself. But out in the open country where the meadows are sweet with grass and slope down to its edge, it is a revelation of beauty, and few lovelier places are to be found anywhere than along it. At the "basins" it spreads into little irregular lakes, sometimes six hundred feet across. Trees fringe its banks all along, the picturesque willow being everywhere in evidence, with its branches dipping far out over the water and forming delightful bowers of green.

During the heat of the day we "snubbed up" in these shady retreats, where the horses rested, while we set out, severally or together as fancy dictated, some bent on work, others on play. Each carried his own lunch, to be eaten whenever hunger overtook him, whether on the road, in the woods or a hayfield. Thus the midday meal was always an impromptu picnic, though we never attempted to keep together. In fact, we made no attempt to do anything definitely. We were always ready on time for dinner at 6 and for the 8:30 breakfast, but this was the nearest approach to formal hours made in our day, with the possible exception of a general understanding that we were all to return to the boat about 4 p. m., when she again got under way, continuing until 9 or 10 in the evening.

A sense of unreality lingers in my memory about these late afternoon hours, owing partly, no doubt, to the mysterious charm which the lengthening shadows always hold, but made more vivid, I am inclined to think, by the mode of travel.

There is, of course, absolutely no sense of motion on one of these ungainly barges, and this absence of even the least vibration gives one a queer notion, which it is quite impossible to shake off, that they themselves are stationary—resting inert in space—and that the earth is being slid past them on well-oiled, perfectly adjusted machinery. At the sunset hour this vision of fields and hills and woods slipping thus gently and silently away with the light is so complete that one is bewildered by it. A spell seems to hold them, an enchantment to rest over them.

Our hours were early, and unless the deck was cleared for dancing no light was needed. Many evenings the lanterns were not lighted, indeed, hardly at all during the full moon.

Clothing we limited to a liberal supply of necessities. We were able to get laundry work done along the way without any trouble, paying for it, of course, as we would have done anywhere.

The piano was an extra, [illegible] for the month. It amounted to something like [illegible] dollar each for the entire period, and we were glad we had it. The table was loaned by one of the party and the steamer chairs by others. Blankets and rugs for covering the divans and trunks also were furnished by those who had an abundance of them.

Restful it certainly was, in a truly ideal way. That is, it did not bore with that flat monotony which hangs like a pall over the abominable places usually described by the adjective.

Much that is of interest, and that is never heard of, may be found tucked away in the towns and cities along the way. By tying up a mile or so outside their limits and making them the objective point in a walk, the unpleasant features of a stay in their midst are avoided.

In the four weeks [illegible] a distance of 140 miles, roughly speaking—70 miles each way was covered. If the trip were made only one way on the boat, returning by train, the regulation two weeks' vacation would just suffice. The expense in this case would probably be a little more than half what it was for our party for the entire [illegible]. Twenty-five dollars should cover it, however, with $1.50 for return railroad fare. The time of the trip by rail between the two points is not quite two hours.

Camping and Tramping, How to Make the Most of a Trip on Small Expense.

By Gertrude Lovell.

SUMMER approaches again and I am eagerly planning for a [illegible] of the delightful camping days so much enjoyed a year ago. As experiences are always more [illegible] and helpful than plans, these remarks [illegible] the former. If you have never camped [illegible] supplying the impulse toward a pleasure and benefit you have too long neglected [illegible] earn your gratitude for.

Both camping and tramping have their advantages, but personally I prefer the former as calling for less physical exertion at a time when we should store up energy as well as health against the labors of the rest of the year.

If you know how [illegible] easy to make a tent the most comfortable, even attractive. The site for your camp may be in the woods, near the seashore, on the margin of a lake or river where there is boating as well as swimming, for pastime and part of the [illegible] or in the mountains for the sake of unaccustomed scenery. This is a matter that must first be agreed upon by the proposed camping family.

A good camper is born, not made—born with a sincere love of nature, who enjoys the ability to meet emergencies, to face and overcome discomforts and annoyances. As camp life is properly and historically — gregarious and not solitary, a fair division of the labor involved between several persons is a great advantage.

I have found that the best tent is a roomy one. Fourteen feet square is a convenient size. It pays to have it provided with a board floor, and several inches above the ground. Then with a double roof of canvas with a good pitch to it you can keep dry, even through a protracted spell of wet weather.

The most restful and convenient bunks I have found to be army cots, provided with a thin and inexpensive quality of mattress. Plenty of blankets should be provided. They can be separated by hanging screens of cloth.

Don't try to store provisions in your living tent. For this purpose and in which to cook build a small, watertight shack. You can usually borrow in the neighborhood an old stove and what cooking utensils are needed.

If your party is a large one, requiring more than one living tent, I advise the employment of a servant to do the [illegible]. No camper for health and pleasure should make a slave of herself.

Unless you camp far from civilization you will find that you can live well and cheaply "on the country." Milk, butter and eggs are obtainable in most desirable camping localities, and for groceries, etc., country stores are usually available.

The more easily you can get into and move about in your camping clothes the happier you will be. In camping remember that the main requisites are comfort, utility and neatness.

When I remarked that between camping and tramping I preferred the former I made the mental reservation: "Except when I feel like tramping." For girls who during the greater part of the year have lacked physical exercise I know of no inexpensive vacation comparable to the tramping tour.

The little money that it costs is much better spent than for clothes, or candy, or, often, for doctors. Take a walking trip instead of nerve medicine. It is a sort of tonic which leaves no unpleasant result.

Begin right. These are my rules—the fruit of repeated experiences as a tramp for pleasure and recreation:

1. Don't plan a solitary tramp through the country. [illegible] at least one congenial friend with whom you can agree as to the route to be taken. Then sit down together and formulate a detailed plan. Two heads will prove better than one, especially in suggesting points of interest which the tour can include.

2. Let the basis of your preparations be a reliable map. If it is not mountain climbing you are after the maps provided for bicycle tourists will be found the best and most accurate guides. Consider the distances and a reasonable rate of speed and mark on the map a stopping place at the end of each day's journey.

3. Consult the almanac before fixing the day of your start. By so doing you may escape a three-days rainstorm at the very outset.

4. Consider carefully and intelligently your actual walking outfit. A small willow suitcase, which can be strapped to the shoulders, will hold all you really need except [illegible]. But if you are [illegible] you can arrange to have other things sent from [illegible] by express. Wear strong, sensible [illegible] walking shoes [illegible] wider than you customarily wear, for your tour will be spoiled if your feet bother you. Sponge baths at night will do the rest.

5. If you are acquainted at stopping places marked [illegible] it is a good plan to write ahead for accommodations. Sometimes in [illegible] the postmaster will recommend safe boarding places or the store[illegible] [illegible] but if you manage in [illegible] known about. A very [illegible] toward a warm reception [illegible] about one's self and [illegible] of one's journey.

6. In [illegible] regions, if you wander [illegible] it is a gracious thing to entertain your hostess with some account of your experiences at a distance. But remember news travels surprisingly in country regions, and your fame and knowledge of your eccentricities will travel further than you will and last in the village memory as long as in your own. On my journeys we have [illegible] or collected, or [illegible] dates.

7. If you have to find to take with you, make [illegible]. It will double the fun. Botany, [illegible] architecture of visiting [illegible] are good ones.

8. [illegible] home people could be communicated with by telephone daily, or, as I once did, it would be made positively amusing for [illegible] if a postal card were mailed from each post office passed describing [illegible] the personal [illegible] farming people.

9. Don't try [illegible] over too great a distance [illegible] and don't dawdle. One [illegible] daily even [illegible] of tramping and resting will bring [illegible] out of eye and elastic of muscle.

[illegible] Boat for $1.00 a Day.

[illegible]or you can start right where it happens to be, [illegible] live and float as far as the river takes you. [illegible]en you can stay aboard and be towed back with [illegible] boat or return by train or steamer. Your towing [illegible] should cost you not more than $2[illegible]. This is [illegible] than your horse and canal charges [illegible] you save [illegible] to pay your fares on the railroad.

[illegible] You can't rent a boat to suit you, it will cost [illegible]150 to $200 to buy an old scow and fit it up to [illegible] own taste. Then you will have it for other seasons and can get your money back if you do a little [illegible] talking by renting it to others.

[illegible] The inside of the houseboat should be twenty to [illegible] five feet long by twelve to fourteen feet wide. [illegible] You must have six feet or more "head room," so [illegible] won't bump your heads when you stand up. The [illegible] can be divided by light partition or by curtains into two rooms, and in one you must have a good [illegible] going out cooking outfit. Tanks are expensive [illegible] and water can be carried in a barrel.

[illegible] The party is a "mixed" one, this will be necessary anyhow, and the men who camp in the tent on shore will rather get the best of it as regards air and coolness when the weather is fair.

If heavy rains are encountered, of course the women are snug and dry and the campers have the usual disadvantages of getting in a rain. Perhaps you may find it worth while in the event of a prolonged spell of wet weather to induce the feminine part of the crew to go to a hotel or "put up at a farm house" and allow the campers to sleep on the boat.

The party can't very well be all women, because contrary currents, storms and emergencies may call for strong arms and wet feet. Most men lay claim to cooking ability if they "had to," but when a test comes it is usually found that they have a genius for cooking a very few things, until you hate those things. No man has a genius for washing dishes or wiping them.

The ideal party is of eight to ten, about half of each sex, though the ages need not all be the same. The men of course will manoeuvre the craft and do the hewing of wood and carrying of water, and the fair sex will keep houseboat and cook, and all will be happy if you don't forget mosquito screens.

Don't let anybody persuade you that there are no mosquitoes where you are going. It isn't so. No Summer climate in the world, except the deserts and mountain tops, is free from mosquitoes, and these favored places are unsuited for houseboating.

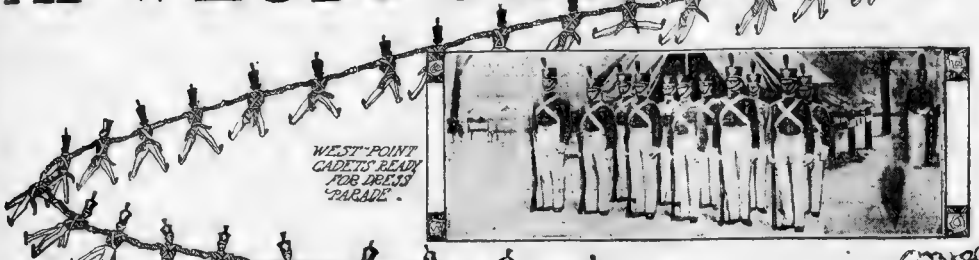
THE TRANSIT OF VENUS AT WEST POINT



WEST POINT CADETS READY FOR DRESS PARADE.

MISS EMILY AYRES.

TYPICAL SCENE OF CADETS ON DUTY.

"More than ever before the eternal feminine at West Point is playing 'crack-the-whip' with the whole contingent of cadets, and the Secretary of War is wondering what is to be done about it."

How the President and the Secretary of War Are Entangled in a Regular Comic Opera Complication Because the Academy Commandant Won't Let Sweethearts Wear Cadets' Overcoats.

That is . . . transit of Venus.

In the eyes of army headquarters at Washington, and of the general public, that has been the position of Mars at West Point ever since that cold day last March when Venus donned his military overcoat. She gave it back to him, but in the midst of such a storm of protest—which still continues, and grows . . . stormier—that she might as well now be wearing Mars' entire uniform.

Dropping astronomical and mythological . . . ergus, more than ever before the eternal . . . ers nine at West Point is playing "crack-the-whip" with the whole contingent of cadets, and the Secretary of War is wondering what is to be done about it.

What can we do when we run up against a woman in this way?" repeated one of Secretary Taft's seasoned old gray-beards, when the question was put to him.

Why, there isn't anything we can do except run."

The real feminine autocrat at West Point is, of course, the one girl in the world whom the spruce young cadet loves best—one for each cadet, for if they were not all ardent lovers the task of making soldiers of them would be hopeless. And back of the girls stand their mothers, who know how it is themselves.

Now one of these mothers—Mrs. Elizabeth Fairfax Ayres—possesses social and political influence. On her daughter's behalf, when a certain cadet's overcoat was torn from the young woman's shoulders on the West Point parade ground, she made a protest so firm and loud that it was heard by every Congressman and Senator in the United States. They are also the real commandants at West Point.

Most of the prettiest and most romantic girls wherever cadets hail from lie awake nights planning parade day and moonlight triumphs for themselves in the grounds of the National Military Academy, each with a budding army officer for her special and exclusive property.

Never before had this fact been more apparent than at the Easter parade last March. For every cadet on the parade ground—and elsewhere when he was off duty—there was a sweet bit of femininity serene in her knowledge that Mars has always capitulated to Venus.

The day was cold and wet. Presently Commandant Howze and Capt. L. W. Oliver, the latter one of the tactical officers of the Academy, observed that an engaging bunch of fire girls were watching the parade, only snugly buttoned up to the chin in a regulation cadet overcoat.

What was . . . such a situation? Tragedy, comedy, pathos? Or genuine Gilbertian comic opera?

Yet the details of the transit of Venus at West Point do inspire one with a sort of fellow feeling for the West Point commandant and his subordinates. If they had shut their eyes, or turned their backs, or run away, no one would have blamed them, and nothing would ever have been heard of the whole matter. But they didn't. With a heroism that must be the admiration of the whole army and navy they stood to their guns.

Their position is one of enormous difficulty. While it is their duty to make professional warriors out of young men gathered together from every congressional district in the United States they are also custodians of the most fascinating Lovers' Bower in the whole world. Not Lieut. Col. Howze, U. S. A., but Dan Cupid, is the real commandant at West Point.

The sergeant did his duty. If that sergeant's skin hadn't been an inch thick he would have been pierced to his vitals by the fiery glances from sixteen pairs of scornful eyes shot at him while their owners heard his curt speech and handed over the overcoats.

But in one girl he met more than his match.

"Tell your superior officer," she said, "that if he wants this overcoat he can come and get it himself."

The sergeant made his report.

"Take the names of the cadets who lent those coats," said the commandant. "And then he took counsel with his staff.

A little later the mutinous Venus was respectfully approached by a courtly, elderly officer who had fought and bled for his country. He was General Edwin V. Sumner, retired, but still a fine military figure. He introduced himself to the young ladies as Venus.

"I'm sure," he said, "that you won't mind letting me have that overcoat—now that the rain has ceased. Colonel Howze (Georgia; E. E. Lewis, South Dakota; G. Gee (Ky.); H. Swigert, New Jersey, L. L. Green, Texas; E. F. Harding, Ohio; F. C. Harrington, Virginia; P. J. Horton, Alabama; H. Pfeil, Maryland, and C. J. Taylor, Kansas.

It was against the rules, but the rule had been broken before, and the officers were discreet. They concluded not to see that those overcoats contained girls.

But the example was catching. Soon, in all directions, round cheeks, sparkling eyes and picture hats were seen to be blossoming out of the collars of cadet overcoats. The time to stop the conflagration is when it breaks out. Col. Howze ordered the protest member of his staff to state the case to the fair offenders and beg them to separate themselves from the Government's property.

These five girls, taken by surprise, hastily gave up the overcoats and left the grounds. But by this time Col. Howze counted a dozen fresh breaches of discipline of this kind, with more coming into evidence every minute. He summoned a gruff and plain-spoken sergeant.

"Go to those ladies," he said, "and get those overcoats. Tell 'em it's against army regulations."

But because it was against a regulation of the army for a soldier, cadet or full-fledged officer to sell or give away or lose his uniform, or any part of it, the Secretary of War must uphold the unchivalrous authorities at West Point by disciplining somebody.

As the power of the United States Army cannot very well be invoked to put down a mutinous pretty girl or her mother, apparently the object nearest the crime it can strike is the unhappy father of the one and husband of the other.

So Lieutenant-Colonel Charles G. Ayres, lately arrived in the Philippines to do a General's work for the nation, has been ordered home to receive punishment for engaging bunch of fire girls were watching the parade, only snugly buttoned up to the chin in a regulation cadet overcoat.

What was . . . such a situation? Tragedy, comedy, pathos? Or genuine Gilbertian comic opera?

They were partly appeased when Colonel Howze asked for the names of the offended ladies, and wrote to each a note of explanation and regret. All the same they made a spirited protest against the enforcement of a regulation which, as everybody knew, had been for so long a dead letter.

Colonel Howze explained that as commandant he had to recognize as "dead letter." While he continued in authority he would have to live up to the regulations. That makes his position irreproachable from the Washington standpoint—but what is Washington compared with the feminine sentiment of the whole country?

So the proposed court martial of the guilty cadets has been called off. As a son in discipline, the seventeen culprits have been required to do a little extra sentry duty, and that is all, so far as they are concerned.

What will be done to poor Lieut. Col. Ayres on his return hurries the imagination. Perhaps he will be let out and shot. After which, the dignity of the War Department being thus restored, the President can get the obnoxious army regulation enforcement of a regulation which, as everybody knew, had been for so long a dead letter.

"Absent Treatment" for the Piano.

THAT haunting demon of every piano player, the necessity for constant soul destroy ng practice at the keyboard, is threatened with exercism by an inventor who claims to have discovered a means whereby the muscles of the fingers and arm may be brought into a state of condition without it. Macdonald Smith, the inventor in question, is, by his own description of himself, at once a musician and a man of science. By virtue of this rare combination of qualities he claims to have made a discovery which has hitherto escaped attention.

He asserts that continual practice at the keyboard is, in almost all cases not only ineffectual in bringing the muscles into the best possible condition for playing difficult passages, but is often detrimental to the player. There are a few men and women so highly gifted by Nature that they attain the most marvelous execution after constant practice; but ordinary human beings cannot hope to reach such a state of technical perfection even if they practice to the utmost limit of their strength.

Yet, according to Macdonald Smith, they may attain wonderful execution without practicing at all, except so far as is necessary to gain familiarity with the exe-

JUNE! And we of the Four Hundred linger in town.

I still find friendly faces to bow to in my daily drive in the park.

I can still manage to gather together a congenial quartette for a game of our adored bridge.

Even a smart little dinner is not an impossibility. For though the Weather Man goes back on us we still must dine.

For years the town has been deserted by the first of June. It has not been considered "correct" to let New York be aware that you existed after May, which makes it all the more remarkable to find so many people in town this year.

Though, goodness knows, when you think of the way in which people have been pouring out of New York you wonder how there is any one left.

I am quite tired of sending Cholly's man down to the ships with "bon voyage" hampers of fruit and huge boxes of flowers. Particularly as I know quite well that people usually find these gifts "such a bore" and promptly turn them over to the steward to dispose of.

But I find it wise to cast fruit and flowers upon the water in this way. They very often conveniently return to me in the shape of dinners and boxes at the opera the following winter.

A good many of the voyagers I expect to meet at Newport later on.

I suppose they'll come back with trunks and trunks full of the most lovely fripperies from Paris and Vienna. That is, some of them. There are exceptions who don't succumb to the allurements of Worth and Paquin.

Gladys Vanderbilt, who really might have anything under the sun she wants, dresses in the most absolutely simple way. And by that I don't mean the simplicity that costs thousands, but the real thing.

Every time I saw her at the opera last winter she wore almost childish little lingerie dresses, and I quite often see her footing it up Fifth avenue—in and out among the crowd—in a plain tailored suit. She's so very democratic.

I think she must be a girl with "a soul above clothes." Her singing seems to be the only thing she is sincerely interested in.

A Symphony in Blues.

I met her one morning just before she sailed, dressed in a plain little suit of pale blue cloth. It was a dull, soft blue, almost a baby blue, but with more gray in it.

The coat was an abbreviated pony coat. It came just below the waist line, and had a waist coat of cloth braided in shades of blue. Very fine silk braid was used for this. Bands of the braided cloth edged the collar and continued down the front and the same braiding ornamented the cuffs.

Just over each hip the bottom of the coat was slashed and two little flat side pleats were introduced. These were headed by a band of braided cloth. It broke the straight line of the coat very pleasantly.

The skirt was a long circular one, absolutely without trimming.

She wore a simple hat of pale yellow straw. It was of only medium size and had a slightly mushroom effect. Blue corn flowers were used for the trimming, with the same shade of blue repeated in some bows of velvet ribbon put on at the back. Golden buttercups nestled down among the flowers.

It was altogether about as unpretentious a costume as one could imagine.

The bluets looked quite familiar to me and I realized that this was the very suit and hat I had seen Gladys Vanderbilt wear at the coaching parade. She drove on Alfred G. Vanderbilt's coach, and the bluets were of course worn out of compliment to her brother's coaching colors.

Speaking of the Vanderbilts and of the coaching parade, did you see Mrs. Alfred G. that day?

She really never looked better in her life and quite carried off the palm among all the good-looking women there.

And it wasn't the most becoming day in the world. There was a sharp wind blowing, you remember, which applied the color to one's face in the wrong way. That is, one's nose instead of one's cheeks was red and one's poor cheeks blue.

I felt quite stiff when I climbed down off the drag for luncheon for Claremont. And of course Cholly refused to be properly sympathetic, because I had not worn a wrap.

But I was wearing a very chic new frock, and new frocks were never meant to be covered up with wraps. No! Let me be petrified but let my new gown be seen.

But, as I said, Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt rose quite superior to all weather conditions. When I caught a glimpse of her across the banked up red and white flowers of the luncheon tables she looked as happy and smiling as though there were no such things in the world as red noses and chilly spines.

She was wearing a gown of her favorite blue—a pure unclouded turquoise blue.

The material was, I think, marquisette and the skirt, which was long, hung in soft folds which were really most artistic. Just below the waist it was shirred several times and toward the hem, but not much more than two-thirds of the way down the skirt, some trimming was applied in an original way.

Bands of the material embroidered in silk in shades of blue were put on irregularly in large squares and these squares enclosed up and down tucking of the marquisette. I think the illustration will explain this better than I can.

I couldn't see much of the detail of the waist, for immediately after luncheon Mrs. Vanderbilt donned an eton coat of black taffeta. But before she did this I caught a suggestion of white lace yoke and a peculiar inset of black lace on the top of each sleeve. A belt of gold soft gold crushed ribbon gleamed at the waist line, and she wore a strand of magnificent pearls about her neck.

Big black hats seem to be always in high favor and never more so than this year, for in spite of all that's said about our frivolity we do possess a little common sense and realize that there is no more becoming setting for faces that are fair—or ought to be fair—than a hat of carefully bent curves and nodding plumes.

Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt quite realizes their picturesque effect and beautifying value and rarely wears anything but a hat of sombre hue. Her hats are conservative in shape, too. She has found a mode which suits her and seldom varies it.

A band of black satin outlined the brim, but apart from this it depended entirely for its effect on its curves and feathers.

What more terrible tragedy could be imagined than to proudly wear a new gown designed "exclusively" for you by a famous house and be confronted by its exact duplicate worn by your dearest friend?

This is the sad fate of Mrs. William Goadby Loew's tailored suit, and one just like it worn by Mrs. Richard Trimble.

But they both proved themselves thoroughbreds for they accepted the situation gracefully and I even heard Mrs. Loew say, "How very becoming your suit is."

Can you ask a more beautiful example of [illegible] and self control?

I shudder to think what I should have done under the same circumstances!

But then, of course, one can imagine Mrs. W. G. Loew equal to any emergency. She has a poise which many of us might well envy, and she always conscientiously lives up to her name of "Queenie."

That very erect carriage of hers is never allowed to relax, and although we may sometimes gently criticize it in a ballroom we can't but admire it on the box seat of a four-in-hand, where Mrs. Loew handles the ribbons so skilfully.

Fortunately these twin suits were becoming to both the wearers. And they really were very smart.

Striped cheviot was used in their construction—a white ground with narrow lines of gray set rather far apart.

The stripes were cleverly managed on both coat and skirt, but particularly on the sleeves, where they were joined on the outer side to form Vs.

The coats were very trim, being short and tight fitting, with the seams outlined with bias strips of the cloth.

The skirts were bias again—that is, the gores were cut on the bias—and they were short and plain.

Mrs. Loew's hat was simple and suitable, just a large round hat with wings flying backward.

You couldn't imagine a much more decided contrast than between this hat of Mrs. Leow's and one I saw Mrs. Frank Avery wearing not long ago.

Mrs. Loew's hat was, as I said, simple and suitable. Mrs. Avery's hat was anything but simple but it suited her dark eyes and sparkling face to perfection. Made of lace and white satin bows and pink rosebuds, it was a thing to dream of.

It was all of white lace draped over a broad brim and falling well over in front and at the sides. At the back it cascaded down in a regular waterfall of foamy lace nearly to the waist line.

The crown was a puffy tam shape and was dented in on either side of the front with a bunch of pink rose buds and white satin choux. White satin ribbon ran across the front and connected the two rosettes.

A most charming thing. And I'll venture to wager it was not imported with its wearer from Chicago. It had an air which cried "Paris."

This hat reminded me of some fascinating hats of lace and lawn that I have been seeing lately. No doubt you too will see them later on, for they are destined for wear with white lingerie frocks during the hot days which we hopefully believe are coming to stay.

These hats were made with all sorts of captivating frills which fell from the broad brims over the face and were warranted to prove most becoming to the wearer.

The frames were covered with embroidery or embroidery and lace combined. The frills were usually of some delicate lace, Valenciennes or Mechlin.

The bows of colored ribbon, which have done duty as trimming for the so-called lingerie hats for some Summers, are this year entirely superseded by flowers and lots of them on each hat, too.

Sailor hats, the flat, uncompromising English sailor, is going to have "the first call" for wear with tailored linens.

Of course you'll put the ribbon colors of your favorite club around the crown. And although sailor hats are so cheap that there is no hope of making them exclusive, still there's something very trim about them.

We're really getting quite tailored in our tastes again, after going through a long period of utter frivolity in dress.

The French woman has always clung to her white linen collar, even wearing it with elaborate costumes. But until lately the high white collar of linen was a thing tabooed by feminine America. We somehow always associated it with shop girls and housemaids.

What is Correct in Details.

All Winter the women have been looking sweet and fresh with dainty white linen pressing their rounded chins.

This Summer we simplify our lingerie waists, open them in front, discard the elaborate insertions of lace, wear them with a stiff linen collar and immaculate lawn or lace tie and feel ourselves quite "correct."

A white linen lawn waist may have a design of little leaves and flowers delicately applied in green on collars and cuffs and a mere suspicion of yoke may be added in pale pink or blue.

The box pleat with knife pleated frill on either side which gaily trimmed so many waists and which was dubbed Marie Antoinette came to an untimely end by reason of its over popularity. But it was a pretty fashion while it lasted.

To know one's own style and to stick to it and to dress to it is the first requisite in a woman who wishes to make the art of dressing a success.

To the careful observer it's often screamingly funny to see the way the periods are mixed up. An Empire gown will have as an accompaniment a jeweled head dress which Cleopatra might have worn—and other things quite as curious.

But now having found a modiste who understands your particular style get her to design a mode, which exactly suits your lines.

Then have your gowns—all your gowns—made on this mode.

This may sound a bit dull and monotonous but if your dressmaker is a clever one she will know how to vary the trimming, so that while preserving the lines, the effect will not always be the same.

I can assure you many of us are trying this plan and find it works admirably.

Sunday American-Examiner Patterns, No. 301.

A Charming New Over-Blouse That Can Easily Be Made at Home

ONE of the newest and most attractive designs of the season is shown today and will appeal at once to the home dressmaker, as it is very simple and requires so little material for the making.

The beauty of the design is much enhanced by the tucks in sunburst effect that relieve the plainness of the upper part. Prettily shaped sleeve caps are cut in one with the body of the garment and add considerably to the smartness of the model as they give the wide shoulder effect so becoming, and so necessary to present styles.

Suitable reproductions may be had in [illegible], messaline, crepe de chine, [illegible] and linen. For 36 inch bust measure 2 yards of 27-inch material will be required.

The patterns for this over-blouse have been cut to sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure, and to obtain a pattern carefully fill in the printed coupon below and mail with ten cents in silver or stamps to

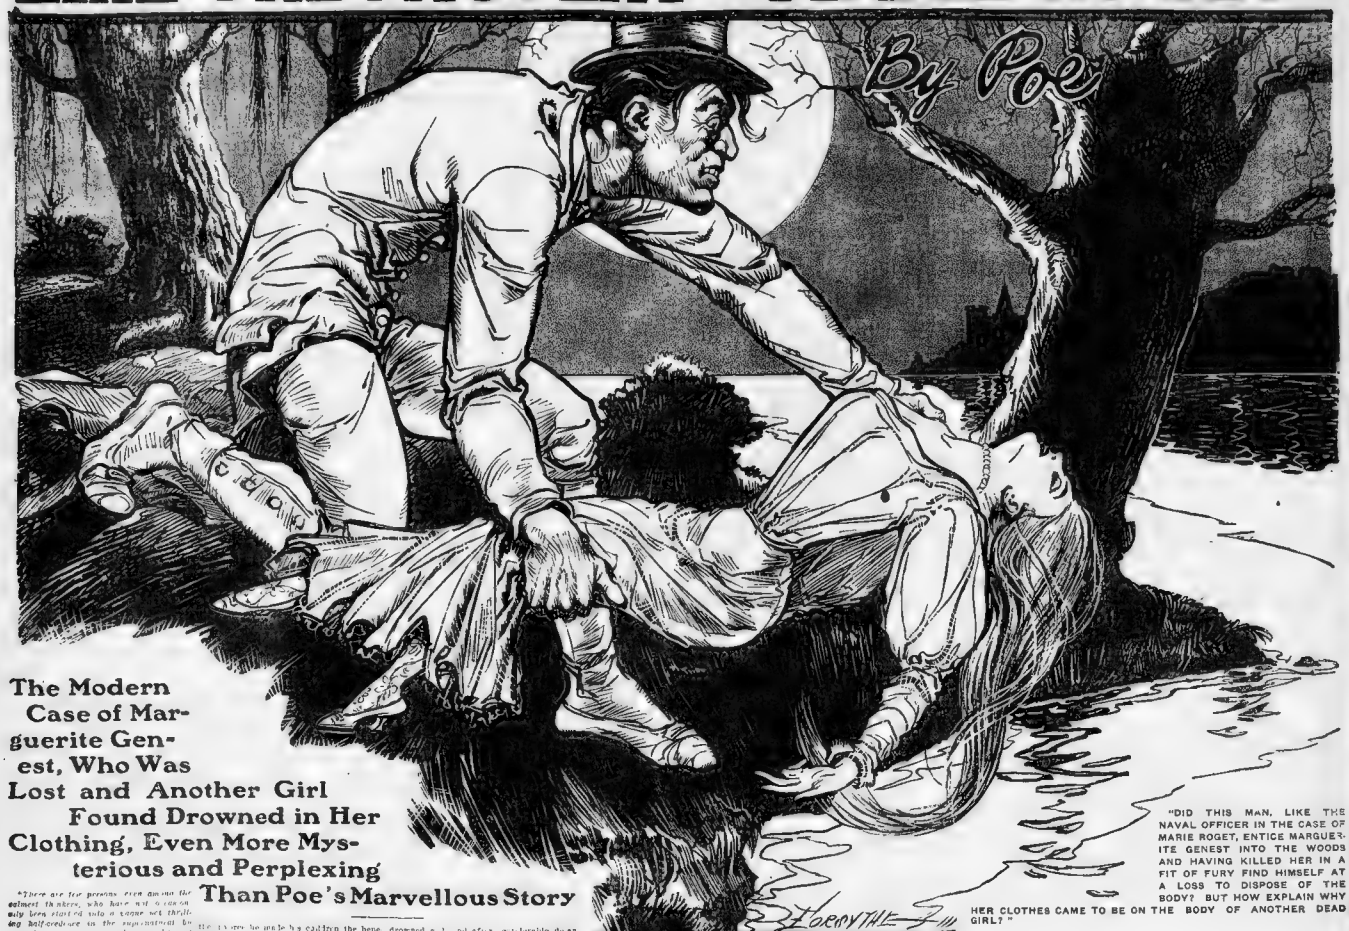
LIKE THE MYSTERY of MARIE ROGET-



The Modern Case of Marguerite Genest, Who Was Lost and Another Girl Found Drowned in Her Clothing, Even More Mysterious and Perplexing Than Poe's Marvellous Story

"There are few persons, even among the calmest thinkers, who have not occasionally been startled into a sense not thrilling but profound, by the suggestiveness of coincidences. Few reflective minds have failed to observe a character that appears to mark the intellect as much when it exists in excess as when it is deficient. The extraordinary analytical power of Edgar Allan Poe."

—From "The Mystery of Marie Roget" by Edgar Allan Poe.

THE mystery of Marguerite Genest, which is now agitating Paris, exhibits extraordinary features, not only of its resemblance to the mystery of Marie Roget," by Edgar Allan Poe.

"The Mystery of Marie Roget" is so peculiar, was a story in which two persons and facts bore a striking resemblance to a young girl named Mary Cecilia Rogers, in New York, as here the scenes in Paris are laid. It seemed to the person reading it that the events in Paris could not be true to make it necessary to invent imaginary explanations to be read.

Mary Cecilia Rogers, a beautiful young girl, was murdered in 1841, a week after her disappearance. Her body was found floating in the Hudson River near her death was the cause of much talk. The pages of his magazine were filled with the banks of the river. The "Mystery of Marie Roget" appeared in print. Poe's detective, Dupin, solved the mystery. Dupin proved from the evidence that the murder was committed by a gang, and not by a single person, as first is often supposed.

Poe placed the murder of his Marie Roget upon the banks of the Seine, and now in search the same scenes in the death, murder and disappearance of Marguerite Genest.

A Tragedy of the Seine

As in the case of Marie Roget, Marguerite Genest disappeared from home and her supposed body was not found until after had been in the Seine a few days. As in the case of Marie Roget, the body found of the girl drowned in the Seine was declared by many not to be that of Marguerite Genest. As in the case of Marie Roget there is no reason to suspect any one, no motive for murder, no enemies against any person, and no explanation of the case, no fact can be suggested to point to or parents.

But, as will be seen, the case of Marguerite Genest contains even more points of and is also on the ill-omen. More amazing and mysterious than any in the case of Marie Roget. If Poe had lived, and Marguerite had sought to surpass even his imagination of crime.

Marguerite Genest was the daughter of Rosert Genest a jeweller doing business in Paris, and living at Satrouville, near Paris. She was his third daughter by his first wife, who died in 1895. Five years later the jeweller married a Madame Cosette from whom, after many quarrels, he was divorced in 1904. He had insured his life in her favor for $20,000, but after the divorce he made his children the beneficiaries of his policy.

A few months after the divorce Genest's eldest son, André, disappeared. He was then fifteen years old. With no apparent reason for leaving home he left his home one evening to attend a drawing class at the Ecole Boule and was never seen again.

The next March Genest married again and sent his children to live with their aunt, Madame Gobert, at Satrouville.

Soon after the second tragedy happened. One Saturday morning Marguerite left the house as usual to take her little brother to school. Her aunt Madame Gobert waited and had asked Marguerite to spend a few hours at the shop since. When he came to Madame Laffitte and told the household harrowing. A Lie for Love

By Madeleine Astor.

IN the drawing-room of a house in Mayfair, Violet Raymond, a pretty, thoughtful-looking girl of some twenty-two years, was sitting anxiously awaiting the arrival of an expected visitor. Presently there was a tap at the door, and a servant entered.

"Captain Walter Grenville, miss."

The girl rose as a tall, bronzed man of about thirty-five came into the room.

"I hope you will forgive me for asking you to call, Captain Grenville," she said with a grave smile. "I heard you were back in London and I felt that under the circumstances you would not think it a ... My aunt, Lady Shenley, has retired with a bad headache, else she would also be here to receive you."

"I am only too glad to be of any service," he responded as he sat down. "In fact, if you had not written I should have ventured to call."

She sat down opposite him. The only previous occasion on which they had met had been at Liverpool three years ago, when he had set sail to take up his command in West Africa. With him had been her brother, young Dick Raymond, then starting his military career as a subaltern, and she and her aunt had journeyed down to see the last of him.

He remembered every detail of the short time he had spent in her company; now as he met her again, after the terrible thing that had happened, his heart went out to her in pity.

"You know what I want to know," she said quickly.

"I only saw your official despatch published in the papers."

"God knows it was hard enough to write," he broke out.

"It was kind of you to say what you did. A gallant and promising officer,'" she exclaimed. "But tell me all, please," she finished pleadingly.

"We were in Sierra Leone when the rising in the Radalita district broke out," he began speaking in a low, disjointed voice. "I was immediately despatched on an expedition to quell it; your brother came along with me, the only other white officer who could be spared. We got up near Acandro and encamped over night on the south bank of the river. In the morning we were prepared to cross; the natives, we understood, were ambushed about two miles away on the other side." He paused. "Suddenly as we began to cross we were attacked by them in the rear. They were in full force, we were surprised and the fighting was desperate. Numbers of our men fell, and it looked as if we were in a tight corner, when Sherston and his ... came up on the opposite bank, ... We dropped flat on our faces and they fired over our heads—the situation was saved."

Grenville shifted his foot uneasily.

"The last time I saw him was some minutes before Sherston came up," he said speaking with difficulty. "He threw up his arms suddenly and staggered backward on the bank."

"Into the river?" she whispered. He nodded.

There was a moment's silence, then the girl rose to her feet. The tears were glistening in her eyes, but she was smiling.

"If it had to be—thank God, he died as he did—fighting at his post!" she cried. "It's something for me to be proud of."

He looked at her steadily.

"Yes, it's good to think that," he said slowly.

She stood before him with shining eyes, for the moment full of enthusiasm. Then it died away and she sank down and covered her face with her hands.

A little later he left with a promise to come to lunch some day with Lady Shenley. He went straight to the rooms which his man had engaged for him in Duke street, Piccadilly. Sinking into an arm chair he buried himself in thought.

"Yes, I did right," he said at last with a sigh. About a week after he received an invitation to lunch at the house in Mayfair, and he went with a curious feeling of eager anticipation. Violet Raymond treated him in the guise of an old friend, and he found the couple of hours spent in her society more enjoyable than anything he had yet experienced. Presently, when he rose to depart, Lady Shenley, who was about to take her afternoon drive, offered to put him down in Piccadilly, and he accepted gratefully.

He sat opposite Violet and Lady Shenley in the open victoria, replying politely to the latter's gay and irresponsible chatter. He formed the impression that while Lady Shenley was kind in her way to Violet, the two had not much in common, and in this he was correct. The girl was built of far more reliable stuff than her light-hearted, pleasure-loving aunt.

"'YOU DID IT BECAUSE YOU LOVED ME,' SHE WHISPERED"

The carriage turned into Bond street and rolled down toward Piccadilly at a good pace. As it swept around the corner there was a sharp cry of warning from the pavement. Walter Grenville sprang up and saw a child running across the road a few yards ahead. She lost her footing on the greasy wood pavement and fell sprawling in the road right in front of the horses. The coachman pulled frantically at his reins, but they were going at full speed. There was a ... yell from the bystanders, then a sudden silence. The carriage swayed to and fro; another second and the horses would have trampled on the child had not a figure darting madly from the curb pulled her from under the horses' hoofs and thrown her out of harm's way. The next moment his foot slipped on the slimy surface, and falling, the pole of the carriage struck him and he was trampled on.

The carriage came to a standstill with a jerk and Grenville jumped out. Already a little crowd had gathered round the prostrate figure as he was carried to the pavement. Grenville pushed his way through and leaned over the man. He was apparently a tramp; his clothes were in rags, his face was thin and gaunt, with some weeks growth of straggling black beard on his chin. From a wound in his forehead the blood was streaming, and he was moaning. As Grenville dropped on one knee beside him he slowly opened his eyes. The officer gave a sudden start, then peered eagerly into the man's face. He rose to his feet quickly.

"My rooms are just opposite—33B, Duke street," he said thickly to the policeman who had just appeared. "Take him there and I will get a doctor at once."

He hurried back to the carriage where Violet was waiting, pale and trembling.

"It's rather a bad accident," he said swiftly. "I'm having him taken to my rooms. You go back now; and I will let you know later how things are."

"A terrible misfortune," exclaimed Lady Shenley piteously. "Everyone is looking at us. Tell John, home at once, Violet."

"Can't I help you?" said the latter anxiously to Grenville. He shook his head.

"I will let you know," he repeated, then gave directions to the coachman, the carriage turned and moved swiftly away.

He approached the knot of people again. Already a shutter had been obtained and the wounded man laid upon it. They raised him carefully and carried him across the road, the crowd of bystanders following curiously. Grenville led the way to the house and opened the door with a latch key.

"Scrivener," he called out to his servant, who appeared in the hall, "there has been an accident; fetch the nearest doctor—quick!"

Scrivener ran off without his hat. The man, now unconscious, was brought in, carried slowly upstairs, and deposited on a bed. A few seconds afterward a doctor arrived, and Grenville was busy employed in giving him assistance. Then, retiring to a corner of the room, he waited until the doctor had finished his examination. At last he rose from his task. He turned and walked over to Grenville.

"Nothing can save him," he said in a low voice. "He has received internal injuries which make it impossible for him to live more than a day at the most. He will regain consciousness again, but if we attempted to move him to a hospital he would die on the way."

"No, he must stop here," said Grenville between his teeth.

The doctor shrugged his shoulders.

"You will not be troubled long," he said picking up his hat and gloves. "You can do absolutely nothing beyond following the directions I have given you; they will but make the hours he has to live more comfortable. Good-bye, I will look in again in the evening."

Grenville accompanied the doctor to the door then went back to the room. At the entrance to it he was met by Scrivener, who had been in and was just coming out. There was a scared look on his face.

"Good God, sir, it's——!" he whispered.

Grenville nodded.

"I know," he said with clinched teeth. "Mind, not a word of this to any one."

He went into the room again and sat by the bedside gazing at the white, pinched face. Suddenly the eyes of the man opened and centered themselves on his face.

"Grenville!" he murmured feverishly. "Of course—who should it be. It's 'forward' in a few minutes now. Oh, my head!" he finished with a moan. Scrivener brought the medicine that the doctor had sent. They gave him a dose and presently he dropped off into a heavy sleep, Grenville watching by his bedside. Later the doctor came in again.

"He may last through the night, but not much longer," he said after another examination. "I have ordered a nurse to come round."

her in anguish. She nerved herself with an effort.

The next morning found the patient still alive but the doctor gave him but a few hours. About 11 o'clock he had a spell of consciousness, and Grenville sat beside him talking to him. Then he grew half ... again.

The door opened and Scrivener appeared, he beckoned Grenville aside.

"Lady Shenley and Miss Raymond have called, sir," he whispered. "Lady Shenley is in her carriage, but the young woman insisted on seeing you, so I have shown her into your sitting-room."

"Stop here," said Grenville with a white face, then strode to the door and opened it. He stepped out and shut it quickly, for the man in his delirium was talking loudly.

He crossed the other side of the landing and opened the door of his sitting-room. As he did so the man's voice suddenly raised itself to a shout.

"Grenville!" he cried.

He stepped hastily into the room and shut the door. The girl had risen from her seat and stood before him, her face white and terror-stricken.

"That voice!" she cried. "It was Dick's!"

She was gazing into his eyes fearfully. Grenville clenched his hands; the veins stood out in his forehead.

"It was Dick's," she repeated. "Oh, for the love of heaven tell me!"

"Yes—Dick's," he said hoarsely. "If you are strong enough come with me. But it's almost death," he added, looking at

"I am strong enough," she said between her shut lips. Without a word he led her across the landing and opened the door. Scrivener started when he saw her, then slipped out of the room noiselessly. The girl approached and gazed at the bandaged head. Then she dropped on her knees beside the bed and took his hand between hers. She pressed it to her lips.

"Dick, Dick," she said with a sob.

The wild delirious look seemed to pass from his eyes. With a painful effort he raised his head.

"My V!" he groaned, the tears starting to his eyes. "Oh, my God that I should have brought this upon you!" He paused to recover his strength.

"Yes, it's a lie that Grenville told in his despatch. I didn't die ... I bolted like a coward. He ... I was in ... ... the ... came ... ... finding them around my ... West ... ... broke and ran ... To this day I don't know ... I simply seemed to go gray with fear. I lost my nerve, lost my manhood. God knows how I did it—I fled ... Grenville saw me do it!" he finished panting for breath.

"Don't ... dear, that's enough!" implored the girl.

"You must hear me through," he went on weakly. "Half a mile further I drew up. For the first time I realized what I had done. If I had had my revolver I should have ... of myself but I had dropped it ... I ... have died with shame. I knew I could not go back, never look a brave man in the face again!" He paused and drew in a tortuous breath. "Somehow or other I managed to get down the coast to Warri. I had a little money with me. I got a passage in a trading brig to Liverpool ... there with a few shillings in my pocket dead to the world, for I found out what Grenville had done for me—bless him! Since then it has been a living hell ... ... job ... But I deserved ... ... honor has no ... ... now, ...——" His ... ... the pillow and ... ... his face. ... stood watching him, not ... ... opened his eyes once again and wetted his lips.

Then when months later that terrible thing happened I realized in a flash what it would mean to you if I let the truth get ... So I thought for hours, then wrote the despatch as you read it." TICK-TACK-TOE PUZZLE BY SAM LOYD

ALL clever little children play the game of "Tick-Tack-Toe," which is often called "Tit-Tat-Toe." There are two players, and while one player marks an X the other marks an O, following each other in turn. Now, the picture shows the two children, Jack and Nellie, playing four games. Nellie is playing O, and Jack is playing the X. When either player has a row of three X's or three O's the game is won by the player who first gets a row of three X's or O's. It is Nellie's turn to play O in all the four games.

Now, we ask our clever puzzlists if they can tell us how many games Nellie ought to win.

Among those who send us the best answers we will distribute 1,000 new and interesting puzzle books. The answers are due on TICK-TACK-TOE PUZZLE, P. O. Box 1551, New York City.

WHAT IS HAPPINESS?

ABOVE is the question of all time, the question in every mind, the question that never can be finally answered—WHAT IS HAPPINESS?

Men and women seek for happiness all over the world. They try to find it in pleasures, vicious or foolish. They try to find it in the gathering together of money. When that fails to bring happiness they look for it in giving away the money, noisily or quietly.

We ask this question and print these pictures not because we expect to answer the question, but because we believe that the discussion is one that will interest thoughtful men and women and one that in stimulating thought will lead to good resolutions.

What is happiness? The child combining unlimited imagination with feeble strength and knowledge looks forward to manhood as the happy time. All of his dreams are to be realized then. He will have power. He will do what he wants, he will be happy—WHEN HE IS A MAN.

The old man who has gone over the road sits and thinks, turns back in his mind to the day when he was a boy and says, "I was happy THEN."

To eager youth happiness is in the future, and to tired age it is in the past.

Does happiness exist ANYWHERE?

Is there on the earth ANY human being that feels himself actually happy? Probably not, unless in the dreary insane asylum, where the shattered mind is mercifully allowed to die away in self-approval.

Men cannot be happy, in the full sense of the word, BECAUSE THEY ARE GROWING, BECAUSE THEY ARE IMPERFECT, BECAUSE DIVINE WISDOM USES OUR LONGING FOR HAPPINESS TO SPUR US ON AND FORCE US TO THE EFFORT NECESSARY FOR THE ACCOMPLISHMENT OF OUR DESTINY.

A little thought makes it clear that men can neither hope for nor reasonably expect happiness in their present state of development.

A child newly born, unable to walk or see or hear, lying helpless on the bed, crying it knows not for what, temporarily contented only when no stomach-ache comes to complicate the milk breakfast, CANNOT BE HAPPY.

And humanity is only a newly-born child. Man looks out at the universe with the puzzled, ignorant expression of a small child when the light is suddenly brought close to its face. Everything that we see astonishes us and proves our ignorance. We are at the mercy of nature's moods, rich when the sun smiles, and poor when rain and frost threaten us.

The human race is like the little child in this picture, reaching an eager hand toward the hole through which streams the light of the Unknown Beyond.

HAPPINESS MUST BE FOUND IN KNOWLEDGE AND THE POWER THAT KNOWLEDGE GIVES. And men are IGNORANT. They know nothing of their destiny. They quarrel and fight among themselves as nations and as individuals. They oppress the weak. Instead of feeling a deep sense of brotherhood and solidarity, instead of working for and with each other as friendly, intimately associated inhabitants of this mysteriously rolling earth, men quarrel like drunken mutineers that have seized upon a ship and fight among themselves for its possession as it carries them across the ocean. There cannot be happiness without generosity and brotherhood. And man, still savage, jealous, envious, over-reaching and heartless, may ask in vain, "What is happiness?"

In a dull and weak way the question has been answered by the hundreds of millions of human beings that have followed the deadening teachings of Gautama. This great religious teacher of India, born in the vile luxury and idleness that kill mind and soul, asked "What is happiness?" centuries ago.

The answer which Gautama gave to his disciples, and which they accept, is included in the word "Nirvana." This Nirvana is the heaven of the Buddhists. It is a heaven of annihilation, of extinction. The submissive, self-studying Asiatic mind can conceive of happiness only in the ENDING OF UNHAPPINESS, in the ending of struggle, of effort and of disappointment in the great, calm sea of Nirvana.

The word Nirvana itself, according to one authority, means "happiness," coming from the word "nibbuta," with which a young girl greeted Gautama on his return to his father's house.

Max Muller says that the word means "the blowing out. * * * The human soul when it arrives at its perfection is blown out, like a lamp." Be the word's origin what it may, it does not appeal to the active, resisting mind of our race, which refuses to admit that life is a calamity, or that happiness can only be found in the ending of consciousness.

We seek happiness during every second of our lives. We have sought it on this earth for a hundred thousand years, and the animals here sought it millions of years before men came.

Thousands and tens of thousands of centuries hence—as long as the sun's heat shall preserve us—human beings will still be seeking for happiness. And they will find it, BECAUSE HAPPINESS IS IN SEEKING, IN TRYING.

If you have time this Sunday morning for quiet thinking, go over in your mind the endless activities and conditions in which human beings think happiness can be found.

We can see a miser's thin hand scratching up the pile of gold. That is his false happiness. And we can see the fat hand of the miser's heir scattering the same gold, still seeking for happiness.

There is one thought in connection with this happiness question that we should emphasize strikingly if we could, and it is this: Divine wisdom, which controls us and reserves for us a destiny of real happiness, works unceasingly TO BRING US TOGETHER AS BROTHERS, LIVING FOR EACH OTHER.

This is proved most beautifully in the fact which every man will admit, that the only happiness in earth which can be called REAL HAPPINESS is found by men and women using their best efforts FOR OTHERS.

Is there anything more beautifully happy than the face of a mother caring for her helpless child? The affection which a mother gives to her child is the most unselfish and beautiful in the world, and there is no doubt that the greatest happiness in the world is found in the devotion of motherhood.

Who is the happy man? Is he not the man who feels that, successful or unsuccessful, HE IS USING HIS POWER FOR THE BENEFIT OF OTHERS?

When Wolfe lay dying, victorious, after the battle of Quebec, he knew that he was dying and that his race was ended. Can you doubt that he was a happy man, happy in the knowledge that he had won glory for his country?

In this same battle died the splendid soldier, Montcalm. He was defeated, but by surprise, not by his own lack of effort. Even in defeat he died in happiness, having done the best that he could do.

Do you suppose that any man selfishly living, selfishly "enjoying himself," piling up profit at others' expense, fattening his body and humoring his palate, could ever know the happiness of a man bleeding to death and going out of the world knowing that he had done right?

Was not Lincoln on his deathbed happier far than any one of the healthy American vultures that were piling up fortunes for themselves, fortunes made out of the nation's trouble, while Lincoln was gladly giving effort and life itself to the nation?

Look wherever you please in history, or among men and women around you—you will find that such happiness as human beings can know always comes from work done, from sacrifices made FOR OTHER HUMAN BEINGS. No man is an individual. He is part of a race. He is doing his duty only when he is working FOR that race. And he is allowed to know happiness only in proportion as he forgets himself and thinks of his fellow-men.

What is happiness? It could be found in self-control. Real self-control is unknown among imperfect human beings.

It could be found in complete knowledge, but complete knowledge is impossible to us limited creatures, knowing of the universe as little as this baby in the picture can know of the outside world by the ray of light that streams in.

Such happiness as we may know will be found in honest, earnest activity of the mind and the body, IN EFFORT FOR OTHERS—for our children, our parents, our fellow-citizens, or, better still, in any of our fellow-men.

A False Prophet.

"Away with prophets, false and vain,
For days and days together;
Long days of hail and snow and rain—
They've all foretold 'Fair Weather.'

"Let Nature be my prophet now,
No scientific warning
Disturbs the robin on yon bough
Who sings of Spring's returning.

"And yet in that high soulful note
Of sunshine, bright and fair,
That swells from his ecstatic throat
And echoes through the air,

"I read a prophecy as true
As any ever told
Of silver dawns and skies of blue,
And sunsets red and gold.

"For how can one by Nature taught
In letters spelled in dew
Prove false, or prophesy of aught
But what is good and true?"

* * * * *

But despite that hopeful lay
Inspiring by nature, lo!
The robin of the dawn of day
Was covered up with snow!

Aesop's Failings.

A lion was caught in a hunter's net in jolly old Aesop's day.
And things looked blue for the K. of B. till a mouse chanced along that way;
But the mouse was a decent sort of a chap so he gnawed the ropes in two,
Till he made a hole that was big enough for the lion to come out through.
But as soon as he found he was free at last, he crushed the mouse to pulp
With a blow of his paw and swallowed him with a single royal gulp!

A frog there was who beheld an ox, and his round batrachian eyes
Were opened with envious wonderment at the monster's mighty size.
And he puffed and puffed, and huffed and huffed, till he grew exceeding fat,
In the hope that perhaps if he tried real hard he would be as big as that.
And, curious thing, he grew and grew with each prodigious puff
Till he bossed the other frogs in the pond on the strength of his nervy bluff.

Made fun of a cricket who never saved a thing for a rainy day.
But the cricket only danced and sang, and often was out all night,
Trying his voice and kicking his heels in the fluttering firefly light;
And the ant was dead from overwork ere he'd half lived out his prime,
While the cricket sang for a thousand a night and couldn't half fill his time.

The moral of all three anecdotes which comprise this truthful song
Is that Aesop, like all of our erring kind, would frequently get off wrong.

Diary of a Worm.

May 1.—Got ten tomato plants and a couple of squash vines. Would have robbed the nest of an egg plant, but it will not lay until November.

May 2.—Frost put the garden out of business, so I had a day off.

May 3.—They're planting more. I've cached away enough seed to plant a forty-acre lot, and am waiting for them to plant more.

May 4.—They set out a lot of ornamental shrubs, and I've wired for my friend Cutt to come and get them.

May 5.—The potato bugs are here on the job, ready to go to work, but nothing doing yet.

May 6.—Got off working to-day. Bit into a pepper plant and spent the rest of the day drinking cold water.

May 7.—The vegetable oysters are out. If they'd planted them in April I might have feasted, but now I'll have to wait till September.

May 8.—Worked all day trying to put a plant out of business and found it was a gaspipe support for pea vines.

May 9.—Spent the day at the dentist's getting my teeth sharpened.

May 10.—Ate a pound of paris green and topped it off with air-slaked lime—never felt better in my life.

May 11.—Got into a dispute with an angle worm about the way to hatch egg plants. Couldn't convince him. Never saw such an obtuse angle worm in my life.

May 13.—New bug's name is Mike Robe. He's a detective sent here to make trouble for us.

May 16.—Sicker.

The Song of the Submarine.

The gale may sweep o'er the vasty deep,
But nothing at all care we;
We go for a cruise through the high-piled ooze
In the depths of the deep blue sea.
We race with the sharks through the shadowy darks,
Where the porpoise's eyes burn green,
And tickle the tails of the bellowing whales
In our frolicking submarine.

Our siren will wail through the coral [illegible]
That has never seen light of day,
And we'll hurtle across the fields of moss,
Where the small sea urchins play
And they'll scatter in fright at our gleaming light
That shows us a path between
The barnacled decks of forgotten wrecks
For our jolly old submarine.

When men have forgot the effeminate yacht
That smiled in the sunlight's glance,
Our craft will seek through the mile-deep reek
For the real and the true romance
In the crags and caves far beneath the waves
Will the fitting fleets be seen
Then ho! for the sea in the days to be
Of the rollicking submarine!

"The moral * * * is that Aesop, like all of our erring kind, would frequently get off wrong."

INSANITY IS INCREASING—THINGS THAT MAY DRIVE YOU CRAZY.

By Dr. G. H. Savage, M. D., F. R. C. P.

WITHOUT being a pessimist, I fear [illegible]

At the present time the subject [illegible] increase of insanity is being very carefully considered in all civilized countries. In all directions, both in the medical and lay press, articles have appeared on the subject, so that I have little doubt that the opinions which are the result of my own experience will frequently be found to coincide with the opinions already expressed by other alienists.

At the outset I must acknowledge my own definite conviction that there is a steady increase in the numbers of the insane, and that this increase shows a definite relationship to the progress of civilization.

I do not myself think that this assumption necessarily implies the hopeless decadence of the race, nor do I think that it furnishes an authentic basis for dread as to the future of the minds and bodies of our successors.

With the multiplication of rules and regulations it becomes more and more difficult to characterize individual groups, but my own particular experience seems to indicate that many cases are attributed rather to social misfits than to material brain disease. In describing these and similar cases I may say that I rely upon my own observation supported by such statistics drawn from official sources as I may find it necessary to employ in connection with the more recognized groups.

First of all, before studying the question of the increase of insanity, it is essential that we should recognize what we mean by insanity.

Of course, I take primarily the medical standpoint, but I have my doubts as to whether the social one is not, after all, the more practically important of the two. We find ample evidence that with no merely medical opinion on unsoundness of mind is the public easily satisfied; no doubt it would often be much better if it were.

Next I will examine briefly into the more generally accepted causes, and endeavor to show if it is possible to find among them any indication of the actual lines of increase. So that, in a word, the question will be, What are the special forms of insanity which are increasing? What are the causes which are more in evidence than they formerly were? And what hitherto unrecognized moral or physical causes are tending to produce or to reproduce mental unsoundness?

To begin with, in judging the conduct of any person supposed to be of unsound mind it must be recognized that similar conduct may arise from totally different disorders or circumstances, and also that the mind is a very complex thing which has many ways of expressing the same feeling.

Take, for example, the exaltation of ideas in a patient believing himself to be a king or a person of distinction. Such an idea may correspond with a temporary increase of pulse rate, and I have seen it prominent or suppressed as the p[illegible]. It may succeed to the loss of judgment as a f[illegible] [illegible] of buoyancy in general paralysis of the [illegible] porary disorder produced by brain poisoning, say by lead or alcohol, or it may be a slow growth in some "mute inglorious Milton" or lonely dreamer, who, possibly building on the "might have been," finally recognizes in himself or herself a scion of royalty or an inspired poet.

Or, again, perhaps in a more advanced stage of degeneration of tissue the patient may have begun by feeling that he was watched or spied upon until at length he discovered that all this was merely the protection essential to the movements of a royal personage—himself. In each case the conduct of the patient is similar, though the underlying ideas are so different.

Similarly, I have often had to point out that what might be a reasonable act in one person would be insane extravagance in another. I mention these facts here because in determining what is meant by insanity or what is to be done for it the circumstances and environment have always to be considered. And, notwithstanding their mutual points of resemblance, no one pathology or treatment is applicable to all such cases.

A question which I am often asked is whether I believe that certain persons only can be driven insane, whether the rest can never be driven mad, whether in regard to these latter anything whatever in the shape of exciting cause will produce definite symptoms without the insane proclivity.

My reply is that almost anyone may have delirium, which is temporary insanity; that almost anyone, given certain physical causes, may have general paralysis. Also, as is sufficiently evident, that with advancing years the powers of the mind, both on the motor and sensory sides, may be impaired or disabled before the other functions of the body.

Yet, notwithstanding this, I still believe there are some persons who can hardly be driven mad by any outside stress or emotional cause. And surely it is worthy of consideration that so many very aged persons retain their senses and reasoning power almost unimpaired until the very last.

On the other hand, that there is a class of persons accurately described as "neurotic" is very evident; and it is equally certain that it is this class which provides the largest number of sufferers from insanity and allied disorders. It is in regard to these that I have stated my belief that there is no ground for supposing the increase to be of an alarming extent.

But it may be well here to consider what I mean by "neurotic," for I find it regarded as such a convenient term that it has frequently been made to include almost any nervous or mental disorder not showing very marked symptoms.

To be civilized, as a sane person, implies the capability of reacting normally to the changing conditions of one's surroundings, so as to interfere as little as possible with the interests, safety and welfare of other persons living under similar conditions.

With increasing complexity there must be an increasing power of adaptation, and, as might be expected, this will often be found associated with a deficient or an undue mobility. It is in this abnormality of reaction to surroundings that we find the true empirical basis of neurosis.

Now this may arise from many diverse conditions. It may be a result of weak, debased or insane parentage, or it may arise from causes which materially interfere with the nutrition of the higher nervous organs, from toxic influences, for example, or from generally debilitating causes, such as excesses of any kind.

The point to consider is whether any of these influences have been acting so forcibly as to render the civilized races at the present time more likely to break down along nervous lines.

The next group to which I call attention is in many ways important and interesting, particularly at the present time, when toxins are the favorite explanation of most morbid states. I would, however, recall what Sutton said many years ago, that though there was doubtless much to be learned from an observation of the relationship between micro-organisms and disease, [illegible] their importance might be overestimated and their operation misunderstood; that just as we live on and were aided by them when healthy, so it was when we began to fail in any direction that the microbes were ready to prey on us.

That mental disorder amounting to insanity may depend upon toxic influences is too well known to require much illustration on my part, yet it is perhaps worth while to note a few of the special forms of disorder which follow intoxications of one kind or another.

First, then, there is generally a progressive affection beginning with the most highly specialized parts leading to defect in the last and most complex attainments. The continuance of such infection leads to further loss of power, and, as Hughlings Jackson has pointed out in his "Factors of Insanity," a letting loose of functions dependent on what he has called the lower or subordinate mental strata.

It is thus that we get with loss of power, restlessness and delirium. A still further exposure to the influences leads to the [illegible] of the functions. The result is a complete parallel to the decay met with in old age, which, I suppose, justifies Metchnikoff in his suggestion that senile changes depend on micro-organisms.

I have already spoken of neuroses and given some description, if not a precise definition, of them; and now, in natural order, I propose to consider the special forms of insanity which may be said to possess this common factor, that they are usually associated with insane or debased parentage.

This class provides the largest number of long-lived residents in asylums, who used to be grouped together as dements. They generally come of insane stock and tend to transmit their neurosis, in one form or another, to their descendants. They are more liable than others to break down under slight stresses; their neuroses appear at the critical periods of life.

These patients show a special liability to relapse after recovery, and, as a sequence, to establish a habit of recurring mental disorder—mania, melancholy, as the case may be. This morbid habit may become more and more organized and pass into regular circular insanity.

The ease with which morbid mental processes are started in such cases is exemplified in the manner in which hallucinations of the various senses appear and develop; having appeared, they lead on in natural order to delusions of various kinds, to some extent colored by the age, sex, education and surroundings of the patient.

But that persons even with fully organized delusional insanity have any specially recognizable affection of their brains I deny. I dare say that in many there is some change of condition and in many also a defect of the highest powers, but as yet I am convinced we shall no[t] learn much even from the most careful observation.

Without being a pessimist, I fear my experience is that such persons are slowly increasing in number and that no amount of drug treatment will have any effect upon them. If any good is to be done it seems to me that it is rather to be hoped for from the methodical and contemned treatment followed in asylums. What cannot be cured must be endured, and I fear that persons suffering from fully organized delusions are as little likely to lose them in many cases as they are to change their features.

With the above we have to consider, as depending upon a neurotic heredity, those who furnish examples of certain, often hidden morbid modes of mental association, persons, in fact, suffering from so-called obsession. No reasoning seems to affect the beliefs or tendencies of these persons, yet in all other relationships their conduct may appear to be perfectly sane.

Why Cremation Is More Civilized Than Burial

THANK God for Progress.

Despite the chaotic conditions about us, despite the greed, the graft, the fraud in the industrial world, the discord and the selfishness in both the ranks of Labor and Capital, and in high and low places, yet the human race is slowly and surely evolving to a better standard [illegible].

The old awful creeds of eternal damnation for infant souls is no longer preached to educated congregations.

In the days of our grandparents, even more recently, Sunday was a day of horror to sensitive young minds, because of the sermons [illegible] from the pulpits, on a revengeful Maker of poor mortals.

Men and women scarcely past the half century mark can relate stories of shadowed childhood, caused by these monstrous creeds, which failed to delineate the love and mercy of the Creator toward His children, but dwelt upon the violence and anger of an offended God. Oh, the pity of such perverted creeds! What an army of atheists [illegible] from fear to unbelief!

[illegible] creeds followed the horrible, inhuman method of conducting the obsequies of the dead.

I recall some of these terrifying ceremonies in my neighborhood when a child. There was one that left an indelible impression upon my oversensitive mind. It was midwinter, and cold winds and snow and bleak skies made [illegible] gloomy beyond description.

The country church was filled with gaping neighbors, some sad faced, some stoic, some curious. The coffin of one of the citizens, a husband and father, cut off in his prime, occupied the central position in the country church. After a long and harrowing sermon the weeping mourners, the cynosure of all eyes, were called [illegible] last farewell of the beloved face in the presence of the audience.

Then there was the removal of the casket to the desolate graveyard, just beside the church, and the terrible lowering of the body into the yawning grave, while the family and friends stood by, until the sound of the gravel upon the coffin struck the tortured ear.

Oh, how can we [illegible] civilized beings when such fright[illegible] [illegible] necessary suffering is inflicted upon the human heart? Time and education are slowly modifying these revolting fashions of interment, and to the progressive and wonderful German race America owes an everlasting debt of gratitude for its introduction of the process of cremation of the dead.

Twenty-[illegible] years ago through the influence of enlightened German American citizens, the first crematory was built in America at Fresh Pond, Brooklyn, and the same sanitary, humane and beautiful method of caring for the cast-off bodies of immortal spirits was legalized.

During that year only eighty bodies were cremated.

During [illegible] month of March alone this year over one hundred passed through the purifying process.

On a bleak March day it became my duty to carry out the always expressed wish of one whose body had long outlived the mind, and who cried for rest as tired children do.

"Never shut me in a grave! Never place me in a vault or tomb! Never let the worms mutilate me! Consign me to clean ashes and give [illegible] back to the elements again," had been [illegible] request, nay, the command of the once brilliant mind for more than a score of years.

And, thank God, the progress of the world made the granting of that wish feasible when the time came.

In a sunny, bright, cheerful room, with a smile upon the tired face, we left the worn frame [illegible] final disposal. There was no torturing sight to behold, no agonizing ordeal to pass through, in watching the body buried. We left the shell, in seeming slumber, knowing the spirit had journeyed on, and as we looked out over vast acres of awful cemeteries close beside the crematory we thanked God anew that there was no yawning grave waiting for that form, and when the morning dawned, with dreary, cold rain, we thanked Him again that a progressive mind had insisted upon its request being carried out, and that by a compliance with this wish we had been saved the ordeal which is called mistakenly "a civilized interment," but which is more barbarous than any heathen rite.

Cruel to the dead, cruel to the living.

Everything purifying and merciful is associated with cremation.

The world must come to this realization. It is coming to it.

I never looked on a grave in my life, of any stranger, without a shudder.

I looked upon the niches where the graceful urns stood on shelves at the crematory without one unpleasant sensation. In one I saw two urns side by side—husband and wife. Were they my parents, how much more beautiful it would seem to me to think of clean, pure ashes in those visible vases than of rotting bodies in rotting caskets under six feet of earth.

And still more beautiful is the thought to those who love for time and eternity of the ashes of two bodies mingled in one vase, while two immortal spirits journey forth together from heaven to heaven, from star to star.

For those who wish their ashes given to the elements there are flower beds about the crematory where they may be scattered.

How much more lovely the thought of deepening the bloom of a rose or a geranium rather than feeding the maw of a worm.

Thank God, again, and yet again, for Progress.

The World Does Move.

Mirandy on Vanity By Dorothy Dix

"LAST Sunday," remarked Mirandy, "Brer [illegible] was away [illegible] conference, an' he axe one of dese here Smart Alec theological cemetery students, what am full of boombosity, an' pomposity, an' superciliosity to fill de pulpit an'—my lan'! he did fill hit, full an' runnin' over.

"He was one of dese new fang-ed preachers whut takes deir text out of de newspaper instid of de Bible—which am a lot safer an' less apt to tread on de corns of de bredderen whut drap de most in de hat—an' he expostulated about de sin of vanity, which he say is women's besettin' weakness, an' he founded his remarks upon dat passage in de evening paper whut tell how de boss man in de Government printin' office has had to take out all de lookin' glasses in hit because de female employes wasted deir time a-peekin' in de mirror to see if dere hair was on straight, or dere skirts an' shut waists ain't missed connection in de back.

"'Here, my bredderen an' sisteren,' says dat boy preacher, a-poundin' de pulpit ontel he made de dust fly, 'here is a awful example of what comes of yieldin' to de deceitfulness of vanity, which sticketh closer dan a brudder, an' whispers flatterin' words which are mostly lies into our ears. An' dis sin, my bredderen, is mostly, I grieves to say, de property of de weaker sect, which is woman. An' what a sin hit is, my bredderen! What drives a man to drink? De vanity of women! What lands a man in de po' house? De vanity of women! What makes women adorn deir bodies, which is nothin' but po', miserable worms of de dust, wid jay bird heeled shoes an' flower bunnits an' de lak? Vanity! Vanity! Nothin' but vanity, an' I specs dat ef we could git a peek into de Bad Place we should see dat hit was paved with bead chains an' silk frocks, an' dese heah follow-me veils.'

"At dat Sallny Sue, whut has got her eye on dat preacher boy, riz right up in meetin' an' grabbed off her new Sunday hat dat he[r] ma done took in house cleanin' to buy, an' screech out, 'Bless Gord for de light, dat hat an' fedders is well nigh sent my soul to hell.'

"An' Brer Abram up in de Amen corner sing out, 'Dat's so, dat's de true word,' an' Sallny Sue look as mad as a wet hen, caze she was a-aimin' at de preacher, an' de preacher went on sayin': 'Let us thank heaven, my bredderen, dat we men ain't afflicted wid vanity, but is dat strong minded dat we is riz above hit. An' now, whilst de choir sings de closin' hymn chune, Brer Abe an' Brer Mike will pass de contribution box, an' I wishes to remind de sisters dat I is in need of a new coat an' some striped britches, an' a plug hat, an' any odder wearin' apparel dat is in style dat de Lawd may see fitten to move dem to give me.'

"Well, as we was goin' along home, Ike up an' grin, an' say sort of keerless lak,

"'De preacher sho' did git you to-day, Mirandy.'

"'Who, me?' I axes, lak I is surprised, 'case I knows what Ike is a-drivin' at, for you ain't married to a man thirty years widout knowin' what he is gwine to say befo' he says hit, but when de preacher preaches dispraiseous I don't never take hit to myself. Nawm, dere's always a plenty to slander you widout you slanderin' yo'self. So I act mighty innocent, an' Ike go on:

"'Yes, he sho'ly did hit de nail on de head when he talk about de vanity of women, an' de sorrer and tribulation hit brings on men. My goodness, I don't know whar I would a-been ef hit hadn't been for de money dat you is spent a-primpin' up dat ole face of yourn an' tryin' to make yo' feather bed figger look slim an' willowy; I specs I would a-been as rich as dat Mr. Rockinfeller.'

"'Humph,' 'spons I, 'I can tell you where you would a-been. You would a-been a-settin' on de back [illegible] a one-room cabin in yo' shut sleeves, a-wonderin' how you was [illegible] git de next meal. An' [illegible] been po', an' ragged, an' dirty, an' filled wid been an' envy of ev'y body dat was better off dan you was. But yo' ain't dat way becaze I wuz too proud to live in a hovel an' too proud to wear skimpy clothes, an' too proud to have folks look down on me insted of up to me, so I wukked, an' I bought t'ings dat you had to wuk an' pay fur, an' here we is; but you wouldn't a-been nowhere 'cep'n, fer my vanity.'

"'But vanity is a great sin, Mirandy,' goes on Ike.

"'Or a great virtue,' I puts in. 'Mos' of de good dat we gits de credit for doin' we does becaze we wants folks to admire an' praise us for [illegible].

"'Whut makes Sis Gabrielle put up so patient wid dat low-down husbun' of hers, dat comes home drunk an' beats her an' takes de money she done bent ober de washtub earnin' to buy red eye? Hits nothin' in dis world but dat she's vain of de reputashun dat she's got as a long sufferin' angel whose pin feathers is beginnin' to sprout.

"'Whut makes Sis Hannah Jane spend her life a-ministerin' to de po' an shif'less? Hit's becaze she laks to listen to de praise of dem what finds hit less wearin' on 'em to tell her how noble an' good she is dan hit is to wuk. All of dese heah philanthropists dat I is eber been up against is got such a appetite for flattery dat you could feed it to 'em wid a trowel an' dey wouldn't gag on a mouthful.

"'An', furdermo',' says I, 'I hear Brer Sim say dat, dat time in de wah when he acts so brave dat he got his name mentioned, dat he was skeered blue, an' de only reason he didn't run was becaze so many folks was lookin' at him dat he was ashamed.'

"'Dem remarks,' 'spons Ike in a toplifticul way—de way he does when I is gittin' de best ob de conversation—'dem remarks is neider heah nor dere. What I says is dat hits a sinful waste of time de way women stands befo' de lookin' glass a-primpin' an' a-smirkin' an' a-smilin' at deyselfs.'

"'De mos' of 'em don't spend enough time befo' deir mirrors,' says I. 'Ef dey did dey'd be a humble an' a chastened lot. Hits not knowin' how we look dat gives us de swell head.

"'De trouble wid women is not dat dey's got too many lookin' glasses, but too few. Ef ever I starts out as a reformer of my sect—which God forbid!—I'm gwine to line de walls of every home wid mirrors, an' when a woman sees how ugly an' onery an' mean she looks when she is handin' her husband back talk an' lambastin' de children, hit will wuk what de medicine advertisement in de back of de almanac calls "a instantaneous cure."'

"'You don't see men a-wastin' de precious moments gazin' at deyselfs in de lookin' glass,' says Ike.

"'I don't blame 'em,' 'spons I. 'I wouldn't eider ef I didn't see no better lookin' pusson dan dey does.'

"'Men ain't as vain as women,' says Ike.

"'Oh, I don't know,' 'spons I. 'Dere's Brer Ben, what wears his hair long an' a flowin' neckie becaze somebody once took him for a minstrel man, an Brer Thomas, whut always tells you what a handsome figger he's got, an' Brer 'Lijah, whut is sixty years ole an' a widower, an' dat is chasin' around to de young gals an' ain't got no suspishun dat dey ain't ready to love him fer hisself alone.'

"'An',' comin' on down nearer home,' I goes on—'I ain't a-namin' no names—I is heerd of a man whut has to always hab de fust show at de lookin glass, an' dot I 'is kotch smilin' mighty affable an' perlite at his own picture.'

"'Ef you means me,' says Ike, gittin' sort of hot in de collar, 'I likes to look at a pussonable man, an' I likes to hab a pussonable man look at me.'

"'An', mo'over,' I goes on, 'when anybody calls for a good looker, I sees him sorter start up to answer to de name.' But at dat de conversashun sorter warmed up, an' in de fambly argyment dat follered me an' Ike bof lost our temper an' some of de furniture. But after things had calmed down, an' I swept up de remains of two cheers an' some of de dishes, an' Ike had sorter dozed off to sleep, I jabbed him in de ribs with my elbow an' say, fer I'se a just woman an' ready to acknowledge I'se wrong when I is wrong:

"'Ike,' I say, 'I admits dat women is vainer dan men, becaze ef anythin' would improve my looks lak shavin' does yours I'd do hit ev'y day ef hit skun me alive.'"

"What I says is dat hits a sinful waste of time de way women stands befo' de lookin' glass a-primpin' an' a smirkin' an' a-smilin' at deyselfs."

"A GOOD LISTENER USUALLY WINS"

TWO years ago Mrs. Ella Rawles Reader of New York was brought into the limelight of publicity by her connection with an international intrigue by which she was to have assumed control of affairs in Santo Domingo. Investigation brought out the fact that she had for years been juggling successfully in high finance and politics with a skill that amazed millionaires and diplomats.

A year later she was brought again before the public by entering suit against J. B. Haggin for $3,150,000 for slander and defamation of character.

In January of this year, Mrs. Reader's husband, Athole B. Reader, was indicted by the federal grand jury for perjury in sixteen counts.

A few weeks ago Mrs. Reader came to Boston and organized the Copper Basin Mining & Smelting Company, of which she is president. Last Monday she gave the stockholders of this company a banquet in Boston. At that time this remarkable young woman was interviewed as to her ideas of business success, by Eleanor Ames.

By Eleanor Ames.

WHATEVER the future holds for Ella Rawls Reader, present day history must set her down as the greatest business woman in the world. And that rating—broad as it is—fails to be thoroughly comprehensive. There are many great business women in the world, but it is not enough to say that of them all Ella Rawls Reader is the greatest, because she is so very much more.

She is the equal of the most daring, shrewdest and successful business man and even that fails to [illegible] place her, for she has put through business deals that no man would have thought possible or worth while attempting. To say that she is the most unique and interesting figure in the financial world only half-defines her position, which is so unique and interesting and unusual that it creates a new plane of business success.

At thirty-five years of age Mrs. Reader is president of several many-millioned mining companies; is building a railroad of her own, has juggled with financial and commercial schemes in nearly every civilized country; has come within three days of being the head of the government of Santo Domingo; has aroused the keenest wits of such financial kings as J. Pierpont Morgan, and set them hustling as they never hustled before to stop her grasp of their pet territories, and has brought the Big Stick at Washington into active use, because of her wholesale financial and political enterprise.

It was during Mrs. Reader's last visit to Boston that I spent an hour with her in her apartments at Young's Hotel.

And after acknowledging all this, Mrs. Reader half-smiles, half-shrugs her shoulders in a semi-deprecatory manner, and says: "But I'm really not half as clever as I ought to be."

[illegible] Naturally, Boston could not expect to forever remain neglected by this queen of finance. A long time ago it attracted her attention. She made several modest visits here. More than once the papers failed to note her presence. Perhaps those were the times that she worked hardest. Mrs. Reader's greatest work has been done most quietly.

Finally, it was announced that Ella Rawls Reader had been elected president of a new copper company, of which most of the stockholders were Bostonians, and to celebrate that event the new president called the stockholders together the other night at Young's Hotel and played hostess at a dinner of over 200 covers.

"I feel that I like to know the people in my company personally," she explained. "We are all working together and it is pleasant to have a mutual acquaintance."

When I saw her, the morning after the dinner, she was posing for the photographs that accompany this story. In that posing she showed with striking force the signal traits of her remarkable nature, her perfect poise and her absolute simplicity. She neither fidgeted nor explained nor objected nor apologized. She just posed, posed without waste of words or gestures, without useless smiles or grimaces. She sat at a desk with a great cluster of red roses forming a background for her fair hair. Pink roses and sweet peas flaunted their odor and beauty before her.

And this is the picture of the world's greatest business woman. She is tall, quite five feet ten inches, and generously proportioned, while entirely escaping heaviness. Her face is strong, sweet and calm. Her features are regular, the nose slightly aquiline, the mouth straight. Her light brown hair, worn in an unwaved pompadour, is drawn into a figure eight and coiled below the crown of her well-shaped head. Her complexion is charmingly fresh and ever so slightly pink, her voice soft and sweet, her eyes blue, with a glint of steel gray, or gray with the softness of blue, whichever way you look at them, and always inscrutable.

Frequently in talking Mrs. Reader smiles, showing even white teeth. That smile is the only change in her face. And the smile does not materially change the face. She may be planning the greatest financial move in the world, or she may only be thinking of the roses on your hat. Her face tells you nothing.

Ella Rawls Reader has known trouble. She had an unhappy early marriage; she nearly starved in New York; she has had her dearest plans thwarted at the very moment of triumph.

She has known much joy. She has a husband whom she adores—she says so—and she has succeeded beyond all dreams of ambition. Her face shows neither great sorrow nor great joy. It is absolutely calm and non-committal. But she has more magnetism than twenty average women. And this is the woman who frankly says she is not as clever as people think.

"Overrated," She Says.

"I am most terribly overrated by my friends," she confesses. "They think I could accomplish anything. If I had been as clever as they think I am, I should now be at the head of Santo Domingo. I should not have trusted my lawyer. I should never have allowed Theodore Roosevelt to trip me up as he did."

Was there the ring of anger or disappointment in her voice? If so, no ear could detect it. She might just as well have said, "It will rain to-morrow." And, by the way, if Mrs. Reader should say, "It will rain to-morrow," you would believe it. Her simple frankness carries its own conviction.

"What are the greatest essentials to business success?" I asked her.

"There are so many things," she replied, quietly. "Of all, I think optimism and persistence are the greatest. You must always believe you are going to win. And you must never give up until every way has been exhausted. If you keep working and hoping and being determined to win [illegible] proved how many ways [illegible] she added her [illegible] together thoughtfully [illegible] being a good listener. A good listener always brings his own audience.

Silence Beats Argument.

[illegible]

A business woman should learn to [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] She [illegible] diamond [illegible]

Her only jewels, the day I saw her, were two solitaire diamond rings and a diamond wishbone brooch.

"My wedding present from my husband," she said, "and this," touching a curious green pendant, "a bit of copper ore given me by my newest company."

"My newest company," spoken as lightly as though it refered to a new blouse or a hat. There was the same lack of being weighed by her cares and responsibilities when she referred to "my new railroad that I am building in Nevada."

Railroad of Own.

"It makes me very happy," continued the smooth, even voice, "to feel that, after all, I am to have a railroad of [illegible] You know, building a railroad from Mobile to Birmingham, in Alabama, was my earliest dream. I had it almost commenced and the plans almost completed to go to Paducah, Ky., and then to Chicago. J. Pierpont Morgan stopped it. Perhaps it has been all for the best, for I did all I could to make it a success. Now I am to have one hundred miles of my own road in Nevada, instead of Alabama, and I don't believe even the Big Stick can reach me there."

A moment later she referred to the fact of bringing European capital over here to [illegible] plans. Influencing the millions of any country to flow her way is apparently a simple feat in the Rawls Reader philosophy.

"I know myself," Mrs. Reader announced with decision. "That is a great help. Then I am never carried away by the importance of any business or any individual. If I were to live my life over from the very beginning I wouldn't live a day different from what I have. I do the best I know how for myself and for every one concerned. No human being can do more. When I look back I have no remorse and no regrets."

I glanced up quickly. Her calm eyes were fixed on mine earnestly. Her face was unchanged.

"'No remorse and no regrets,'" I repeated. "That is a great deal to say, Mrs. Reader. In all my life I have never heard anyone say that. I cannot quite understand the feeling. We do so many things on impulse and we are so sorry the next minute."

"I don't act on impulse," she explained, "and I do mean it. I have always done my very best. I have no remorse and no regrets."

"Then you have no nerves," I said. "You are not temperamental."

Never Nervous.

"I am not nervous," she agreed, "I never lose control of myself. I get very tired [illegible] I [illegible] health, and [illegible] strong [illegible] because I take such good care of myself. I keep the most regular hours and eat the plainest food and lots of onions. Onions are health-givers. They cure indigestion, they purify the blood, they calm the nerves. They are so soporific [illegible] raw [illegible]

[illegible]

"What is your ambition now?" I asked. "More [illegible] more [illegible]"

"[illegible] indeed," she answered. "A great big farm [illegible] country house [illegible] of children. I love children and I hope some day to have some [illegible] I [illegible] achieved [illegible]

"And business——

Love a Great Requisite.

"Oh, when you get business well [illegible] One [illegible] hold in companies without giving up all one's time. There is time for everything one really wants to do."

Another smile and as I left a hearty hand clasp, both of Mrs. Reader's firm, strong hands closed over mine.

"I am so truly glad to have seen you," she said with that simple directness which stamps even her simplest utterance.

"You must be so proud of your brilliant wife," I said to Mr. Reader as we waited at the elevator.

"I love her," he said. "That is more than just being proud."

And that remark gives light upon another side of the nature of the world's greatest business woman, for as we chatted she told me that love was as necessary to her as air.

"I must be loved," she said. "When I was working in New York, the making of a big contract down town was not nearly so much as to have my mother take me in her arms and make a fuss over me. When I was a child at home I used to cry and say 'Nobody don't love me,' if I was in the least neglected.

"When I was married to Mr. Reader, mother told him he had taken a 'big baby' on his hands.

"Yes, I can fight the business world all right, but I must have love and devotion to run home to when it is all over."

MacManus Calls Up O'Connell's Words.

Quotes Irish Liberator's Words on Home Rule; Tribute by Sir Wilfred Laurier.

By Seumas MacManus.

Seumas MacManus, noted as author and lecturer in two continents, today presents another of his interesting articles in his series being written for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. There is, perhaps, no more competent or interesting writer on conditions in Ireland than Mr. MacManus, who speaks with the force of the close student of years, and also with the warmth of a native's love for his Emerald Isle. In this, his fifth article, Mr. MacManus touches on general subjects that claim the attention of the "exiled Celts."

SIR WILFRID LAURIER, when in England at the late conference of Colonial Prime Ministers, publicly referred on two occasions to the great influence which Daniel O'Connell had upon his career. He had sat, he said, at the feet of O'Connell, "one of the men who had made the English Parliament illustrious."

It is, alas, to be feared that it was because Daniel O'Connell made the English Parliament illustrious that he never lived to make an Irish Parliament illustrious. In '45, in the great debate upon the repeal of the union, Daniel O'Connell gave utterance to some words that came in opportunely for reflection when England's self-governed colonies sent their Prime Ministers to meet in London. The great O'Connell then said:

"The thirteen States of America before the revolution had each a local parliament. Nova Scotia has a local parliament; Newfoundland, Jamaica and several of the West India Islands had their local parliaments. A local parliament is perhaps springing up in the Cape of Good Hope, so that from the British [illegible] British dependencies are allowed to have a parliament. There is one everywhere except in our native land. We are the only stigmatized and degraded country under English dominion, although it is in direct violation of every principle of the British constitution."

Plunkett Misguided in Attack on the Church.

Horace Plunkett has been deposed from his position as head of the Department of Agriculture in Ireland unfortunately by our own Irish members of Parliament, deposed. His place will probably be filled by a good Scotchman. Plunkett was not an ideal Irishman from our point of view, but he was a sincere and well-meaning one, who accomplished much good and advanced the material side of the Irish cause.

He was not [illegible] a man above [illegible] He did not believe in having Ireland independent [illegible] or even in having it nearly independent, but he was a great [illegible] upon the "deadheads" [illegible] has usually furnish to us. He served Ireland and the Irish people, and he gave many years of his life and much of his money to their uplifting.

All good Irishmen [illegible] at home and abroad must lament the death of Dr. John Kells Ingram, who passed away at the mellow age of eighty-four. Dr. Ingram was a professor in Trinity College, Dublin, and was a voluminous writer on economics. The great body of our people, though, neither knew nor valued his economic treatises and for them his fame will live in one blest verse, the stirring:

"WHO FEARS TO SPEAK OF '98."
"Who fears to speak of '98,
Who blushes at the name?
When cowards mock the patriot's fate
Who hangs his head for shame?
He's all a knave or half a slave
Who slights his country thus;
But true men, like you, men,
Will fill your glass with us."

William O'Brien runs a paper of his own known as The Irish People, because the Freeman's Journal refused to report all of his speeches and to print all of his letters in full. No nightmare of an editor's blue pencil disturbs him. Here are his views of recent events in Ireland, taking verbatim from the latest view of The Irish People:

"This has been a black week for Ireland. It has been marked by the definite shunting of devolution and the absolute stoppage of land purchase. It is impossible that such a state of things should not create the deepest concern and even consternation among Irish Nationalists. We are simply [illegible] with the utter defeat and disappointment of the nation's hopes. All the ground won by years of suffering and [illegible] has been [illegible]

"Mr. Redmond and Mr. Dillon have been obliged to warn the country that their [illegible] predictions in the past [illegible] realized. Ireland has ceased to count in the Imperial parliament. The Irish party are powerless to do anything but evil. The Cabinet makes its plans without consulting in the slightest degree the wishes of the Irish leaders.

"The great Irish measure from which so much was expected has been placed on the shelf, from which it may be taken down for the purpose of getting a first reading, but on which it will be again immediately replaced.

Says Tenants Abandon Hope of Owning the Land.

[illegible] as if this were [illegible] the workings of the act for the [illegible] of landlordism is to be suspended. The campaign carried on against it so long by Mr. Dillon and the Freeman's Journal has at last been successful. The supplies necessary for its operation are to be cut off. Instead of being able to purchase their land, the Irish farmers have now been invited by their parliamentary representatives to enter the land courts.

"The great movement of the past quarter of a century is confessed to have been a fraud. The tenantry of Ireland have no option but to abandon the hope of becoming the owners of the land they till. The Irish party have blocked the way, and the government has only shown itself too willing to fall in with their designs."

GREW MISS CARROLL'S HAIR

PROVE IT

Beautiful Hair At Small Cost.

MISS J. CARROLL
2307 Irving Ave., Chicago.

WITHIN the last decade great and rapid strides have been made in Materia Medica. Many diseases that were considered incurable fifteen years ago are now cured in a few days, and in many cases prevented altogether. The scientists of late years have been delving for the cause, the foundation, the reason and the starting point of disease, fully realizing that the actual and true cause must be ascertained before the remedy can be located. Hair troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp, and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment, and when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all of its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions).

The natural and logical thing to do in either case is, feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is identical with the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp. It feeds and nourishes the hair and does all the work originally carried on by the natural nutrients or life-giving juices generated by the scalp itself. It penetrates the pores of the scalp quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One twenty-five-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself. Now on sale at every drug and toilet store in the land. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00.

FREE To show how quickly Danderine acts we will send a large sample free by return mail to any one who sends this advertisement to the Knowlton Danderine Co. Chicago, with their name and address and 10 cents in silver or stamps to pay postage.

How to fool a lazy Liver with Artificial Exercise

EVERY serious Sickness has a small beginning.

And, in nine cases out of ten, that beginning is made in the Bowels.

Constipation is the beginning of most diseases. It paves the way for all others.

Lack of exercise, hasty eating, improper food, are its first causes.

Laziness, and postponement, permit it to grow into Chronic Constipation, which means life-long Discomfort.

It isn't necessary to be sick-a-bed, you know, in order to be mighty uncomfortable.

Even a slight Indigestion affects the nerves, dulls the mind, and obscures the merry sunshine of Life.

The time to adjust the Bowels is the very minute you suspect they need adjustment.

—If your tongue is slightly coated,
—If your breath is under suspicion,
—If your head feels a trifle heavy or dull,
—If digestion seems even a little slow,
—If Heartburn, Belching, Colic or Restlessness begin to show themselves,
—That's the time to eat a Cascaret.

It acts as pleasantly as it tastes. It is as congenial to your Bowels as it is to your Palate.

It stimulates the muscular lining of the Bowels and Intestines, so that they mechanically extract nourishment from the food and drive out the waste.

The only way to have Cascarets ready to use precisely when you need them is to carry them constantly in your pocket, as you do a Watch or a Lead pencil.

The ten cent box of Cascarets is made thin, flat, round-edged, and small, for this precise purpose. 740

JMMER SEASON SHOWS IN BOSTON

"Music Master" Returns, and "Hurdy Gurdy Girl" Begins a Run.

WARM weather shows are the rule now, and a fine evidence of it is the opening here of a new musical comedy, "The Hurdy Gurdy Girl," at the Tremont. "The Time, the Place and the Girl" is shifted to the Colonial for a run and the stock companies are putting on popular productions. David Warfield returns in "The Music Master" to the Majestic. The vaudeville houses are [illegible] bills. Here are this week's shows:

Tremont Theatre

R[illegible] Carle [illegible] present [illegible] mont [illegible] time "The Hurdy Gurdy Girl." He [illegible] it "a play with music," the play being [illegible] [illegible] Stone [illegible] tere, Albert Adams, J. H. [illegible]

"The Hurdy Gurdy [illegible] and sentimental [illegible] ing dramatic [illegible] the Summer [illegible] the sixteen [illegible] jority are [illegible] chorus work [illegible] Mr. Carle's [illegible] the impres[illegible] and is unfolded in [illegible] York city and at a [illegible] mont, being [illegible] of a Fifth avenue mansion. These [illegible] offer variety for the stage manager, the scenic artist and the costumer.

"The Hurdy Gurdy Girl" is Mr. Carle's first important venture in which he has not written a part for himself.

Majestic Theatre

At the Majestic Theatre, beginning to-morrow night, David Belasco will present for an engagement of two weeks David Warfield in "The Music Master," the tender drama of smiles and tears. Boston theatregoers laughed and cried with "The Music Master" last October when Warfield gave his first presentation here of the lovable old German musician. The engagement beginning next week will positively be Mr. Warfield's last [illegible]. The Music Master." Next season Mr. Belasco will open his new theatre The Stuyvesant, now being built in New York for his exclusive use, with Mr. Warfield in a new play. No telephone orders for seats will be received during this engagement.

Colonial Theatre

The time—to-morrow evening.

The place—the Colonial Theatre.

The girl—same girls—who would want any prettier ones?

To-morrow will see the moving of "The Time, the Place and the Girl" from the stage at the Tremont, which has been its home for the past four weeks, to that at the Colonial. Never was there a comedy from the West which won a more instantaneous success than this. Arthur Deagon will be there and will play poker and sling slang just as he has done so incessantly in the past. Georgia Drew Mendum and all her "patients" will be there, and it will be practically another "first night." In short, it will be a gala night for everybody connected with "The Time, the Place and the Girl."

Park Theatre

Miss Lillian Lawrence and her company will give Pinero's charming comedy, "The Gay Lord Quex," at the Park Theatre this week. In response to Miss Lawrence's [illegible] to allow the [illegible] be produced this week [illegible] Quex" received more than [illegible] number of requests [illegible] played the [illegible] success [illegible] not to have [illegible] formance in a body in full regalia and accompanied by a band. The theatre is to be draped in the national colors in their honor. "The Little Gray Lady," by Channing Pollock, author of [illegible] is now in preparation for the week of June 10.

Globe Theatre

It was an exhibition of wise foresight that prompted Mr. Craig [illegible] "The Darling of the Gods," and it was but another instance of keen knowledge of what the theatre-going public likes and wants. All this past week this beautiful and elaborate Belasco melodrama has been played to capacity business at the Globe [illegible] and as a stock week by no means sufficed for those who were anxious to see it, Mr. Craig wisely decided to continue it for another week with the usual matinees on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. Apart from the superb production in which the play is staged the acting has been favorably compared to that of the original production. Miss Young has won the most superlative praise for her acting of Yo-San; Mr. Craig's Kara is a superb piece of work. The advance sale is very large.

HATTIE EARLE LADD, CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE. DAVID WARFIELD in "THE MUSIC MASTER," MAJESTIC. CHARLES MILLER, LILLIAN LAWRENCE CO., PARK.

LILLIAN LAWRENCE is thinking of organizing a society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Actors. She is not alone in the belief that "two a day," as the stock company plan is known, is unnecessary. It is not conducive to good acting on the part of overworked actors. "One cannot do intelligent work when he is worn out. I know that when I had to play two a day in Boston I found myself walking in my sleep [illegible] the headboard, thinking it was [illegible]. No person can stand the strain of a rehearsal from [illegible] in the morning until 12 and many times until 1 o'clock, a performance in the afternoon and one in the evening, [illegible] two different plays [illegible] the time, and learning [illegible] each week. If ever I am [illegible] I would abolish all matinees but [illegible]. Then the actors can [illegible] give of their very best to the [illegible] front."

I HAVE often wondered if those who occupy the seats at a vaudeville house ever think of the work done by the stage manager in getting from ten to fourteen different acts in running order. He has a most intricate problem every Monday afternoon. Imagine the scenery, properties, musical scores and [illegible] for [illegible] different acts [illegible] dumped down upon a stage at [illegible] o'clock Monday morning. The bill must be mapped out so that there shall be no stage waits, so that it shall conflict with another and so that it shall balance well. Each act must have a rehearsal Monday morning, the stage hands must learn their "cues," and everything be shipshape at the rise of the curtain in the afternoon. It is remarkable that Stage Manager McCarron of Keith's and Stage Manager Sullivan of the Orpheum are able to retain their reason in [illegible] their wits, but they do it. Mr. McCarron celebrates his twenty-seventh year as a stage manager to-day, I believe.

THAIS LAWTON, the unusually talented and very popular leading woman of the Castle Square stock company, has been honored by having a book of poems dedicated to her. The author is Alexander James MacDonald of this city, who says in his dedicatory paragraph:

"With what a torrent of Shakespearean eloquence has Boston been flooded during the season just closing! Mantell, Mansfield, Viola Allen, Novelli, Sothern, Marlowe, Bernhardt and last and youngest but by no means least Thais Lawton. I will venture to predict that this young woman, if she chooses to continue in the art she so finely illustrates, will occupy as high a plane of dramatic excellence as any of the above-named artists if not higher. It is seldom such genius, such personal beauty, such winning personality are united in one individual. In sincere admiration of Miss Lawton's vivid portrayal of many phases of human nature and particularly Shakespearian character, I dedicate to her this unworthy volume of verses."

Mr. MacDonald shows a marked originality not only in the verses in his volume but in his attitude toward the public which may read them. He expresses himself as entirely indifferent as to whether the public approves of them. "A people," says he, "that keeps buildings and pugilists in luxurious affluence and has on its national escutcheon the blot of having let its supreme poet (Edgar Allan Poe) die in want and disgrace is not a people to appeal to in a poetical way."

This will be Pauline's [illegible] Boston. He is [illegible] Wood, Mosher and [illegible] for novelty [illegible] New moving pictures will be seen.

Hollis Ends Season

With [illegible] night of the engagement of Cyril Scott and his company in "The Prince Chap" at the Hollis Street Theatre the regular [illegible] year at that house came to an end. The season has seen a [illegible] and has included visits of distinguished players from the other side of the Atlantic and the presentation of plays [illegible]. The year began on Labor Day, and was two weeks longer than usual.

Lyceum Theatre

The stock company will offer another new bill to-morrow. The two farces are [illegible] "Patsy's Vacation" and "Patsy's [illegible] Hotel." Vaudeville will [illegible] Hilda Hawthorn, soprano; [illegible] Banks, character entertainer; [illegible] Williams, ventriloquist; Billy Barlow, comedian, and moving pictures by Bohannon. Belle Travers, the principal burlesquer, has become a big favorite with the patrons.

Palace Theatre

Stronger and better [illegible] than ever, the stock company at the Palace can this week be seen in a varied entertainment. For this week the laughable first part is entitled "Skinner Horn's Boy," and the burlesque is "Who Owns the Baby?" That clever comedian T. F. Thomas, will be seen in the leading role in both. The feminine roles will be in the hands of Mae Bryant, Marion Martell, Carrie Barry, Lillian Waters [illegible] Boyden [illegible] vaudeville [illegible] West [illegible] John Black [illegible] the Palacescope.

Craig's Next Play

The second week of "The Darling of the Gods" at the Globe Theatre has necessitated the postponement by the John Craig company of "The Girl I Left Behind Me" for [illegible] week. Rehearsals are well under way. The play deals with life in the West during the time when the red men were a terror to the settlers.

Bowdoin Square Theatre

"A Child of the Slums" is to be the offering at the Bowdoin Square Theatre this week. This production has been seen in Boston [illegible] and it is always a great favorite [illegible] It deals with the fortunes of a [illegible] is cleverly written and [illegible] It is a melodrama which appeals [illegible] to grown up city folks most of whom had to win their way through life by hard work and tact. It points a moral to young and old. There is elaborate scenery and a number of mechanical and stage effects. The regular Bowdoin Square Stock Company, headed by pretty Charlotte Hunt, will produce this melodrama.

SUNDAY CONCERTS IN TWO THEATRES

Bowdoin Square and Orpheum Offer Fine Programs at Popular Prices.

The usual sacred concert will be given at the Bowdoin Square Theatre to-night. George B. Alexander heads the list. Reed and Shaw will follow. Others are Gertie LeClair and her pickaninnies, Tom Hefron and his friend "Crow," [illegible] comedians, Mark [illegible] juggler, Sidoons [illegible] the Tippinettis, Joe Ens, [illegible] comedian, and Walter Flynn.

The Sunday night concert at the Orpheum will include [illegible] Cree [illegible] Wordette & [illegible] Mayme Remington [illegible] Netta Vesta, the [illegible] troupe and others.

Howard Athenaeum

The Old Howard has an enticing bill this week. Al Anderson and [illegible] Goines, the "copper colored" comedians; Millard Brothers, cyclists; Lee Tung Foo, Chinese baritone, and Chefalo and Capretta, comedy [illegible] are at the head of [illegible] There has been a reorganization of the female minstrels. G. B. Alexander, Jerry Myers and Fred Bowman will work with the girls in a skit called "The Barber's Revenge," which Mr. Alexander [illegible] Marron and Marron, eccentric Irish humorists, the Biondis, novelty contortionists, Butler and Lamar, sketchists, Sandow and Lambert [illegible] The Howard's [illegible] of new pictures. The Howard burlesque is prettier, busier and [illegible] than ever.

Stage Notes

Henry Alexander [illegible] made a big name for himself in [illegible] parts at the Bowdoin Square Theatre, in such roles as Shylock, Sidney Sherwood, etc., has signed a contract to play the only straight dramatic role in the musical comedy, "The Girl from Vassar," this Summer.

John Black, the rube comedian, who made such a hit last season in the Palace Theatre Stock Company, is a strong acquisition to the present organization and will appear this week in a clever specialty.

It remained for a Bostonian to utter the prettiest tribute to Warfield and "The Music Master." The Boston star was referred to as "the embodiment of pathos" and the play "the exquisite comedy of smiles and tears." This critical epigram has endured.

S. J. Simmons, past commander of the Charles Russell Lowell Post, No. 7, G. A. R., has been engaged to lecture in "Battle Abbey" at Wonderland. Commander Simmons participated in early all of the battles shown in these famous paintings by Paul Philippoteaux and consequently is enabled to point out the chief personages and points of interest in every one.

Edwin Trevor, who recently closed a successful engagement with Theodore Kremer's company at the Fourteenth Street Theatre in New York has joined the Bowdoin Square company to play "heavies." Mr. Trevor is one of the best known heavies in the profession.

The "Way Down in Mobile" company at Austin & Stone's presents an interesting series of [illegible] living "half tones." In color blending there are ecru, meerschaum, brown and charcoal, and this aggregation of light-tones colored folk from the South [illegible] Junoesque quadroons, dainty [illegible] maidens and other dusky belles and dashing beaux by the dozen.

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew are to begin a three weeks engagement at Keith's Monday, June 10. They are to change their sketch each week, commencing with "A Yellow Dragon," followed by "Billy," then new sketch with the playlet for the final week yet to be selected.

THE Darling OF THE Gods

Never Before Offered at Popular Prices. Record Breaking Business

There is no limit to Mr. Craig's aspirations for his players. Even to those who have before now realized the versatility of the Craig Company this presentation of "The Darling of the Gods" was a delightful surprise. The role of Yo-San is one far beyond anything Miss Young has before attempted and she rose to its heights with a sure touch that was most satisfying and aroused great enthusiasm.—Transcript.

Not a detail in the scenic production, the costuming, the atmosphere or even in the musical embellishment was lacking, and it was finely acted. Mary Young, who played the title role, was a surprise to everyone.—American.

That Mr. Craig's players presented the play in so commendable a fashion is a great tribute to a stock company. Ample justice was done the scenic environment, for the settings were elaborate and quaintly Japanese and the costuming elegant.—Globe.

The entrancing drama, breathing the atmosphere of the land of the chrysanthemum, full of pathos and mystery, a beautiful story, accompanied by beautiful stage settings, and presented by a fine cast filled the house.—Herald.

HONOLULU RATING BAD FOR CHORUS

Richard Carle's Wise Idea in Testing Voices Saves Girls' Feelings.

HOW RICHARD CARLE IS WISE.

To avoid hurting the feelings of applicants for chorus positions he adopts a peculiar plan in testing their voices.

Richard Carle is wise. He is wise not only as to the matters which interest him self, but as to those which affect others. Only recently in these columns was [illegible] the method which he has adopted to make sure that the girls who compose his chorus work as hard and as conscientiously as the [illegible] supposed to work. He puts them into overalls.

This was during the rehearsals preparatory to the production of "The Hurdy Gurdy Girl" at the Tremont next week.

During these rehearsals which Mr. Carle has personally conducted he has been besieged by applicants for positions in the chorus this Summer.

Here is where Mr. Carle proved that he is wise. He put into operation a plan used in the old New York Casino and saved many a girl's feelings thereby.

"Every chorus girl and every amateur was crazy to get into the Casino shows," says Mr. Carle in explaining his plan, "and as few ones were found occasionally the stage manager and musical director devised a code by which they could be selected in short order from the greater number of undesirable applicants. 'Onions' was the technical term.

The musical director sat at the piano and the stage manager had a table near by where he entered names, addresses and comments in a book. We will take the case of [illegible] for an example.

[illegible] appears with a wiggly walk and the man behind the book arises, asking her for her name, he casually and [illegible] this is done with rare diplomacy, touches one of her arms. The arm that is well filled out usually goes with a figure that is fairly buxom, whereas the [illegible] glance sometimes fails to perceive certain female fortifications.

This expert goes back to his table with the name, address and his observation, an estimate of the girl's facial looks [illegible]. Then she runs the scale. (Sometimes an amateur is restrained with difficulty from singing the mad scene from 'Lucia.') The musical director arises and says:

"'By the way, Bill, have you heard from your brother in the Hawaiian Islands lately?'

"This remark is the linchpin of the system. New York is the standard. The farther away from New York the place indicated, correspondingly bad is the voice. Thus Lulu gets a Honolulu rating vocally while her looks are nearly up to concert pitch. Of course, the rest of it is easy. 'You will hear from us if we can place you.' All the applicants are carded out and those with the New York tag have the call."

One day an impulsive [illegible] whose voice [illegible] to see the [illegible].

"Mr. Newberger, it is certainly very pretty, but he [illegible] Medicine Hat and I am afraid it's cold for me."

The experienced chorus girl who has looks and voice is rarely out of a job. The amateurs of New York are not as likely as the ones from the West. There they flock to great [illegible] in the dramatic schools and musical conservatories in Chicago, and it is possible to get out of a hundred fifty who are pretty and can sing. Twenty five of these will prove slow in picking up business or awkward in dancing, but you still have twenty five which is a very fair percentage. Adelaide, Hong Kong and Dawson City considered.

Mr. Carle makes another departure in withholding the plot of the piece. He says in this connection: "I do not wish to give the idea that the story of 'The Hurdy Gurdy Girl' is formidable because it is not. It is dramatic, however, and its few surprises I do not care to discount by a detailed advance notice. If you are reading a book it spoils your pleasure to have its climax forestalled, and I think it is true of a play." Mr. Carle has even kept his company guessing. Until the parts were handed out for the third act, no one knew the end of the story.

Mr. Carle made his selections for the cast only after deliberation, and has gathered this company: Mrs. Annie Yeamans, May Boley, Mae Botti, Adele Rowland, Helene St. John, the Constantine Sisters, Jacques Kruger, Henry Norman, Harry Stone, Walter Lawrence, John E. Hazzard, Sylvia Langley, Arthur Conrad and Toney Sullivan. The chorus of "The Spring Chicken," an admirably trained organization, will be transferred to "The Hurdy Gurdy Girl," and an orchestra of unusual size has been engaged.

"Sin-Eater" Lacks Humor; All Is Tragedy and Gloom

By Julian Hawthorne.

THE SIN-EATER. By Fiona MacLeod. New York: Duffield and Company.

There has been some interesting discussion in the magazines and elsewhere concerning the personality represented by the name given to the author of this and other books, and psychological analysis has done its best to explain how it came to pass that William Archer, the Anglo-Irish writer, had through the means of this supposed woman been able to write things which in his proper person, were beyond his power. He has been styled a "self-[illegible]" and it is even alleged that he himself was under some doubt as to whether or not Fiona were a figment of his own brain, or a real individual of flesh and blood.

It might perhaps be surmised that Fiona had some flesh and blood basis, as it were, [illegible] the author's acquaintance, and that he [illegible] this fact to aid him to get away from or outside of himself into the [illegible] of the imagination. But [illegible] to go to such lengths [illegible] that a man writing under a nom de guerre, especially when [illegible] the opposite sex, should express himself otherwise than in his [illegible].

[illegible] George Eliot and Currer Bell would not have begun their literary careers pro[illegible] in the tone and manner [illegible] had they signed their own names [illegible] productions, and once the pseudonym was adopted it would still continue to have its effect upon what they wrote, even after the disguise had been penetrated.

Imagination and Passion.

But [illegible] though such speculations may be, they can hardly have much practical value inasmuch as in the long run a literary production will be judged upon its own merits and not upon the mental vagaries of the person actually responsible for it. After admitting that the bearded Fiona was eccentric and extreme in his self-identification with his creation, and that what was given forth under her name was something different more or less from what he had written or could write without the assistance of such an alter ego, we must come back at last to a consideration of the tales and poems themselves and either praise or condemn them as our tendency and judgment may dictate.

It is probable that most readers will find something strong and interesting in the Fiona MacLeod writings; they have imagination and passion, expressed sometimes in a manner sufficiently unconventional and energetic to stir the attention of the jaded reader's mind and sensibilities.

Occasionally, too, the writing is really powerful and in its own way convincing, and evinces that sure test of genuine imaginative work which consists in creating a [illegible] in the reader's own imagination and making him feel and see things which are not directly present in the narrative [illegible] that the writer gave [illegible] the portrayal of the persons and events [illegible] [illegible] those whom he ad[illegible].

Some Disappointment.

Insights and sentiments are sometimes expressed in these pages which we may not often find in other writings. But upon the whole my feeling is that the readers will experience a certain disappointment in the [illegible] Fiona and her products.

She promises much, and after all does only what she can. She may stand for an exceptional inspiration in her imagination [illegible], but she cannot be more than this, and has her own limitations. [illegible] was an able and animated writer, but had nothing of real greatness in him, and Fiona is never truly great, and betrays only here and there flashes of something that might be construed as a measurable approach to greatness.

We are to [illegible] that the material with which Fiona worked the folklore of the [illegible] traces of the north of Britain [illegible] the minds of their present [illegible] is itself very unfamiliar [illegible] and its strangeness and [illegible] quality cannot in justice be credited to the genius of Fiona herself. If there were no Gaelic coloring in her stories and quotations from the Gaelic tongue, and she were telling tales of human nature without such strange customs and savage effects [illegible] that the effects she produces would be less marked.

Human nature remains persistently the same thing at [illegible] literary disguises [illegible] extravagancies [illegible] the hands of great writers [illegible] its ability to fulfil the needs of the highest human imagination and [illegible].

Celtic Superstitions.

Fiona discourses eloquently in her introductory preface [illegible] to George Meredith about the weight of doom and darkness that afflict the [illegible] the [illegible] her narratives, with [illegible] supernatural experiences [illegible] to these lonely and [illegible]. But in truth we have to [illegible] in order to follow her into [illegible] the weird excursions she plans [illegible] mystery and horror, times [illegible] insistently and frequently.

The demand they make [illegible] too great, they [illegible] at last, and then of course, we cease to believe in them; we are no longer under the [illegible].

To maintain such an illusion is possible to a great literary artist [illegible] for example, as Stevenson; but Fiona is not a great artist, and she has not learned the [illegible] value for literary purposes of reticence, of reserve and of gradation. She does not understand tone and keeping; she tries to maintain a level of intensity [illegible] instead of rising [illegible] culminations, and leaving us leisure between to recover our breath.

The true or instinctive artist [illegible] proportion as [illegible] is grotesque [illegible] reasonable [illegible] light and [illegible]. But Fiona has no [illegible] and her voice is attuned to the pitch of tragedy and gloom.

One cannot accept the claim that in the [illegible] of Ireland and Scotland [illegible] other parts of the world there are days not devoid of [illegible] and that the inhabitants enjoy [illegible] and possibly even [illegible] hours of comparative cheerfulness.

Fails to Explain Mission.

But Fiona has no such feeling in the matter, and though she guards herself in her introduction [illegible] confessing that she has not attempted to portray the rounded or complete [illegible] she fails to adduce any explanation [illegible] to make [illegible] But a person drawn one-sided is not a person but a caricature, and ceases to appeal to our heart and sympathy.

The laughter of her people, when they laugh, is always hollow and appalling, their smiles are grim and foreboding. It is odd that she should not see how immeasurably many of [illegible] would have been strengthened had she taken pains to persuade us that [illegible] figures had blood in their veins like our own.

There are [illegible] tales in the volume [illegible] and [illegible] than the prose [illegible] sometimes good [illegible] entire [illegible] and imaginative [illegible] are two [illegible] interests.

The grotesque [illegible] of the book is well exemplified [illegible] the Sin-Eater, it is all [illegible] key. After all is said, it is worth reading, though its Gaelic flavor will prevent its attaining general popularity.

DAN CUPID IN THE TOWER RINGS OUT GAY BELLS FOR WEDDINGS OF ROSE MONTH

Smart Set Hails the Approach of Curtis-Phelps, Sargent-Cheever Ceremonies.

By a Society Woman.

JUNE, the traditional month of brides, is here bubbling over with beauty and joy. All functions give way to weddings. The two most prominent of the coming week is that on Wednesday of Miss Helen Pelham Curtis to Dr Gouverneur Morris Phelps of New Rochelle, N. Y., in Shepard Memorial Church, Cambridge, and that on Saturday of handsome Jane Sargent of the Vincent Club to Dr David Cheever, at the Sargent country estate at Wellesley.

Miss Curtis, Wednesday's bride, is a daughter of the late Benjamin Robbins Curtis and Mary Gardner Horsford of Boston, and a sister of the late Benjamin Robbins Curtis, a member of the New York bar. After the death of her parents Miss Curtis lived for some time in Cambridge with her grandmother, Mrs. Horsford, but for the past few years she has lived with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Seth Low, in New York.

Dr. Phelps, who is a Harvard '02 man, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Delafield Phelps [illegible] of New Rochelle.

Seth Low to Give Niece in Marriage.

Miss Curtis, who is well to the fore among the prettiest of the rose month's brides, looks lovelier than ever in her bridal gown of soft white satin trimmed with [illegible] old lace and [illegible] old lace veil, a family heirloom. Her bouquet will be of valley lilies.

Mrs. David Gordon Allen, her sister, and herself a bride of last Spring, will be the only attendant. She will wear a gown of pale pink net over pink satin, with hat to match trimmed with pink feathers, and will carry a bouquet of Killarney roses and lilies of the valley.

The ceremony will take place at 12 o'clock, the Rev. Dr. Alexander McKenzie officiating. The decorations at the church will be of white peonies and roses. The bride will be given away by her uncle, Seth Low.

Dr. David Gordon Allen, the bride's brother-in-law, will be best man, and the ushers include Robert Temple Emmett, Andre Champollion, Seth Low Pierrepont, Howard Litchfield, Henry Pierrepont Perry, Samuel Wyllis-Wyllis Pomeroy, Dr. Eugene Du Bois and Dr. James Jameson, most of them Harvard classmates of the groom.

World Tour for Honeymoon.

A reception and breakfast will be held at the home of the bride's aunts, the Misses Horsford, No. [illegible] Craigie street, Cambridge. After a trip around the world, Dr. and Mrs. Phelps will reside in New York.

Among the [illegible] out of town guests who will attend the wedding are Mr. and Mrs. Seth Low of New York, Mr. and Mrs. William Low, Miss Harriet Low and [illegible] of Brooklyn, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Delafield Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris Phelps and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Temple Emmett of New Rochelle, Mr. and Mrs. Lea M. Laquer, Dr. and Mrs. John G. Curtis, Miss M. Delafield and Henry Pierrepont Perry of New York and Mr. and Mrs. De Lancey Kane of Newport.

Miss Sargent, the bride par excellence of Saturday, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Sargent of Hereford street, is distinguished for her family connections as well as her good looks. Her mother was a Hunnewell of Wellesley, whose sister is Mrs. Robert G. Shaw, and her brothers Henry, Walter, Francis and Hollis Hunnewell.

Ancestor Was Boston's First Schoolmaster.

Miss Sargent made her initial bow to society about four years ago and has since then been pursued by many admirers. The announcement of her engagement to Dr. Cheever came as somewhat of a surprise even to her intimates, as it was thought that Arthur Adams of the John Quincy Adams family was the favored one.

Dr. Cheever, who has made a name for himself in his chosen profession, is a Tennis and Racquet man and a graduate of Harvard '97. He is also well connected and is a direct descendant of Ezekiel Cheever, Boston's first schoolmaster, to whose memory a tablet was recently erected in the old burying ground on the Common. Dr. Cheever is also surgeon for the First Corps of Cadets and one of its most popular members.

The ceremony will take place in the Eliot Union Church, South Natick, at 3.15 o'clock in the afternoon and will be followed by an al fresco reception at the Sargent estate in Wellesley. Special cars will be attached to the regular trains to take the Boston guests.

Miss Sargent has chosen as her attendants her sister, Miss Margaret Sargent, and her cousin, Miss Mary Hunnewell, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Hunnewell. Dr. Cheever has selected Penrose Hallowell as his best man and has chosen his ushers from among his classmates and the First Corps of Cadets.

After an extended wedding tour Dr. and Mrs. Cheever will occupy the house No. [illegible] Hereford street, which was a gift to them from the bride's father.

"H[illegible]

[illegible] ever one [illegible] man's face [illegible] says. It's [illegible] his second wife [illegible] first one [illegible]

Thanksgiving

Sister Rachel [illegible] face was as [illegible] were steady as [illegible] woman and lifted [illegible] arms, but her spirit was full of [illegible] thanksgiving [illegible] quivers of joy ran through her veins.

In astonishment at her bed's strength, Martha Burdell forgot to peer into her face. But even had she peered she would not have seen much, for the nurse, still apprehensive of recognition by this only eye of all the servants who had seen her since her own [illegible] at Heath Hall, kept her face averted.

Sister Rachel went away from the sharp-eyed woman's dangerous vicinity and out into the street, where, at least, she could think freely.

He loved her! He loved her still, in spite of the unjust condemnation and the divorce, in spite even of the bitter years of separation and the introduction of another woman, his heart went out to her yet. Her brain reeled with the joy of it, her own heart overflowed with thanksgiving to heaven.

As in a Dream

Strange that she should learn this through the gossip of a servant. Strange, how things come around to ears for which they were never intended.

She took the car as one moving in a dream. She told herself that, despite the decree which had divided them, he was her husband still, since he loved her and regretted her.

Her pulses throbbed wildly with her new and delirious happiness. He had forsaken h[illegible] [illegible] had believed [illegible] against his own will, for she knew him to be a man of sensitive honor. He wanted her, he grieved for her, he turned to her in the spirit with the yearning of love.

[illegible] With the Jolly [illegible]

[illegible] hardly knew [illegible] her [illegible] [illegible] for tenth [illegible] "I haven't [illegible] speaking and writing would not be safe. What I want to say is that my investigations have [illegible] with a discovery [illegible]"

Point Against Wynn

Mr. Jolly nodded. "Yes. The discovery is an exceedingly important—it proves nothing in itself; but it is very valuable as showing that Wynn's account of himself is not to be trusted. You remember that he claimed the insurance on Francis Heath's life on the ground that the policy had been made over to him as security for a loan?"

Sister Rachel bent her head. "Yes."

He said that the amount of that loan had been the same as that for which Mr. Heath's life was insured—$100,000 [illegible] Mr. Jolly. "I have found out that that statement was not true. The actual amount he had lent Francis was $75,000. By getting the insurance policy into his hands he, therefore, made $25,000 clear profit."

Mr. Jolly broke off and mopped his ruddy face. His recent active exercise had disturbed him. It was also a shock being compelled to doubt even in the least degree a man whom he had believed to be perfectly honorable.

"And not only that," he continued, having resigned himself to the necessity of making the avowal, "but the date he gave as that of the transfer of the policy was [illegible] false [illegible] had been [illegible] previous [illegible] It had been [illegible] days before Francis [illegible] altered the date [illegible]

Jack's Appeal

"Is Dr. Harding at home?"

The servant replied that she believed so, and inviting Sister Rachel to enter, led the way to the doctor's apartments. Sister Rachel followed, serene of outward aspect as usual, but inwardly thrilled and exalted in spirit with joy and thanksgiving and newly awakened hope.

The news that she had gathered from the casual chatter of Martha Burdell and the information concerning Gilbert Wynn that had been communicated to her by Mr. Jolly had combined to make the world seem for a brief space bright for her own [illegible]

None could have guessed [illegible]

Renshaw's her [illegible] Alfred Harding exclaimed at once.

She shook her head. "No. He's worse—so much worse that I have called here to ask you to come round again and see him."

"I will certainly do so," replied the doc[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Alfred Harding [illegible] [illegible] for a few minutes [illegible] looking inquir[illegible] [illegible] I will put a [illegible] then get ready to go [illegible]

By Stealth

She waited his willingness to wait, and [illegible] seated herself. Her pale face had grown paler still. A sudden thought [illegible] an unworthy intention had arisen in her aching heart. He went into the inner study, and she rose and moved quickly and stealthily across the floor to the table where he had laid the letter.

It was an unworthy and perhaps even a base thing that she was about to do, but she was a mother devoted with burning love [illegible] and anxiety, and for this reason perhaps she must be pardoned.

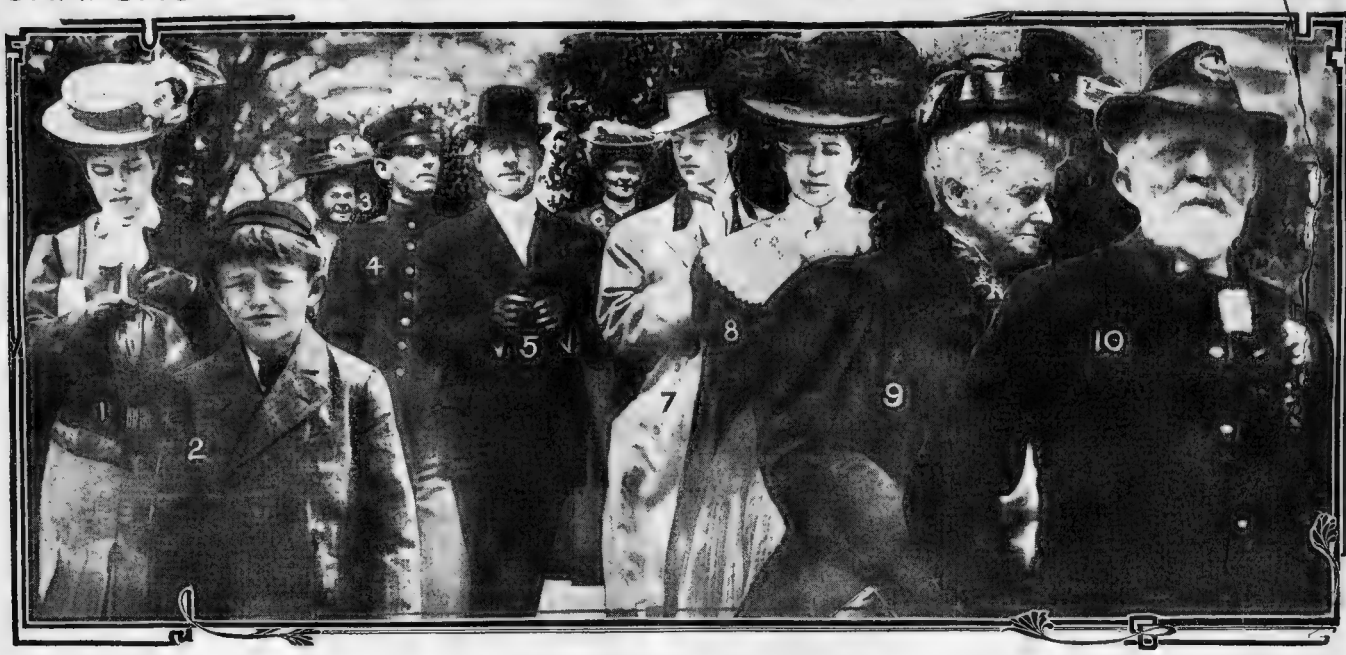
SNAPSHOT MAN MARSHALS GAILY ATTIRED "HOLIDAY TEN"



Are You Among the Lucky Group "Caught" Sauntering Through Boston Common and Public Gardens on Memorial Day?

"THERE was I, a-walking on the street. And a chap takes my picture just as quick.
"And I sez to him, sez I: 'Who might you be and wherefore snappest thou me?'
"But he sez never a word.
"Say—who d'ye s'pose he was? The Snapshot Man.
(Diary of a Snapshot Subject.)

JUNE brings the "Holiday Ten" in the Snapshot Series of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Do you see your face and form in the Snapshot line?

If you do the joke is on you.

No, the joke is on the Snapshot Man, for he has to give you ten dollars if your face is in the group.

So, if you are there, come to No. 32 Summer street and cash in the joke. But, speaking seriously—and the Snapshot Man can be as serious and solemn as a tree full of owls when it comes down to business hours are pictures of ten people. The Snapshot Man wants to give each one of these people ten dollars if he can find them. Only he can't go out into the highways and byways searching for people to give them money. The people must come to him.

SNAPSHOT MAN OUT MAKING FRIENDS.

The Snapshot Man has done his part. Now it's up to you.

The Snapshot Man has been doing this for five merry weeks. He has photographed and published pictures of fifty people up to date. To-day's presentation includes the last ten photographed. To every one of the previous forty—or, at least, as many of them as were identified, the Snapshot Man has given ten dollars. So the Snapshot Man hopes he has some friends somewhere by this time. It would be a shame if he didn't.

This group was photographed at different places last Thursday. So the Snapshot Man calls them his "Holiday Ten," just to distinguish them from previous groups of ten. The group of the preceding week he called the "Crosstown Ten," because he took them on crosstown streets. By the way, the Snapshot Man publishes to-day the names of the winners in the "Crosstown Ten."

These were caught by the Snapshot Man's camera in the Public Garden and in Boston Common last Thursday, about the middle of the day.

It was a splendid day. People were out in their best. Miss Boston was out in new hat and pretty gown, with her pretty face to cap the charming climax.

Frequently Miss Boston was accompanied by some young man, maybe her brother, more likely some other girl's brother. But then, that's none of the Snapshot Man's business.

There was calm old age, quietly enjoying the beautiful holiday. And, on the other extreme, there was active youth, living gaily in the present with no thought of the future.

There is a military tone to to-day's Snapshot group as well. With his eye over out for striking costume, the Snapshot Man could not resist the blue and brass buttons of a uniform. The soldiers in the "Holiday Ten" will please report to the Snapshot Man like good military men and receive the money due their rank as Snapshot recipients.

NOT ALWAYS SEEN AT HIS WORK.

The Snapshot Man has heard people say occasionally: "Oh, I know the Snapshot Man hasn't taken my picture. I didn't see anybody photographing me."

Now, don't you be too sure. Why, only last Thursday afternoon the Snapshot Man caught a group of six people on Boston Common, and but one of them was aware that the Snapshot Man was around.

That shows you can't always tell about this Snapshot Man. He's an elusive fellow when it comes to taking pictures. But when it comes to paying over the money he is "right there with the goods," to use a slang term. That is, of course, provided you are the right party.

But, to be sure you are or are not in the Snapshot group to-day or on succeeding Sundays, you need to buy the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN and look at the Snapshot group.

Do you know who the people were whose pictures were published last Sunday in the "Cross-Town Ten"? Did you recognize any of them? The Snapshot Man kept a list of their names, so that people might know who's who in the Snapshot game. He prints this list to-day:

WINNERS OF LAST SUNDAY'S PRIZES—THE "CROSSTOWN TEN"

Thousands Are Flocking to New Farmers' Union

ATWOOD, Tenn., June 1. The Tennessee State Union of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union of America, although one of the infants among its older State brothers, is soon the most powerful organization of its kind in the South. As it is now it is a two-edged sword, as becomes an infant raised on a battlefield instead of being confined to one arena of action.

While the Farmers' Union is not an organization being organized for the purpose of trying to control the majority of all crops and to educate the farmer and guide his business actions in all respects, bringing about intelligent co-operative action in every material part of the farm business throughout the entire nation, still the idea of its originators was first to organize in the cotton States and demonstrate its efficiency in controlling the cotton crop, then rapidly extend its already proven benefits to everything else, and that the growing crop will bring it. The farmers of West Tennessee are well organized and will stand by the price, and a large number of organizers are at work in the wheat counties of Middle Tennessee, and the farmers of that section will be thoroughly organized.

[illegible] president of the National Union, and has been diligently at work in Bedford and other counties in that section, says the farmers there will be completely organized before harvest and will be a unit for the equitable price of $1.

Membership Growing Rapidly.

While the cotton-growing industry of this State is large and an important one, still it is almost entirely confined to Area 1, that part of the State known as West Tennessee, about one-fourth of the total area of the State of Tennessee lying west of the Tennessee River. In the [illegible] of this section tobacco, grain and [illegible] constitute the principal products raised.

Farmers Greatly Encouraged.

Secretary Brooks has been actively engaged in Rutherford and adjoining counties, while General Organizer Lupton has devoted his attention to Maury, Giles and contiguous counties. R. L. Barnett has canvassed the districts of Williamson County and assisted in Rutherford and Wilson.

"The farmers everywhere," said President Montgomery, "are greatly interested in the Farmers' Union and encouraged by the prospects of receiving a fair price for their wheat.

"For many years they have been confronted with a grave problem in attempting to find a profitable market for their wheat, owing to the formidable influence of the Millers' and Grain Dealers' Union of Tennessee, with headquarters in Nashville.

"As there is only one milling concern in Nashville, it has become easy for a fair understanding to be brought about among all the growers in wheat so that the beneficiary of each is never invaded by other interests. The grain growers are greatly encouraged over this condition, and through co-operation will seek outside markets."

Level-Headed Officials.

The [illegible] counties of the Tennessee [illegible] Area 1, in the county of the cotton district, [illegible] hundred miles north east of Memphis with Secretary Treasurer T. J. Brooks in direct charge of the work of organization. Mr. Brooks was the first secretary elected in April, 1903, and, with all the other officers, was re-elected in December, 1906.

Like other Farmers' Union States, the notable feature in connection with the official roster is the marked good judgment displayed by this organization in the selection of its official family. No more intelligent, level-headed and enthusiastic men could be selected from any class of business men in the State than were selected by the farmers of Tennessee to organize, guide and conduct their affairs. All are practical farmers and large land owners.

The officers are: J. E. Montgomery, president, of Gleason; Mr. Bluff, vice-president of Clem; Mr. Bluff, T. J. Brooks, secretary-treasurer, of Atwood; J. T. Lupton, organizer, of Dresden; Hale, H. A. Bond, Union organizer, Greenfield.

The executive committee, headed by Secretary R. Williams, one of the leading, highly cultured and richest men of the State, is composed of A. A. Woods, Humphrey; Dr. H. P. Hudson, Brownsville; T. S. Epperson, Humboldt, and Guy Perkins, Stantonville.

Fight Trust-Made Conditions.

Secretary Brooks says: "The demand for the great staple products of the farm is constant the year round, and it is a violation of every law of business success and principle of economy to rush these supplies on the market regardless of the needs of consumers.

"It is a science of commerce the same as of chemistry, and it behooves the farmer as the feeder of the streams of commerce, to understand the part he plays in the economy of business, and not to dump the world's supply of foodstuffs for a year upon an artificially weakened market in the short space of two or three months, creating a visible supply to be [illegible] to lower the market and beat down prices. Instead, he should scientifically feed and supply the demand regularly throughout the year.

"Trust managers understand the science of commerce and apply their knowledge. Knowledge is power, and commercial knowledge applied by the few, while commercial stupidity has been exercised by the masses, has dethroned Justice, mocked Equity and torn to tatters the Golden Rule. It is simply a question of matching conditions."

To Erect Many Warehouses.

Last year the Union had only three warehouses, but within the present year they will erect at least fifteen, thus giving a warehouse to practically every county in the cotton belt.

Executive Committee Chairman Williams is now devoting his attention largely to the organization in the wheat counties and they are being rapidly brought in line.

"The membership is enthusiastic," said he, "and the Farmers' Union is in the State of Tennessee to demand $1 per bushel for their wheat on the Chicago basis, believing that the conditious justify it."

MOTHERHOOD

MRS. JAMES CHESTER

The first requisite of a good mother is good health, and the experience of maternity should not be approached without careful physical preparation, as a woman who is in good physical condition transmits to her children the blessings of a good constitution.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from native roots and herbs, more successfully than by any other medicine because it gives tone and strength to the entire feminine organism, curing displacements, ulceration and inflammation, and the result is less suffering and more children healthy at birth. For more than thirty years has been the standby of American mothers in preparing for childbirth.

Note what Mrs. James Chester, of 417 W. 35th St., New York says in this letter:—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"I wish every expectant mother knew about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A neighbor who had learned of its great value at this trying period of a woman's life urged me to try it and I did so, and I cannot say enough in regard to the good it did me. I recovered quickly and am in the best of health now."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certainly a successful remedy for the peculiar weaknesses and ailments of women

It has cured almost every form of Female Complaints, Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation, Ulcerations and Organic Diseases of Women and is invaluable in preparing for Childbirth and during the Change of Life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Dr. Henry P. Walcott Declares His Election to Be an Impossibility.

SUCCESSOR IS NOT SOUGHT

President Eliot Greatly Puzzled by Roosevelt's Statement in West.

HE FINDS NO EXPLANATION

Trustees Are Said to Be Greatly Opposed to Idea of Selection of Nation's Head.

DR. Henry Pickering Walcott, senior member of the Harvard Corporation, in an important and exclusive interview given yesterday to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, declared that President Roosevelt can never come to Cambridge as head of the greatest American university as long as Charles W. Eliot is alive.

Dr. Walcott's statement was evoked by the most remarkable and significant utterance yet credited to the President with regard to his future, made to a delegation of Harvard men at Lansing, Mich., in which he said:

"In a year and eleven months I expect to be an active member of the Harvard organization."

This unexplained statement was interpreted by Harvard men all over the country to mean that the Chief Executive would, as has been rumored, leave the White House in two years to become the head of the Cambridge institution of learning.

Says He Is Puzzled.

President Eliot, in a statement to a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN reporter at Detroit last night, asserted that he could not understand what Mr Roosevelt implied by his remark to the delegation from the Associated Harvard Clubs which met him at Lansing Friday night.

"I can see no possible explanation of the President's remark in connection with any active association with the university," said President Eliot. "He might have meant that he expected to take a more active interest in the alumni affairs when

Harvard Heads Ridicule Roosevelt's Assertion

WHAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SAYS:

"In one year and eleven months I expect to be an active member of the Harvard organization."

WHAT CHARLES W. ELIOT SAYS:

"I can see no possible explanation of the President's remark in connection with any active association with the university. He might have meant that he expected to take a more active interest in the alumni affairs."

WHAT DR. H. P. WALCOTT SAYS:

"There is not the slightest ground for any report that Dr. Eliot is to resign and is working to have Mr. Roosevelt come to Cambridge...I should not vote for his selection to head the Harvard faculty; first, because he is not what you would call an academic man."

Eight Young Sisters Mourn Benny Klinger, Killed by Street Car

Mother Prostrated by Fatality That Robs Her of One of Two Sons.

"See kids, Benny Klinger is dead. Got run over!"

To the little playmates of little Benjamin Klinger of No. 25 Albion street, South End this is about all that his death means. While the boy was hurrying home from school Friday afternoon a Tremont street car at Pleasant street bore down upon him and killed him as in a flash.

His playmates around Albion street yesterday gave to the news of the fatality no other answer in almost a humorous way. Mr mother has been sick in bed ever since they told us Benny was killed. She just cries all the time and we can't seem to do anything for her. Anna Klinger, a sister of the boy in this simple way told what his death meant to her mother.

We have telegraphed our father, who is working in New York. He will get here to-morrow. You will nearly kill him, for he loved Benny so much, and there is only one other boy left. There are eight girls and it is so hard to lose our brother.

Anna Klinger is sixteen. Just now she is her mother's comforter, and young mother of the family of nine remaining children.

The boys funeral will take place to-morrow.

Yesterday Captain Lawrence Cain of the Lagrange Street Police Station appealed to Judge Forsythe of the Municipal Court for a warrant against Motorman George F. Claypool of Jamaica Plain on the charge of manslaughter in connection with the fatal accident. Motorman Claypool was released, stating that no evidence was shown of any negligence on the part of the motorman.

Arrested on Hold-Up Charge After Exciting Chase

Chance Minor, a colored man, 29 years of age, and living at 10 Osborn place, South End, was locked up in the East Dedham street police station early this morning charged with "holding up" with a loaded revolver, Thomas Connors of 11 Palfrey street, Jamaica Plain.

Minor was captured after a desperate struggle with a citizen and after a run of half a mile. When the latter broke away from an officer again and renewed his fight for freedom.

Edward Smith of No 50 Perry street, South End, two blocks away, heard Connors's cry, and started after Minor. He was up Garland street, along Washington street to Dover street, then across Dover street where Smith overtook him. Minor was entering the building.

Smith held Minor until Officer Littlefield of Dudley street station arrived but not in time to lose his hold with the revolver stunned him.

Smith held Minor until Officer Littlefield of Dudley street station arrived but not in time to lose his hold with the revolver stunned him.

While the man was being led to the patrol box he drew a gun, which was purloined by the crowd which had gathered. Later were cries of "Lynch him." The man was finally gotten into the patrol wagon, but he fought like a demon and had him down all the way to the East Dedham street police station. The revolver which he threw away was found

WOMAN RUNS DOWN ALLEGED THIEF IN THRILLING MILE STREET CHASE.

Mrs. Emily Everson of Roxbury Catches Pedler She Accuses of Stealing Her $5.

MEN TIRE IN RACE, QUIT

WITH pluck and agility that would have done credit to any man, Mrs. Emily Everson of No. 158 Heath street last night won a mile chase after a fruit pedler she accused of stealing $5 from her.

She ran fast enough to keep with u sight of the man, though the latter had the advantage of his horse and wagon in the fight. She outdistanced several men who aided her in the pursuit. Though the fugitive tired out his masculine pursuers, he was unable to discourage Mrs. Everson, who had the intense satisfaction of finally securing his arrest.

Plucky Woman Cheered.

Heath street rang with cheers when the prisoner, Edward Gallagher, of No. 26 Forest street, was turned over to Patrolman Gould of Station 10. For a time it appeared as though he would be handled roughly.

"I wouldn't let any man like that get the best of me. He couldn't scare me, and I would do the same thing again," said Mrs. Everson to an American reporter after the arrest.

Gallagher, as Mrs. Everson says, called at her back door to sell strawberries early last evening. She decided to purchase a couple of boxes and gave him as she thought, what was only a $2 bill. After she had received the change, however, she remembered that there was a $5 bill stuck to the $2 bill when she had given Gallagher.

She at once told him of the mistake she had made and politely requested the return of the money. Instead of doing so later, Mrs. Everson noticed that he was running down the stairs, out into the street, jumped on his wagon and started to drive off.

Chases the Pedler.

When Mrs. Everson had recovered her presence of mind at this bold action, she at once set out after Gallagher, determined to get her money. The latter saw her coming and whipped up his horses.

"Stop that man!" she cried to a number of men who were passing, but without any effort to keep up they were soon tired out and gave up the chase.

Then she espied a car coming down the wagon. Mrs. Everson thought she could further explore the matter. Upon investigating she found that the driver of the wagon was the man she had called to stop. She then boarded the car and kept on the trail of Gallagher, who, when he took from her, began to drive faster. He had taken the money and declared that she only gave him $2.

'I'M TOO BUSY TO BE MAYOR'

Says A. Shuman, Head of Mammoth House, as He Talks of Trip Abroad.

Remarkable snapshot taken yesterday of Mr Shuman and daughter as they were leaving the Arabic.

A. SHUMAN — MRS. LILLIAN SHUMAN-DREYFUS

A. SHUMAN, who has been suggested as a candidate for the mayoralty of Boston during his absence in Europe, yesterday afternoon effectually put a stop to all of the talk by declaring to a reporter of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN:

"I am too busy a man to be Mayor of Boston. My business interests would not permit it."

Mr. Shuman and his daughter, Mrs. Lillian Shuman Dreyfus, returned home yesterday afternoon on the White Star steamer Arabic, after a two months' trip through Ireland, England and parts of the continent.

When told how his name had been put forward for the Mayoralty by certain Hoston newspapers and how Mayor Fitzgerald's paper, the Republic, had declared that Mr Shuman would never permit his name to be used in opposition to the present incumbent, Mr. Shuman smiled.

Not Unmindful of Honor.

"I am not by any means unmindful of Mayor Fitzgerald's good opinion of me, decidedly, but I am too busy a man to be Mayor of Boston. My business interests would not permit it.

"My suggestion that I had thought of running against Fitzgerald for Mayor of Boston is news to me. My business interests would make it impossible for me to accept a nomination.

"Of course, I am not unmindful of the great honor that has been done me in mentioning my name in connection with the office, but I cannot take my time from my business.

"For the past fifteen years I have been honored by being one of the Trustees of the Boston City Hospital. I am entirely willing to continue in this office and will give its duties as much of my time as they demand, but I could not think of serving as Mayor of this city.

"I must say that I keenly appreciate the compliment which has been done me in mentioning my name in this connection, but I am not a candidate for the mayoralty. We have had a splendid trip, my daughter and I," continued Mr. Shuman waiving aside any further suggestions that the speak of the mayoralty gossip which had been raised during his absence from the city. "We enjoyed every day of our absence from Boston and yet we are glad to be home. I am glad to get home to Boston.

"We had good weather most of the time and this contributed to our enjoyment not a little. I think that of all of our journeys in our trip through Ireland was the most enjoyable. Ireland is a beautiful country, especially at this time of year. Now the land is delightful.

"In Dublin we visited the great Irish Fair. It was impressive very greatly by the buildings are graceful and ornate. The whole scheme is very attractive and the displays are remarkably good.

Lauds Irish Race.

"Not a minute of the time we spent in Dublin was otherwise than thoroughly delightful. Of course, the greatest part of our time was in the exposition section here where everything is so interesting, so instructive.

"Then Dublin is a most interesting city and during our stay there we saw a great deal of it. Of course, the all-absorbing topic of conversation and thought in Ireland is now the Home Rule problem as it confronts the Irish people to-day.

WILL ANTI-SHOE MACHINERY LAW FORCE TRUST TO QUIT STATE?

MANUFACTURERS ARE FREE

President Winslow "Too Busy" to Discuss Report That Factories Will Withdraw.

COMPANY'S HAND FORCED?

R. H. Long, Sponsor of Bill, Scouts Story That Monopoly Will Abandon Field.

NOT a single official of the United Shoe Machinery Company could be found last night to say that the company's threat to "quit" Massachusetts legislation will be carried out, or legislation will be carried out, or was anything more than a bluff. President Winslow wasn't seeing anybody; "too busy," he said.

Governor Guild signed the Shoe Machinery Bill yesterday morning with his hat on. It was unofficially given out that His Excellency had burned midnight oil perusing a stenographic report of the Shoe Machinery Trust, before the Joint Judiciary Committee. The bill becomes a law in thirty days.

Manufacturer Is Free Now.

"This bill makes the Massachusetts shoe manufacturer free," says R. H. Long of South Framingham who has fought for two years to break the monopoly of the Shoe Machinery Trust.

"It will be, and not harm Massachusetts shoe manufacturing. That threat of the Trust to leave the State amounts to nothing. The Trust will not and will run away from the Massachusetts field, the industry is too valuable to it.

Mr. Long made this statement to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

The passage of the anti-Shoe Machinery bill prevents any shoe machinery company from leasing machinery to shoe manufacturers, prohibiting the leasing or buy and sell basis. Under the old system the Trust leased almost every machine in use in the shoe factories of the country, and refused to sell. Under the new law it will be compelled to sell machinery on the same terms to all manufacturers.

Market Is Opened.

As the United Shoe Machinery Company makes but few machines that cannot be leased, but sells machines, the market will be open for nearly all machines made.

"This will tend to lower the cost of shoes," says Mr. Long, "as manufacturers can buy in the open market better machines at lower prices. The will benefit the consumer, as well as the manufacturer.

"The bill benefits itself even from the fact that the United Shoe Machinery Company is forced to sell machinery, it will be forced to sell the most modern machines and the most improved machines. The United Shoe Machinery Company have been leasing and selling machinery which made shoes with the old machines, in regard to the bills of many of the smaller manufacturers can only be made by the use of the most modern machinery.

Present Machines Behind Times.

"Competition will bring new machinery. The machines made lately are far behind the machines used in other lines of manufacturing. The Draper Company of Hopedale paid out for the perfecting of one loom more money than the Trust has paid out for improvements in its five years' existence.

"I do not say a word in the statement that the bill Rogers favored the Shoe Machinery Trust. I do not think it does, but I cannot be favored it, for the reason I believe, that any law that has a good thing to work, the public, other legislation not be passed to take away.

"There are a great many small shoe machinery concerns in the United States making machines on which the United Shoe Machinery Company has no monopoly. They are located in Lynn, Haverhill, Rochester, Cincinnati and other cities. These concerns will now have a chance to sell their machines in the open market.

Praises Work of American.

"The Lamoureux trial, in my opinion, had not the slightest effect on the fate of the bill.

"The BOSTON AMERICAN has been a great factor in the fight. It has been the only paper that has given the Shoe Machinery measure a fair show.

"I have worked for about six years, has been one of unanimity seldom seen. They were almost unanimous for the bill, three local unions in the State stood with the Trust. The Trust has used its money and influence to defeat the bill, but it has failed. The bill is dependent on the machines of the United Shoe Machinery Company, and the Boston Union of New Bedford, where the influence exerted by the cycle factory of the United Shoe Machinery Company and its office.

"The bill was passed by the Harvard and Yale councils, which did a great deal to help it through. The Trust has had all expression of a few labor leaders.

Even Trust Agents Pleased.

"Even agents of the United Shoe Machinery Company are pleased, because, as they have told me, they will have a chance to sell their machines to other concerns now if they wish to.

"The attitude of the new administration of the State as well as the Governor, Mayor Fitzgerald and Senator Lodge, is very gratifying to me, and now that it has passed over the veto I do not doubt that it will be of great benefit to the State. Most of these old men have been here all their lives, and are not influenced by the influence of the United Shoe Machinery Company, but manufacture a different shoe and so had of the shoe manufacturing [illegible]

Little Girl Kicked By Horse, Tried to Aid Rider.

Wade kindly picking up a hair ribbon which Miss Elsie Hobbs, a well-to-do East Boston girl, had dropped when riding horseback [illegible] in front of Revere Beach, Herb of [illegible] was rendered an object of [illegible] Mrs. Hobbs's eyes.

Mrs. H [illegible] was going along Ocean street, [illegible] horse at a sharp canter, when the sound [illegible] caused the animal to shy. Miss Hobbs [illegible] her horse and started to dismount to regain the ribbon.

Tom-arming Elsie, who was playing on the sidewalk saw the ribbon fall. Thinking to save Miss Hobbs the trouble of dismounting, the good-natured little girl ran toward her, saying:

"Let me pick it up, Miss."

The horse was prancing restlessly, but the child ran in and stooped down to pick up the ribbon while Miss Hobbs tried to turn the steed to one side. She was unable to do so quickly enough, however, and Bessie was struck out by the animal. It was more of a glancing blow, however, than a direct one, but the force was sufficient to knock the little girl to the ground on the left side of the face, bruising it severely and causing a lacerated wound of the ear.

When little Bessie fell unconscious Miss Hobbs, dismounted, fearful that the girl was killed. Bessie was taken to the Frost Hospital in Chelsea, where it was said later that she was not permanently injured. This news greatly relieved Miss Hobbs, who was exceedingly sorry that the well-intentioned act of the child should have brought such disastrous result.

June Ushered in by Snow Storms All Over Country

Showers and slightly cooler weather are [illegible] Sunday, the opening day of the [illegible] month of June, with [illegible] of sunshine in the after [illegible]

But Boston can thank itself lucky to get off with that light meteorological sen [illegible]

Lots of other places in the country [illegible] drawn in the other direction. Here [illegible]

Chicago—Snow.
Pittsburg—Snow.
Baltimore—Snow!

COXEY ISLAND—Here's the meteorological [illegible] for tomorrow, this evening. Coxey):

"Don't look if Boston is colder and even raining. Hang your new straw hat up in the closet and look pessimist. Think of Chicago. Think of Baltimore. Imagine to-day in the [illegible] Coxey."

Blown Out to Sea.

A Southeast gale, with snow and rain accompaniment, is back of this weather omen. The gale blew dirty weather up the coast and presently will blow it out to sea for the time. New England [illegible] reached. Then we would be in the June snow clouds.

Dispatches from Chicago say that there was a large shipment of straw hats in the show window, but no where else. Snow in Toronto through the morning. [illegible] no dispatch comes with a [illegible] that the effect that Summer would [illegible] exercised by tomorrow.

Dame Nature delights to say that she's a southeast gale and Falmouth, Mass., yesterday afternoon for half an hour, [illegible] for an interval of several minutes [illegible] golf ball goods in a blizzard. [illegible] Summer was the Coney Island [illegible] and I never here from New York [illegible] midnight. It seems that several thousand New Yorkers journeyed down to Coney for a Saturday afternoon and evening of pleasure.

Snow Fell Whole Hour.

Everything was lovely at Coney. But [illegible] was cool. But there came a dismal chill. Toward evening it grew cold. The bodies of the girls were shivering [illegible] The proprietors of amusement enterprises hoped for the snow, then for the retreating visitors and expressed themselves in the easy and accurate manner for which Coney is justly famous.

Then the great snow flurry was a short one, but others followed fast. For an hour it snowed intermittently. In all sorts of [illegible] fell an inch of snow fell. Then the sun came out.

From a meteorological standpoint this fall of snow in June was likely interesting, but the amusement proprietors declared it knock more graphically.

EBEN D. JORDAN ACTS AS CHIEF FIRE FIGHTER

West Manchester, June 1—But for the courage, quick thinking and executive ability of Eben D. Jordan, the fire which broke out in the old grain warehouse of E. Lodge & Sons might have destroyed that structure and spread in every direction. When the alarm was turned in the department was unable to respond promptly as the horses of the firemen were working on the road in a distant part of the town. Mr. Jordan, seeing the danger, hastened to the scene of the fire. In the absence of the fire chief, and took charge of the volunteer corps. From start to finish Mr. Jordan acted as fire chief and encouraged the volunteers to such effective work that the flames were finally extinguished with no great loss.

FREE DEAFNESS CURE.

A remarkable offer made by one of the leading [illegible] in this country. Dr. Branson of [illegible] Kansas City, Mo., has discovered [illegible] cure for deafness and in order to cure permanently [illegible] will send free to all who write. Many deaf people [illegible] Address Dr. W. O. Branson, 1200 Wyandotte street, Kansas City, Mo.—Adv.

PANAMA CANAL PROBLEM SOLVED

Washington, June 1.—It was officially announced to-day that the long-standing problem of the Gatun dam in the construction of the Panama Canal has been met by the decision to double the area of Gatun Lake.

CLEARS THE COMPLEXION BY SIMPLE METHOD

The large crowds at the toilet goods department of Houghton & Dutton's store the past week were occasioned by the sale of the wonderful beautifier, Madame Rupert's World Renowned Face Bleach, at the greatly reduced price of nineteen cents per bottle. At this figure any one can afford to be beautiful.

The sale will be continued this week. Face Bleach is the marvelous remedy which removes artificially all freckles, pimples, blackheads, sallowness, mouth patches, wrinkles not caused by facial expression, and brightens and beautifies any muddy, rough skin.—Adv.

VARIETY ADDS TO CHARM FOR THE SEEKERS OF REST

Inland and Coast, as You Please, on List of Amusements in Great Newspaper Undertaking.

A[illegible] comes the compound coupon of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

To-day the AMERICAN prints the first of its compound coupons which give its readers the most comprehensive Summer amusement [illegible] newspaper [illegible] of New England.

This coupon [illegible] separate coupons which [illegible] to fourteen different places of amusement [illegible] three [illegible] resorts in [illegible] New England.

Free to the Reader.

Consider what you get when the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN gives you this compound coupon.

One coupon in the compound collection [illegible] admission on Monday to-morrow, Tuesday or Wednesday of this coming week to Vanity Fair, the new pleasure park in Providence, R. I.

Other parts of the coupon apply to Canobie Lake Park at Canobie Lake, N. H. Admission to the Park is free. But the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN coupon gives you twenty-five cents worth of admission to these four attractions there: Circle swing, roller coaster, merry-go-round and launch ride on the lake on Monday June 3 or Friday June 7.

Nine Other Coupons

Cut out this compound coupon to-day. Read it over carefully. Make your plans and then start out this week to see the various attractions which the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN here includes.

ALL ABOARD FOR REVERE AND 9 STAR ATTRACTIONS

Supposing you start out as an amusement seeker with the compound coupon of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN this coming week. Take the nearest place first. That is Revere Beach.

Nine of the finest attractions at Revere Beach are included in the compound coupon list. One is the Scenic Temple. This is newly completed at great expense. It will accommodate 1,500 people. Its programme is good, clean vaudeville. Ten cents is the regular price of admission. But the AMERICAN coupon and five cents admits you on Monday (to-morrow), Tuesday or Wednesday of this coming week.

The management also announces that the Scenic Temple will even honor the coupons on Thursday and Friday of this coming week.

On Tuesday or Thursday of this coming week you can get into the Crescent Gardens for five cents—and the AMERICAN coupon. Without the coupon you have to pay full price, ten cents. Thus the coupon saves you a nickel here.

Ride the Flying Horses.

Did you ever ride on flying horses? If not, now is the time. At Revere Beach is the Rough Rider Hippodrome, run by Manager Bopp. It costs five cents to ride one trip on his flying horses. But you can have two rides there on Monday (to-morrow) or Tuesday of next week for the AMERICAN coupon and five cents. The tickets obtained at the ticket seller's wicket are good for use at any time by anybody.

A little distance from the Hippodrome is the Three Way Figure-Eight Roller Coaster. If you never rode on a roller coaster you have missed something. Usually it costs a nickel a ride. But on any week day of this coming week Manager Speer will let you have two rides for a nickel providing you have the AMERICAN coupon in addition. The tickets obtained at [illegible] good for [illegible] two to [illegible].

[illegible] go to the Rollaway Skating Rink. Skaters glide around [illegible] motion. The regular admission to Rollaway Rink is ten cents. But your coupon gets you in free on any one of the first five days of this coming week. Skates, of course, are extra.

Ride in Fairy Gardens.

Then there is the Mystic Rill. This is one of the most entertaining amusements at the beach. One rides through fairy gardens, through darksome grottoes, through illuminated spaces, till one is fairly bewildered. The price to ride along the Mystic Rill is ten cents. But on Monday (to-morrow) or Friday of this coming coming week Manager Butler will let you ride for five cents if you have the AMERICAN coupon.

Just in front of the Rollaway Rink is the new Automobile Race. This is unusually interesting. Here one sees a lifelike reproduction of the last great auto contest for the Vanderbilt cup. The actual race was thrilling and the scenic reproduction is likewise. Manager Kearns charges ten cents to let you into to see the show. But on any of the first five days of the coming week he will accept your AMERICAN coupon and a nickel as equivalent to a dime.

On the Musical Railway.

Then the Musical Railway. Up and down its giddy heights, along its lengthy sides, round its dizzy curves, you can ride if you have the price. And the price is ten cents. But, if you have one of the coupons, you need only a nickel beside to [illegible] the Musical Railway trip. This applies to any of the first five days of the coming week.

[illegible] but least comes the Theatre Comique. This is conveniently located for the coupon traveler right on the boulevard. Tuesday or Friday of this coming week holders of AMERICAN coupons will be admitted for five cents. But if you don't have the coupon you have to pay a dime.

BOSTON AMERICAN — Good for One Admission ... TO ... VANITY FAIR — EAST PROVIDENCE, R. I. — Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday — AFTERNOON OR EVENING — June 3, 4 or 5

Launch Ride Around Lake	10c
Roller Coaster	5c
Merry-Go-Round	5c
Cycle Swing	5c

Monday or Friday — June 3 or 7 — Afternoon or Evening

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Any person encountering any difficulties or meeting with dissatisfaction in trying to use these coupons legitimately is requested to communicate in writing to the Boston American.

Beautiful Canobie Lake Park an Ideal Resort for Thousands

No more beautiful spot lies in the Merrimac Valley than the region about Canobie Lake, N. H. Canobie Lake Park, on the shore of this pretty sheet of water, is one of the most attractive Summer amusement parks in New England. It is convenient to Lawrence, Haverhill and Lowell and is not any great distance from Boston, considering the transportation facilities.

The compound coupon of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN does well when it includes Canobie Lake Park in its wide-spreading scheme of entertainment.

Admission to Canobie Lake Park is free. But admission to [illegible] attractions there is not free [illegible]. But with the compound coupon of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN you obtain free admission to four attractions there. These four are the Roller Coaster, Merry-go-Round, Circle Swing and Launch Ride around the lake. This is equivalent to twenty-five cents [illegible] admissions. The coupon is good on Monday (to-morrow) or Friday of this [illegible]. Thus you have [illegible] of the week or the latter [illegible] as [illegible] more convenient for you.

You hold the coupon until the last attraction is reached, allowing the management in each instance to punch out or cross off as each attraction is visited.

Vanity Fair Gates Open to Holders of American Coupons

Are you going to Vanity Fair this season?

Of course you are going to the new big pleasure park just opened on the shore of the Providence River, near Providence, R. I.

Why don't you go as a guest of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN? Then it will cost you nothing to get into the park.

It ordinarily costs ten cents for admission to Vanity Fair. But if you go there Monday (to-morrow), Tuesday or Wednesday of this coming week with one of the AMERICAN coupons, you can give the coupon to the gate-tender instead of ten cents and he will let you in.

Vanity Fair is the Coney Island of Providence, and Providence demands a good deal [illegible]. It gets it in Vanity Fair. The park is big. It is splendidly laid out. It has nearly innumerable attractions. There is a quantity of free attractions. The open-air vaudeville show is entertaining [illegible] evening illumination, when thousands of electric lights are shining, is worth [illegible] to see. There is the gay Summer [illegible] of the park, the color, the general atmosphere of fun and amusement.

There are [illegible] transportation accommodations [illegible] Vanity Fair. And once at the gate it costs you nothing to get in if you have the AMERICAN coupon.

WHITNEY BACKS UP WHITNEY BANQUETS

They Are All "Spontaneous," but Whitney Typewriter Writes the "Invites."

NOW COMES F. A. W. FEAST

Quite the newest thing in social and business politics is the Franco-American-Whitney club. It has not been fully developed yet, but is still in the incubator at room 487, Old South building.

Room 487 is the new political headquarters of Henry M. Whitney, aspirant for the Democratic nomination for Governor. The last third of the club title is a recognition of his interest in the organization.

Mr. Whitney has been invited to attend the formal christening of the club. Just to help the promoters of the new idea, Mr. Whitney's headquarters stenographer is writing the invitations and also mailing them. It is ably admitted by members of the Whitney campaign staff taht he expects to be called upon to make a speech at the F.-A.-W. function, which is scheduled to take place at the American House on Thursday, June 6, at 5.30 in the evening.

"Few Friends" Invited.

One of the Franco-American Whitney volunteers is to sign the invitations when they have all been prepared. The typewritten notes read something like this:

"I am sending out invitations to a few friends of Henry M. Whitney to attend a dinner at the American House on Thursday, June 6, at 5.30 o'clock, for the purpose of forming a Franco-American-Whitney club. You should be interested in the great questions of tariff revision and reciprocity. Mr. Whitney will be present and [illegible] these subjects from the stand[illegible] of the business man."

That is not the exact wording of the invitation, but it is the substance and style of it. Most of the envelopes for the invitations have already been addressed by Mr. Whitney's headquarters clerk, and enough stamps for their mailing are available at the headquarters.

Frank F. Trip, who has attended to the details of Mr. Whitney's private and political schemes for several years, has an office at room 804, right handy to the new political headquarters. He says things are going along smoothly for the Whitney boom.

Banquets All "Spontaneous."

The Whitney banquets that are springing up in various sections of the State are the talk of the politicians. They smile knowingly when referring to them as spontaneous and business-like gatherings, and then one will say something like this:

"Yes, I see that Matt Meade, of East Bridgewater, is arranging for another spontaneous affair for Whitney in Plymouth County."

And another will say: "So I heard. Some one told me that Meade was working for Whitney. Well, he knows the game all right."

SHARPLES TO BE GENERAL CHOICE

Non-Partisan Candidate Will Doubtless Be Elected to Cambridge Council.

From all appearances, [illegible] P. Sharples will be the non-partisan candidate for the Common Council from Ward 9, Cambridge, to fill the place of the late Henry C. Stetson. When the papers were opened, Mr. Sharples's name was the only one filed. The primary will be held Tuesday.

Mr. Sharples formerly served the city as inspector of milk and vinegar.

Among those who are supporting the candidacy of Mr. Sharples are the Hon. John Read, ex-Mayor Alvin F. Sortwell, George E. Saunders, Hollis R. Bailey, John Ward, Jesse Moreland, Henry D. Green and Staughton Bell.

George N. Howard, a member of the water board, is being talked of as a possible entry for the Republican nomination for Senator.

Mayor Walter C. Wardwell has requested the Civil Service Commissioners to hold an examination for the purpose of filling the place of inspector of milk and vinegar, made vacant by the resignation of Dr. A. P. Norris, who has been appointed medical [illegible].

YOUNG WIFE BURIED IN BRIDAL GOWN

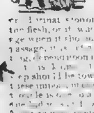
Mrs. Thomas J. Duane Laid to Rest on Third Anniversary of Wedding.

Gowned in her bridal dress, in which she was led to the altar to become the wife of Thomas J. Duane, son of former Street Commission John H. Duane, Mrs. Elizabeth Duane was yesterday buried in Holy Cross Cemetery, on the third anniversary of her wedding day.

Hundreds of sorrowing friends attended the solemn mass of requiem held over the remains at St. Peter's Church, Dorchester. The Rev. Florence Halloran was the celebrant, assisted by the Rev. Hugh Blunt and the Rev. Father Kenny.

Death followed the birth of a baby girl a few days ago at her late home at 5 Iowa street, Dorchester. The deceased was born in East Boston in 1881 and was a graduate of the Assumption Parochial School. She is survived by two young children, her husband, two sisters and two brothers. The Rev. Brother Albertus (Albertus Pugh) of the Order of Xavier Brothers, the deceased's brother, came here from Baltimore to attend the funeral.

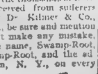
Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.



Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition, beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

[illegible] are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold [illegible]



Home of Swamp-Root

[illegible] also a [illegible] telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers [illegible]. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every [illegible].

DEMANDS JUSTICE OF ELECTION BOARD

Councilman Murphy's Order Will Ask Night Sessions for Enrollment of Voters.

Another move for night sessions of the Boston Election Comissioners, that voters may change their political party enrolment without losing a part of their working day, will be made in the Common Council, Thursday night, when Councilman Timothy J. Murphy of Ward 19, will offer a new order.

He will not ask for night sessions as a favor from the Fitzgerald administration, but will insist that the Election Commissioners should be compelled to hold night sessions as a matter of justice to workingmen. He believes they should be held in every ward, if necessary, and not confined to the office of the Election Commissioners at No. 1 Old Court House.

Want Honest Government.

Samuel H. Spitz, 154 Stanwood street, Roxbury, and Gabriel Slutsky, No. 55 Cooper street, who have been members of the Democratic party, one for forty years and the other for five, have joined the Independence League. Mr. Spitz said:

"I have been a member of the Democratic party for forty years. The way Moran was treated by Democratic legislators and the way the city government is being handled have changed me from a Democrat to a voter of the Independence League."

Mr. Slutsky said:

"I want honest government and will do as much as possible to help get it. I help, by joining this League, to obtain government [illegible] will take care of the people's [illegible]."

"Time for a New Party."

[illegible] T. Gardner of No. 10 Oswald street, Roxbury, who has voted the Democratic ticket for the last sixteen years, has enrolled in the Independence League.

"It is time for a new party," he says. "There is absolutely no hope in either of the older parties. I think the principles of the Independence League are just and for that reason I have become a member of the League."

LAMOUREUX AGAIN TO BE TRIED UPON BRIBE TAKING CHARGE.

Moran, Disappointed at Mistrial, to Present Case as Soon as Possible.

TWO VOTED TO CONVICT

Ten Firm in Belief Legislator Was Victim of Plot by McMasters.

S. JOHN LAMOUREUX, Representative in the Legislature from North Adams, whose trial on a charge of having accepted a bribe for his influence against the Leased Shoe Machinery bill resulted in a disagreement of the jury, is to be tried again just as soon as the case can be taken up by the Superior Court.

District Attorney John B. Moran says the case is to be tried again; that it is not to be dropped nor sidetracked.

Long Struggle for Verdict.

After an exciting week's trial the case was given into the hands of the jury on 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, and for nineteen and one half hours the jury wrangled in a futile effort to reach a verdict. The sixty-five ballots stood ten for acquittal and two for conviction. The jury reported at 11:45 o'clock yesterday morning that its members were unable to reach a verdict. The jury was promptly discharged by Judge Bond.

Two of the jurors who heard the case, one who voted for acquittal and one who voted for conviction, declared last night that the whole case hinged on whether Lamoureux took the money from McMasters for himself or on behalf of O'Shea.

Case Hinges on Motive.

"I will not tell who the other juror was who voted as I did.

"I took an oath to return a verdict upon the evidence [illegible] the evidence [illegible] kept on voting [illegible].

"There was [illegible] I admit, and I admit that I did the most of the talking. The issue was this, whether Lamoureux received that money from McMasters as a retainer for O'Shea or whether he received it for himself as a corrupt bribe.

"I was one of the two jurors who took no stock at all in the retainer story and who believed that Lamoureux sought and accepted this money for his own personal benefit in a corrupt bargain. I, accordingly, voted for his conviction and my votes, and of them alike, were conscientious ones. I would have kept on voting for conviction just so long as the jury was held in session."

Jurors Tell of Voting.

The jurors after trying for more than twenty hours to reach a verdict, yesterday morning at 11 o'clock reported to Judge Bond in the Superior Court that they could not agree. They were then discharged by the judge.

Sixty-five ballots were taken while they were in their room. On sixty-four ballots the vote stood ten for acquittal and two for conviction. On one ballot the vote was nine for acquittal and three for conviction.

George H. Carver of 16 Preble avenue, South Boston, said last night to a Boston Sunday American reporter:

"I was one of the two jurors who voted for conviction because I believed Lamoureux guilty.

William Madigan of 3 Pond street place, North End, another of the jurors, said:

"We took 65 ballots. The first was ten to two for acquittal. We took the first ballot just fifteen minutes after we went into the jury room. All of the other ballots, except one, were exactly the same. That one ballot stood nine to three for acquittal.

"I don't know why the two men were who voted for conviction. They were both old men. The whole issue was this. Ten of us believed Lamoureux's story. We believed that he was the victim of a plot, and the two who voted for conviction believed that he was taking the money for himself.

Thought It "Put Up Job."

Ten of us believed Lamoureux took the money for O'Shea, and that he was acting in good faith when he took it. We believe that it was a put up job on Lamoureux by McMasters, and we believed that O'Shea had a hand in it.

"We argued [illegible] point and none of us [illegible]. The entire issue was whether Lamoureux took the money for himself or for O'Shea."

S. John Lamoureux, representative in the General Court, tried on the charge of having accepted a bribe for his influence against the Leased Shoe Machinery bill, has thus far refrained from making a public statement regarding the disagreement of the jury which heard the case.

The jury after trying for more than twenty hours to reach a verdict reported a disagreement and were discharged by Judge Bond, of the Superior Court.

That Mr. Lamoureux will again be placed on trial is the assertion of District Attorney John B. Moran.

While the jury in the case deliberated, sixty-five ballots were taken. On each of these ballots with one exception, the vote was ten for acquittal to two for conviction. On one ballot the vote was nine for acquittal to three for conviction.

"This case will be tried again," said District Attorney Moran. "I can't say now just when. But it will be tried just as soon as it can be reached on the list.

"It is difficult to secure a conviction in these political cases, for politics works in devious ways. Take, for instance, the Chelsea case and the Boston case which we had also. It seems as if petit juries were susceptible.

"In these political cases, too, the public seems indifferent. But the district attorney's office will continue after the case just the same. Lamoureux will be called to trial just as soon as the conditions of business in the courts will allow it."

After the jury reported its inability to arrive at a verdict, Lamoureux's bail was fixed at $2,000. It was promptly furnished.

In the courthouse it was remarked that nothing else had been expected of the jury than a disagreement. Indeed, rumors that the jury would not be able to arrive at a verdict began to fly about almost as soon as the twelve men retired into their room. As the hours dragged away this opinion became more pronounced and more freely expressed.

Judge Bond was plainly disappointed at the mistrial and told the jury as much when Foreman O'Kane reported in court that they could not agree.

Judge Laments Mistrial.

It was 11 o'clock yesterday morning when the jury filed into the courtroom and reported to the judge that they had reached no verdict.

"I am very sorry," said Judge Bond, "that you have been unable to reach an agreement, as this case has cost the government a great deal of money. I will dismiss you from further service, as this is the last case on the list."

The jury then left the court room.

Woman Leads Fight Against New Hospital in Rich Section

MANY THREATEN TO LEAVE COREY HILL

Fifty Petition Board to Select Other Site, and Will Try to Prevent Location.

THE residents of Corey Hill, Brighton, are much alarmed over the contagious hospital that is planned to be erected among the homes on the hill by the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital. All declare that they will fight the plans of the hospital trustees to the bitter end, and have organized for this purpose. Thomas A. Mullen has been engaged to represent them and he has already warned the hospital trustees to go slow with their plans.

The hospital trustees have purchased all the vacant land bordered by Washington street, Corey road, Summit avenue and Allston street, about two acres in all, from the Beacon Hill Land Company. Surveyors have staked out the proposed hospital and permission to build has been asked for.

Many of the residents declare that if the authorities allow the hospital to be erected they will move from the neighborhood at any sacrifice. Mrs. H. T. Adams, the largest property owner, is the one who will be most affected. She has four houses facing the land where the hospital is to be built. They are all tenanted and Mrs. Adams depends on these for her maintenance.

Wealthy woman property owner, who is leading half hundred rich, indignant citizens in fight to prevent location of contagious hospital in aristocratic residential section of the city.

VIEW OF BROOKLINE FROM COREY HILL

Outrage, Declares Woman.

She has headed the petition, and made the following statement to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN: "I think this is an outrage. The very idea of a hospital for contagious diseases in this neighborhood is enough to make one shiver. It will drive all the residents off the street. I, for one, will not live near here; all my tenants have notified me that they will leave, as has almost everyone on the street. Since the news of the proposed hospital has become known land has been offered for thirty cents a foot less than I could buy it for ten years ago.

"I understand that the hospital is to be a free one, and this will bring an undesirable class of people in the neighborhood. Who knows how many people infected with a contagious disease will be riding out on cars looking for the hospital? I certainly will do all I can to prevent the destroying of my home."

J. D. Sthes, of Summit avenue, said: "When it comes to driving a man out of a home that he has dwelled in for over ten years, it is time to kick and kick hard. If the authorities allow this hospital to be built, I will close up this place and move out of the neighborhood the minute the permission is granted. It is the most outrageous thing that I ever heard of, and you can be sure I will leave no stone unturned to prevent the erection of a hospital for contagious diseases in this neighborhood."

Fifty Ready to Fight.

John Kingston, of Summit avenue, said: "I will do anything, everything to stop this proposition. I stand ready to meet any expense and will join any move that is started to check the erection of a menace to this community and a danger to all the children."

There are over fifty property owners in the neighborhood and all tell about the same story. A committee will call on the Brookline and City Hall officials Monday [illegible] for a protest hearing.

Dr. Charles A. Codman, of Brookline, president of the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital, said that he knew nothing [illegible] purchase of the land.

The presence of surveyors upon the land Friday, staking off an area supposedly for the proposed building, led to a hurried indignation meeting Friday night.

It developed at this meeting that a number of the citizens about the section had seen various city officials and the Board of Health, to whom they entered protests. As usual, under these circumstances, the officials referred the applicants to first one party and then another, until it finally settled down to a question for the Board of Aldermen to determine. The testimonials showed plainly that whatever course was to be taken by the neighborhood concerted action was necessary and the organization was formed.

The story of the property owners was, in every case, similar. They all denounced the contagious hospital as a menace to the health of the district, especially as there are a number of children in the neighborhood.

QUINCY HELPS RUN THE WHITNEY WAGON

Former Mayor Called to Aid McNary in Managing Gubernatorial Campaign.

APATHY AT NEWBURYPORT

Newburyport, June 1.—Josiah Quincy, former Mayor of Boston, has been called in to assist W[illegible] McNary in the direction of Henry M. Whitney's hard fought campaign for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. [illegible] Quincy was called in [illegible] does not appear, but he was on the job when Mr. Whitney came to town to talk in City Hall last night on "Canadian Reciprocity."

As if to show how much he cares for the attempt of ten Democrats in the State Senate to get an anti-merger [illegible] before the Legislature, Mr. Whitney came to Newburyport in the private car of the Boston & Maine. Mr. Whitney is a Boston & Maine director.

Impressive Strategy Board.

Whitney had an impressive board of strategy with him, including Manager Quincy and Manager McNary, Congressman John A. Keliher and former Superintendent of Streets James Donovan of Boston. There was also E. W. Thomson of Ottawa, Can., who writes pieces for the papers.

The Newburyport proletariat didn't enthuse very much on "Canadian Reciprocity" last night. The speech was delivered in City Hall, which costs nothing, and the National Cadet Band, Willard P. Knight, leader, was out in all its glory.

Who Paid the Freight?

What Newburyport is guessing about tonight is, Who paid the freight?

If elephants were selling for a cent apiece, the Newburyport Democratic City Committee couldn't buy a trunk. Somebody paid the National Cadet Band, however, and neither the car nor the scenery of the Whitney tourists was held by the landlord of Wolfe Tavern. None of the city committee [illegible] that Mr. Whitney came on invitation. City Hall will seat comfortably about 1,200 people. At no time last night was it two-thirds filled. Candidate Whitney in [illegible] nothing new. Asked where Whitney would speak next, one of his party said, "Don't know, you will have to ask Quincy."

[Anna a]nd Boni Are Said to [Have a]n Enmity Toward Howard Gould.

[KINGDON GOUL]D FLEES NOTORIETY

[D]enies There Is a Breach [in] George Gould's House[h]old Over the Case.

Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, June 1.—So strained have become the relations between some of the members of the Gould family as a result of the divorce action pending between Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gould that the former Countess Anna de Castellane, now known as Mme. Anna Gould, may be asked by Mrs. Howard Gould to visit this country for the purpose of taking the stand against her brother.

There is even a rumor that Count Boni, because of his well known aversion to the Goulds, may be asked to tell what he knows about some of Howard Gould's affairs in Europe.

Following the announcement that Mrs. George Gould, probably, would be subpoenaed by Mrs. Howard Gould if she returned from abroad in time for the trial, her son, Kingdon Gould, who sailed on the St. Paul, of the American line, to join his mother and father in Paris, said he knew nothing of a reported breach in his family over the suit for separation of Mrs. Howard Gould.

Never Met Their Aunt.

"I have never met Mrs. Howard Gould," said the young man to-day, "nor have any of my brothers and sisters met my aunt. She has never been to our homes in Lakewood or in this city. I have seen Mrs. Gould, but I never have been introduced to her."

"Is it true," Kingdon Gould was asked, "that your mother, Mrs. George Gould, sympathizes with Mrs. Howard Gould, and that there is a family split over the matrimonial troubles of your uncle?"

"I know nothing of any split or breach or feud in the family," responded the young man. "I know that the sympathy of my family is with my uncle, Howard."

Young Gould was accompanied by his grandmother, Mrs. Edith Kingdon. He said that he was taking her to Bournemouth, England, where she would spend the Summer.

Asked if he expected to appear at the trial of his uncle's suit, he said:

"I don't know anything about the suit beyond what I have read. As I said before, I have never met my aunt. I am going abroad for a brief vacation trip to join my mother and father. I have been studying very hard at Columbia during the past year and need a rest. I will return in [the F]all."

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould sailed this [wee]k to remain abroad all Summer. Other [mem]bers of the family will follow in a few [weeks, it] was said, as they were all desirous [of avoi]ding the notoriety attendant upon [Mrs. Ho]ward's matrimonial difficulties. [Mr. and] Mrs. Frank J. Gould have been [having t]roubles of their own, due to a mis[unders]tanding between Frank Gould and [his m]other-in-law, Mrs. Kelly. They will [sail,] it is said, before the end of the month [and Mi]ss Helen Gould will make her usual Sum[mer] trip abroad.

When the friend of Mrs. Howard Gould who originally stated that Mrs. George would find herself opposing her husband on the stand, heard of young Kingdon Gould's statement regarding his mother, she repeated her assertion.

"Mrs. George Gould has been a very good mother to her children and she has never felt it a good thing to take her children into her confidence concerning these unfortunate family affairs," she said. "I believe it is true that Mrs. Howard Gould never visited the George Goulds at Lakewood, but she has met both Mr. and Mrs. George Gould, and the latter is friendly toward her, no matter what may be said to the contrary. This feeling, of course, has never gone to the extent of creating any discussion between the George Goulds, but the present unpleasant situation is just the kind to crystalize it.

Boni Dislikes Howard.

"Concerning Mme. Anna Gould and Count Boni de Castellane, it is a fact that neither has any very strong motive for being particularly friendly to Howard Gould. Mrs. Gould quite appreciates that she would be asking a great deal of Mme. Anna in requesting her to come to America solely for the purpose of testifying against her brother, and she has no way of knowing that the former Countess would be willing.

"There is this much to that phase of the situation, however. Howard Gould has been unduly friendly with some of the Count's relatives. He has associated with some of them in this country, as will be shown when the divorce case comes to trial.

"When Anna found that life with the count was becoming unendurable, she, of course, turned to the members of her own family for comfort and advice. George was very good to her, as the public knows, and aided her in every way. Howard's friendliness for some of the count's relatives, however, made him refrain from taking a too active part in the support of his sister's cause. He would have preferred to see his sister overlook many of the count's shortcomings.

"On the other hand, when it came down to a question of money, the thing the count really was most interested in, he did not find that Howard was much of a friend, but that, on the contrary, he was more strongly opposed than any other member of the family to letting more of the Gould fortune slip through the count's hands.

"While Howard Gould was abroad both the Count and Countess learned a great deal about what he was doing. Mrs. Howard Gould's charges against her husband will be very broad, including certain incidents in Europe which she has reason to believe both the Count and the Countess could confirm.

"One of the principal reasons Mrs. Howard Gould would have for not wanting the former Anna Gould as one of her witnesses is the life Howard led prior to the time she met him. The public will remember that late in 1893 Howard Gould was expected to marry Odette Tyler, and that at about the same time Anna was very much in love with Harry Woodruff, the actor. As I remember Miss Tyler and Woodruff were in the same company, and this threw the [fo]ur into each other's company a great deal.

"The inference is that Anna learned a great deal about Howard's personal affairs and could be forced to tell some injurious facts concerning her brother's reputation before his marriage. Probably these same facts could be obtained by putting either Mr. Woodruff or Miss Tyler on the stand, but what they could tell probably would be only hearsay.

"All of Mrs. Gould's friends understand that Mr. Gould intends, when the case comes to trial, to produce every fact that he can to blacken his wife's reputation. We all know he has been endeavoring constantly to find something in her life prior to the time he met her that would be sufficient for an annulment. Although he was unsuccessful in this, the way in which he has acted convinces us that he will have his attorney, Delancey Nicoll, cross-examine her about her whole life.

"She is not one bit afraid of that, but it is her intention to give Howard a dose of the same medicine and to make him answer questions concerning many incidents. She thinks she can stand the strongest kind of an examination, but that her husband, when he leaves the witness stand will wish he had never tried to defend the action."

LEAVE OLD PARTIES, ENROLL IN LEAGUE

Large Number of Cambridge Voters Join Organization Not Tied to Trusts.

OPPORTUNITY FOR LABOR

Because they are disgusted with the old parties, a large number of Cambridge voters appeared in the city clerk's office, city hall, last night and became enrolled as members of the Independence League.

President Albin M. Richards of the Cambridge Independence League, Augustus Seaver, president of the Cambridge Municipal Ownership League, and City Clerk Edward J. Brandon were present and aided the men in enrolling.

The city clerk's office has been open for evenings and good work has been accomplished by the local Independence League men. Those who have enrolled in the League are: Edward Cassidy, Democrat, No. 144 Pearl street, Ward 4; Augustus Seaver, Democrat, No. 210 Harvard street, Ward 4; Edward O'Brien, Democrat, No. [illegible] Moore street, Ward [illegible]; [illegible] Democrat, No. [illegible], Ward [illegible]; Andrew T. Ja[illegible], [illegible] Tudor street, Ward 7; [illegible] Democrat, No. [illegible]; Ward 8; George F. W[illegible], [illegible] Bristol street, Ward [illegible]; [illegible] Democrat, No. [illegible], Ward 9; John F. Howa[illegible], No. 182 [illegible] street, Ward 4; [illegible], No. 28 Market st[reet], Ward [illegible]; [illegible] A. [illegible] Green, Democrat, No. 60 [illegible] street, Ward 4; [illegible] Democrat, No. [illegible]; William F. Ware, [illegible] street, Ward [illegible]; [illegible] Partisan, No. 54 Howard street, Ward [illegible]; William Palmer, Re[publican], No. 20 [illegible] street, Ward [illegible]; [illegible] Democrat, No. 22 [illegible] street, Ward [illegible]; Patrick J. Mosaher, No. [illegible] Thorndike street, Ward [illegible]; [illegible] Zamore, Non-Partisan, No. 75 Dana street, Ward 5.

"The reason for my change of party," said James A. Breslin to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, "is because I firmly believe in the Independence League platform and that its issues should be supported by the workingmen. The Democratic and the Non-Partisan parties in Cambridge hardly recognize the working men.

"The Non-Partisan party is nothing more than the Republican party in disguise and every workingman knows how much can be expected in interests per[illegible] from representatives. I believe in the referendum and every representative should be made to pledge himself to support this measure.

"Organized labor firmly united can demand recognition in Cambridge politics. The only hope for the workingmen in Cambridge is to organize and join the Independence League."

Augustus Seaver, president of the Cambridge Municipal Ownership League, is one of the many Cambridge Democrats who have tired of misrepresentation on the part of machine leaders, and he has changed his political affiliation from the Democratic to the Independence League party.

RECTIFY WRONG OF 1905, CRY NEW YORK CITIZENS

Recount Committee to Appear Before "Mayor" McClellan Will Be Unusually Large.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

New York, June 1.—Frederick B. Shipley, secretary of the Recount Committee which was appointed by John Dewitt Warner and of which William M. Ivins is chairman, announced today a list of names of those who had by letter expressed their willingness to serve on the committee.

Many more names are expected before Tuesday, when the committee appears before George B. McClellan in City Hall at a public hearing on the recount bill. It is already clear, however, that the committee will prove to be one of the most impressive bodies ever assembled.

Men of All Classes.

The list contains the names of professional men, of business men and of representatives of labor unions. Among them are the names of college professors, ministers of the Gospel, eminent lawyers, distinguished physicians and patriotic citizens from all walks of life.

Messrs. Warner and Shipley were informed today that [illegible]

Interest Very Keen

The Independence League, of course, is interested because the [illegible] of that organization was the candidate who, as many people believe, was elected to [illegible] and deprived of the office by frauds previously unheard of in American city politics.

The interest is so keen that all indications point to a concerted effort not only of the highest character, but [illegible] Register Alfred J. Boulton of Kings county said:

"The labor unions feel profoundly on the subject because the labor unionist in politics [illegible] the average American citizen [illegible] and good candidates [illegible] to drive out of office unworthy [illegible]."

MILITIA WILL TRY TO CAPTURE FORTS

Army Officer Now Here Planning for Mimic Battle with Guardsmen.

With the coming to Boston of Lieutenant Colonel E. M. Weaver all of the New England coast artillery forts and militiamen in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Maine will soon learn of definite plans in connection with the joint army and militia manoeuvres which are to be held in June and July. Brigadier General Murray, chief of artillery, is also expected shortly, and his orders to Colonel Weaver are a forerunner for this officer to observe the situation and prepare the way for the chief of artillery.

Colonel Weaver will go to the forts this week in the following order: Fort McKinley, Fort Williams and Fort Preble, Me., where he will map out the situation for the Maine militiamen. Then he will visit Fort Banks, Fort Strong, Fort Andrew and Fort Revere in Boston harbor and [illegible] after Bay State militiamen's plan of [illegible] Fort Adams, Fort M[illegible] and Fort Greble, R. I., and look after Rhode Island's coast artillerymen in the State service.

These manoeuvres, something entirely new to the country, will at least teach the soldiers on the [illegible] something about [illegible] also [illegible] of the soldier's life. [illegible] New England over 20,000 men will participate in the mimic warfare.

The coast artillerymen of the states will cooperate [illegible] forts with the regular [illegible] artillerymen will [illegible] as a [illegible] force. It is expected that the navy will also be pressed into service and try to effect an entry into the United States at the three points where the forts are located.

Philadelphia TRUNK Factory Bought Out By HENRY SIEGEL Co

Entire Stock Moved to Boston

The Ward-Pepper Trunk, Bag and Suit Case business has grown to such enormous proportions that a new building is required exclusively for the manufacture of the famous Ward-Pepper trunks. Now the old building in Philadelphia, of which we present an exact likeness in a pen sketch drawn from an actual photograph, is to be remodeled. In order to move the entire stock with one gigantic sweep the Ward-Pepper Co. have sold outright for cash every trunk, bag and suit case in their Philadelphia factory to the Henry Siegel organization of four great stores—largest retailers of traveling goods in the world.

Prices tell a more thrilling bargain story than words, and with thousands of New Englanders to supply with trunks, bags and suit cases for their Summer vacation trips, holiday and Sunday outings, junkets to Europe and tours of the American continent, this sale is bound to go down in history as the greatest event of its kind in America.* Basement, Essex Street.

Baby Contest

A chance to win a $20 gold framed water color of your baby absolutely free—size 16x20.

Any child under 6 years of age may be entered in this contest.

The popular Siegel studio has taken more pictures for the contest now running in the Boston American than any other photograph studio in Boston. We make a specialty of the portraiture of children, and the acknowledged superiority of our work has caused us to receive a number of requests for a baby contest of our own. Bring your baby in at once, any boy or girl under 6 years of age. We make a specialty of 12 cabinet photos in folders for $2.50.

We reserve the right to discontinue the baby contest at any time.

If your baby is the prettiest, you will receive a $20 water color in gold frame, size 16x20. The general public will be the judge in this contest.

ACCUSE WOMAN OF VIOLATING MAIL LAW

Madame Kress Pleads to and Threatens Inspector, but Goes to Jail Cell.

Hysterically pleading and threatening in turn, Madame Matt[illegible] Kress, as she advertises herself, vainly tried to effect her release from Post Office Inspector Donald E. McLeod after he had placed her under arrest in the postoffice last night on a charge of [illegible] in the mail articles designed for [illegible] purposes.

Inspector has [illegible] her for [illegible] days. There was nothing in the circulars she sent out to [illegible] her address so the inspector had to wait till she came to collect her mail. After she was arrested and said she could not give bail, she was taken to Charles-street jail to await a hearing tomorrow before Federal Commissioner Hayes.

She told Inspector McLeod she lived in Somerville, but it is believed at the postoffice that she lives in the Back Bay. The inspectors say that [illegible] she has received from $5 to $10 a day through the mails from people who sought the articles advertised.

Madame Kress has been in Boston since November. Her arrest is the result of a new determination on the part of the Postoffice Department to put an end to this abuse of the mail privileges.

ROOSEVELT IS NOT TO HEAD HARVARD WHILE ELIOT LIVES

the new organization of that body, now in progress, is completed.

"Of course the university overseers are elected by the alumni, and it might be that the President would accept a place upon that body if there were a [illegible] but that suggestion hardly seems to offer an explanation.

"There is no plan, so far as I am aware, to connect actively President Roosevelt with the business management of the university, and I should rather infer that he had reference to his coming freedom from official cares at the expiration of his term of office."

Dr. Walcott Emphatic.

Dr. Walcott, who heads the corporation which controls and practically owns Harvard University, is apparently as greatly perplexed by the President's words as is Dr. Eliot. Dr. Walcott, who is also well known in political life as the chairman of the State Board of Health, asserts that were the President of the United States a candidate for head of the Harvard faculty, he would not vote for him. He feels, he says, that Mr. Roosevelt's statement is ambiguous and entirely beyond understanding. To a reporter for the AMERICAN he said yesterday:

"I have heard frequent reports that President Roosevelt aspired to head the faculty at Harvard when he left the White House. But there is not the slightest ground for any report that Dr. Eliot is to resign and is working to have Mr. Roosevelt come to Cambridge. As a friend of President Roosevelt, I have reason to believe, in common with others, that his earnest hope after his term at the White House is to become Senator from New York State.

"I should not vote for his selection to head the Harvard faculty, because, in the first place, he is not what you would call an academic man.

No Chance for Roosevelt.

"I have been asked several times if Mr. Roosevelt was coming to Cambridge to succeed Dr. Eliot. I have always answered the question, as I do now, in the negative. The six members of the corporation are the ones to elect a president. We are not looking for a successor to Dr. Eliot and we hope he will remain with us for many years yet.

"President Roosevelt is one of the most loyal of Harvard men and, of course, very friendly to the college, but there is no possibility of his ever becoming president of the university."

Speculation Is Rife.

Despite this assertion leading Harvard students, alumni and, even, members of the faculty, are by no means sure that the present tenant of the White House will not succeed Dr. Eliot. It is believed by many that the latter is anxious, owing to advanced age, to resign the reins which he has held for several decades, and would gladly see President Roosevelt in his place.

Dr. Walcott's suggestion that the President of the Nation become manager of athletics at Harvard is not taken seriously. In fact, he smiled as he made the remark.

TRY MOLASSES ON NEGROES

New Orleans, June 1.—Nine negro inmates of the local jail will be used by the authorities to determine whether molasses as manufactured for years is hurtful to health. The use of chemicals was recently stopped under an interpretation of the pure food law. The experiment consists in feeding the negroes plenty of molasses and making blood tests.

STOUT WOMAN'S CHOICE
THE Nemo TRIPLE-STRIP
SELF-REDUCING CORSET

The enormous demand for the Nemo Self-Reducing corset during the "Nemo Week Sale" exceeded the most liberal supply of every corset department in all retail stores where Nemo corsets are sold, throughout this country.

Leading retailers and experienced saleswomen who are anxious to gain and retain customers united their efforts to recommend this corset and to advise all stout women not to buy any other.

If there was any need of a positive proof that the Nemo Self-Reducing is the only corset the stout woman cares to wear, this "Nemo Week Sale" has furnished it.

It has established the facts in the most convincing way—

¶ That the Nemo Self-Reducing corset stands alone, in a class by itself without a rival,

¶ That it is the only corset which reduces the figure most effectually and gives comfort, health and style at the same time,

¶ That it supports the abdomen perfectly and brings relief to those who are physically weak,

¶ That it produces a correct foundation for a well-fitting gown and gives the stout woman the best shape she has ever had,

¶ That considering its wonderful wearing qualities and what it accomplishes, the Nemo Self-Reducing corset at $3.00 is a more economical investment than three ordinary corsets at $1.00 each.

TALKS ON TEETH

Dentistry Revolutionized

For nearly a century there had been no great change in the science of dentistry. Dentists filled teeth that showed signs of decay, and pulled out loose ones.

Many times they pulled out whole rows of sound teeth, so they could make room for a plate. Think of that!

Or, they would maltreat sound teeth to build a bridge—another crime against the unfortunate patient—for these bridges—so called—were temporary affairs and only put in as a makeshift. "They will do until such a time as you have to have a set of plates"—was what the patient was told.

Three or four months—or a year or two, and then—a set of plates—nice outlook that was. A fine prospect for the future.

The science of dentistry progressed slowly and showed a sad lack of enlightenment—until about four years ago.

Four years ago the Alveolar Method was announced to the world as a revolution in old methods of dentistry. It created a sensation.

The idea of putting teeth in the mouth without plates or the ordinary bridge work, and making them stick—was dismissed by the average dentist as something not worth discussing.

It can't be done they said—and that settled it—as far as they were concerned.

That was a perfectly natural course to take, for if it could be done it was going to work havoc with the then methods in use.

The Alveolar Method must have been right—for within four years this company has risen to a point where it now does the largest dental business in the world, having magnificent suites of offices in Boston, New York, Chicago and Kansas City, and contemplating the addition of more branches in the near future to complete the chain which will reach from San Francisco to Boston, and from St. Paul to New Orleans.

Over ten thousand happy people scattered over this country singing the praises of the Alveolar Method—and the number being added to daily.

Surely we have a right to claim that the Alveolar Method has brought about a revolution in dental methods.

Briefly the Method is this:

If you have two or more teeth left in either jaw, whether tight or loose, we will, with the Alveolar Method, supply all those which have been lost, and you can use these new teeth with as much comfort and satisfaction as you ever enjoyed when you had your natural teeth.

They will fit tight and stay tight.

We use no surgery, don't bore or cut into the gums, cause you no pain or discomfort while the work is being done.

Patents on the process have been granted this Company by this government and six of the foreign governments of the world.

Alveolar teeth cannot be had in any office outside of ours. There is nothing like the method, nothing just as good, so don't be misled by the promises made by unscrupulous dentists who may claim to do similar work.

The Alveolar method is our great specialty, but we are general practitioners, and because of the skill required to put in Alveolar teeth the operators in our offices are all men of superior ability—careful, skilful, sympathetic men, who will make you comfortable even though the work to be done be most intricate.

We have made "a visit to the dentist's" a pleasure instead of something to be dreaded.

We make a careful examination and diagnosis of the teeth free of charge or obligation to have any work done.

Call at our offices and let one of our examining dentists look your teeth over thoroughly. If you are wearing a partial plate or bridge—and have some teeth left we can give you new teeth—and let you throw the other makeshifts away. Isn't this important enough to investigate.

If you cannot call conveniently, send for our free book, "Alveolar Dentistry," which explains the method in detail. We will inclose a book of testimonials when we send it.

These books will bring you to us if you will read them. Both sent free—write for them now—to-day.

LEADERS REPLY TO MELLEN'S SLUR ON ORGANIZED LABOR.

Railroad President Said Increased Wages Mean Decreased Efficiency.

DEFY HIM TO PROVE IT

"STATISTICS ARE IGNORED"

SAMUEL GOMPERS, president of the American Federation of Labor, together with other men prominent in railroading and in the world of labor, were quick yesterday to take issue with President Charles S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad for his statement that an increase in wages to organized labor is generally followed by a decrease in efficiency.

This is what Mr. Mellen said in an address to stockholders of the New Haven on their vote to merge with the Consolidated Railway Company of Connecticut: "I regret to say, so far as the organized labor item is concerned, that I am meeting constantly a decreased efficiency with every increase in wages."

Claim Is Impossible

"If President Mellen's statement is true," said Mr. Gompers, "he is in an isolated and unprecedented position. As a matter of fact, the claim which Mr. Mellen makes is a natural and physical contradiction and impossibility. The trend of skill is always to the trades and callings in which higher and better wages prevail."

Secretary Henry Abrahams of the Central Labor Union said: "Mr. Mellen's argument, followed to a logical conclusion, would simply mean that more and better service was rendered by the slave than that performed by free labor. In America, where wages are the highest, a better grade of work is performed, costing the manufacturer less than that performed in countries where hours are long and the wages small."

Points to the Solution.

John F. Miles, former legislative agent of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, said: "The railroad managements are usually to blame for this falling off in efficiency, because of the fact that little or no initiative or authority is vested with the men directly responsible for employes in their charge. Briefly, the throne is too far removed from the actual seat of trouble. It seems to me that it is a matter for consideration by the state and interstate commissions. Government ownership would solve it."

President Arthur M. Huddell of the Boston Central [illegible] Union said: "When we take into consideration the growing demands made upon the railroad employe, President Mellen's declaration will hardly bear a close scrutiny. Greater skill and responsibility should mean more wages, and the railroad employe, with the lives of hundreds [illegible] his charge, is entitled to a high wage."

Statistics Say Otherwise.

President John F. Potts of the Wage Earners Central Club said: "Mr. Mellen's statement that there is a decrease in efficiency with every increase in wages is at variance with all industrial history."

Treasurer John F. Kennedy of the Building Trades section of the Central Labor Union said: "It would be hard for Mr. Mellen to reconcile his statement with facts and figures furnished by the national and State labor bureaus during the last quarter of a century."

LEGISLATIVE PLUMS FOR REAL GOOD BOYS

Teachers Cole and Chapple to Dispense $51,000 Feast or Recess Pastimes.

JULIUS MEYERS HELPS OUT

$51,000 RECESS FUND FOR SOLONS
W[illegible] Speaker Cole and President Chapple can give their friends in Summer committee appointments
On Labor Laws, 11 Representatives, 4 Senators	$15,000
On Fire Insurance, 11 Representatives, 4 Senators	15,000
On Mellen's Merger, 11 Representatives, 4 Senators	$15,000
Taxation Commission, 4 Representatives, 2 Senators	6,000
Grand total	$51,000

If the Legislature decides to hold one more recess committee on the "rumor" that reaches Representative Julius Meyers of Cambridge that the New Haven road is about to gobble the Boston & Maine, John [illegible] Cole of Andover, Speaker of the House, will have thirty-seven thousand dollar jobs to give out, late next week, and President William D. Chapple of the Senate fourteen similar plums to dispose of.

Nearly everybody on Beacon Hill is now agreed that the Legislature will [illegible] up its shutters on or about June 14. Some of the lawmakers are going away from here. At least [illegible], however, [illegible] to stay on the job with recess committee snaps. Recess committeemen draw down $1,000 each in the wisdom of the governor and council.

Looking for Extra Jobs.

There is the recess committee by which [illegible] legislation was sidetracked for at least a year, the recess committee which will go through the form of inquiring into fire insurance affairs, without the power to send for persons and papers, and the taxation commission to codify, revise and amend the laws relating to taxation. Recess committees are made up of 11 representatives and four senators each; the taxation commission of four representatives, two senators and three experts.

And to this list Meyers of Cambridge, a second [illegible] man, would add a recess committee of fifteen to consider the merger "rumor," to see if the deal cannot be headed off and to consider whether it wouldn't be well for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to buy the Boston & Maine railroad. A life size photograph of Meyers voting for a bill authorizing the State's purchase of the railroad would be worth [illegible] as much to most of the committeemen as the thousand dollar fee.

"I am an out and out believer in the sessions of the Legislature," one of its most prominent members said last night, "but this recess thing is making the annuals almost farcial. To my way of thinking, the biennial session is one thing, the annual session another thing and the continuous performance quite another. With a real fight on, [illegible] Klaw & Erlanger and the other vaudeville people it would seem as though the State House might well retire from the field [illegible] the caretakers should be given a chance to clean up for the session of 1908."

But the recess committees are coming along notwithstanding, and two weeks from today thirty-seven Representatives and fourteen Senators will be ready to say that they are a good thing. Certain other Representatives will say things about recess committees that no respectable family newspaper will care to print. These will be the gentlemen who feel that John Cole hasn't "taken care" of them.

Clerks Quite Ignored

At the present writing, Meyers's merger committee meets with general approval in the corridors except among the members of the Amalgamated Association of Recess Committee Clerks. This close [illegible] organization composed of one or two ex-assemblymen, one or two newspaper men lobbyists and two or three lobbyist newspaper men views with alarm the fact that there is no mention in the Meyers bill of a clerk for the committee. As the recess committee clerk usually does all the work, the omission was plainly an oversight. The Head Clerk will see Mr. Meyers about it tomorrow.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The management of the Chicago-New York Electric Air Line Railroad take pleasure in announcing to the public that on Saturday, June 15th, 1907, at 9 A. M., that portion of the line between La Porte and South La Porte, Indiana, will be officially opened for traffic. A souvenir ticket with a coupon attached for the round trip between La Porte and South La Porte may be had for ten cents. The first one thousand tickets will be numbered consecutively and sold in numerical order to the highest bidder.

A. C. MILLER,

President and General Manager, Chicago-New York Electric Air Line Railroad Company

The above announcement will be welcome news to the thousands of investors when it is remembered that barely ten months have elapsed since the first announcement of this great enterprise was given to the public. Too much praise cannot be given to the investors who so readily responded to the invitation to invest, or to the management for the rapid progress that has been made in the development of the enterprise.

The physical construction of the road which has been accomplished in this short space of time is a mere incident compared to the effort and energy that have been expended in laying the foundation for the work that is yet to be accomplished. Perhaps no enterprise has ever been so widely advertised and so generally discussed. Stockholders may be found in every quarter of the civilized world, and agencies, where information may be obtained and stock purchased, have been established in nearly all the leading cities of the country. Aside from this foundation work, a great deal has been accomplished in the physical construction of the road, and valuable franchises and concessions have been secured. The construction company which is building the road, while it has had to contend with a winter season and a spring of unprecedented bad weather, has a large and complete organization, and has made remarkable progress, not only on the completed portion between La Porte and South La Porte, but over fifteen additional miles of the main line toward Chicago. The stock of this company, which is now selling at $48 per share, should advance from now on, and should reach par when the first one hundred miles is put in operation.

In order to afford stockholders and investors an opportunity to inspect the work accomplished and participate in the opening day exercises, this company has arranged with the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad for a special excursion to be run on that day at the exceptionally low rate of $1.20 for the round trip. The train will leave the Lake Shore depot at 10:40 a. m., reaching La Porte at 12:15, and arriving in Chicago on the return trip about 6 p. m.

CUPID CAPTURES THE "BELLE OF MAYFAIR."

Actress renounces [illegible] to family life. Her wedding occurs Tuesday. Evidence [illegible] have their attractions may be found in her elaborate trousseau, the items being [illegible] worth of shoes.

HONEYMOON MOTOR TOUR FOR EDNA MAY

"Belle of Mayfair," to Wed Oscar Lewisohn, Has an Elaborate Trousseau.

London, June 1.—Edna May, who has [illegible] the title of [illegible] Belle of Mayfair [illegible] stage [illegible] engrossed with [illegible] plans for her marriage next Tuesday to Oscar Lewisohn.

Though Miss May is renouncing the footlights and retiring to family life by way of the registrar's office, her trousseau is ample evidence that the vanities of the world still have their attraction. One of the items is $750 worth of shoes. Others are in keeping.

The wedding is to take place at Ascot, where the actress lives. There will be about thirty guests.

"It will be just a family gathering," said Miss May, with a charming smile. "When one begins to ask relatives and [illegible] that [illegible] is soon [illegible]. We want, of course, to have the quietest wedding possible. We both feel that way about it.

"Where will we go? We will spend three months in our motor car visiting the places I want to see and to know well. We will dawdle about [illegible] and the Italian lakes [illegible] the old cities of [illegible] I am sure will compensate [illegible]. When we return we will settle down near London again till the late Autumn.

"Then? Oh, [illegible] we will go away. First we shall visit America and Mr. Lewisohn's [illegible]. After that we intend to go to Australia, and from there to take a peep at Japan and many places in the Far East.

"When we finally come back to England we will have our own home near London, and that," Miss May looked as demure as the Salvation Army lassie—"will be for good."

URGES IRELAND'S FRIENDS TO RALLY TO HER SUPPORT

In Call for Public Demonstration United Irish League Eulogizes Michael Davitt.

New York, June 1.—The public demonstration to endorse the action of the Irish National Convention and to commemorate the first anniversary of the death of Ireland's [illegible] patriot, Michael Davitt, will be held [illegible] Hall tomorrow evening.

The officers of the United Irish League of America have issued the following call [illegible]

A century and a quarter ago the illustrious Grattan thundered forth his famous declaration that "the Kings, Lords and Commons of Ireland were the only [illegible] competent authority to make laws for Ireland," [illegible] England in [illegible] [illegible] by her [illegible] which was to last "forever" [illegible] eighteen years later by the so-called act of union.

[illegible] in the [illegible] House of Commons [illegible]

The [illegible] has shown the strength and unity of Ireland behind her party and [illegible] and her ability as a sovereign nation to judge for herself what is in [illegible] interest and her liberty to [illegible] her sentiments in dignified and weighty words, and to show England and the world she is capable of governing herself if given the chance.

This, then, is the time for her friends the world over to wage the bitter fight anew in her behalf, to indorse what she has done and pledge her again their unflagging support.

To give every friend of Ireland a word in the renewal of the [illegible] this meeting will be absolutely free, though no attempt of charge has ever kept them away. But this being the first anniversary of the death of Michael Davitt is another reason why it should be so. [illegible] Davitt's devotion to the cause which was his life work and whose success will be his monument [illegible] we believe, noble, and attendance for the double purpose sure sign of undying fealty to Ireland.

FOUGHT FOR CUBA, NOW ACTS IN SPAIN

Madrid, June 1.—Spaniards are enjoying the rare treat of seeing a Cuban General as an actor in a piece called "Men of Good Will." The General is Henrique Collazo, who took active part in the insurrection against Spain. On the theatre play bills appears the following declaration written by the General to the public:

"I served my country during the war, but in times of peace I have been unable to find a situation in any of the state departments. At the age of fifty-nine I have to adopt the stage as a profession in order to gain my daily bread. I am sure the public will understand my motives in doing this, and not blame me. I ask you to support me in this act of mine and to pardon me if you find it unseemly."

This act would not perhaps attract so much notice in any other country except Spain, but that beautiful and aristocratic land is still proud of its old traditions, and the sight of a General posing as an actor is sure to arouse a feeling of repulsion.

BOY PRINCE SHARES SAILORS' HARDSHIPS

King Edward's Grandson and Namesake Cheerfully Faces Daily Task.

London, June 1.—Prince Edward, son of the Prince of Wales, and a future King of England in all probability, as a member of the Osborne Cadets has little time left these days for mere play. [illegible] is even [illegible] the King Edward [illegible] which the King of England gave his [illegible] for the coming King of England is learning to be a real sailor [illegible] of a play one.

The Osborne cadets are soon to take their first [illegible] cruise on H. M. S. [illegible] and [illegible] preparations are being made at Osborne College [illegible] In the hard work which is being done now preparatory to the voyage Prince Edward must forget his rank and dignity and take his turn with the rest of the English boys.

Jolly with His "Subjects."

From 6.30 in the morning until 8.45 at night there is little idle time at the college. Reveille sounds at 6.30 and the boys, Prince and all, must turn out and be dressed by 6.50. Then there is cocoa and at 7 studies begin, to be interrupted at 7.50 for breakfast. More studies follow work in the gymnasium and dinner at 1.10 in the afternoon. Then more studies until 4.30, when a short time is allowed for recreation and bathing. At 7 in the evening tea is served, then evening studies and at 8.45 prayers are followed by turning in at the dormitories. This routine is followed six days a week with military exactness.

[illegible] Prince Edward, the sailor prince of England, is a jolly, hardy, healthy, active little fellow, thoroughly [illegible] in his ways. All he wants is a square deal with his fellows, whom he seemingly forgets are to be his subjects some distant day. His democratic manner makes him the idol of his boy mates.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—Abraham Ruef, Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz, President Patrick Calhoun of the United Railroads and his associates in the management of the political department of that corporation, Thornsell Mullaley, T. L. Ford and William M. Abbott; and Frank G. Drum, John Martin and Eugene De Salsba of the Gas Company, were today arraigned before Judge Lawler, on the fourteen indictments charging them with receiving and giving bribes.

Their arraignment was continued for a week. In the same court Louis Glass, of the Pacific States Telephone & Telegraph Company, already arraigned, moved to set aside the indictments against him, presenting through Attorney D. M. Delmas a number of grounds on which the motion was based. Arguments will be heard next week.

At the same time, before Judge Dunne, Theodore V. Halsey, bribe agent of the telephone company, made a motion similar to that of Glass, giving substantially the same grounds, and his arguments will be heard next week.

Mayor Schmitz was the first to enter the court room and he seemed very ill at ease. He was pale and there were more lines about his mouth and eyes than showed a week ago. He moved his chair forward nervously

IMMENSE CROWDS TURN TO GREAT VANITY FAIR SHOW

Providence, R. I., June 1.—Granting that the weather is favorable, another of those immense crowds which are fast making Vanity Fair famous as an amusement centre and potential magnet is sure to pass within the gates of the Mystic City tomorrow.

Memorial Day saw the largest number of people there, without question, that ever assembled at any Summer resort in Rhode Island. The patronage then was variously estimated at from forty to sixty thousand, some going so far as to figure it as high as 100,000.

Yesterday the International Association of Machinists had their outing, or rather their annual outing, and chose Vanity Fair for their rendezvous. They turned out fully 15,000 strong, and by their own accounts had the most enjoyable time on record.

Everything Shipshape.

Vanity Fair was not completed for the inaugural, but since then the transformation has been both rapid and remarkable. Now everything is in shipshape condition, and the board walk, with all its attractions, presents a most inviting and enticing appearance. These attractions include the "shoot the chutes," "Fighting the Flames," the infant incubators, the mystifying oriental produce, La Mariposa, Hu[illegible], "Down in Dixie," the scenic theatre, temple of palmistry, ballroom de luxe, College Inn and a host of minor features, to say nothing of the Salem Cadet Band concerts and the open air circus.

One thing that speaks for the success of Vanity Fair is the quality of the patronage, as well as the size of the crowds, which are making it their daily mecca.

On Memorial day among the thousands who thronged the gates and the board walk were to be noted many family groups.

The discipline maintained, thanks to the thorough policing of Vanity Fair, is much appreciated.

Among the many shows within this "city of a thousand thrills" which will tend to popularize the new Rhode Island resort the most realistic is "Fighting the Flames." It was presented for the first time on the opening day, and now is the most patronized attraction in Vanity Fair.

Real Conflagration.

"Fighting the Flames" represents a real conflagration in a large business block surrounding a city square. This production is a decided novelty for Rhode Island. It has [illegible] features to offset its [illegible]. Nearly 300 people are [illegible] the fire show, including fifty trained firemen, a military company, a [illegible] Salvation Army and band, [illegible] police officers, a street [illegible]. Add to this the fact of a complete [illegible] with twenty horses [illegible] for the work and one has a [illegible].

Dash to the Rescue.

Instantly [illegible] sounded and the fire apparatus, [illegible] hospital ambulances dash [illegible]. At the same time, the flames [illegible] avenue of escape [illegible] of the burning building are seen [illegible] efforts to get out. It is at this most critical juncture that the [illegible] crew of the fire department scale life ladders to the roof and then, grasping the terror-stricken inmates, slide with them, hand over hand, down the life ropes to the sidewalk. But the most sensational [illegible] are the leaps for life, one of which is from the top of the burning building, fifty feet, to the life net.

Free-for-All Circus.

The programme includes Wormwood's performing bears, dogs and monkeys, Paola Piquet, the European [illegible], George and Harrington in their [illegible] act, Work and Ower [illegible], the Harringtons in an aerial act, Chiles and Chiles, [illegible] comedy [illegible], the Van [illegible] Tesa [illegible] in a novelty act.

Beginning tomorrow there will be a new programme. It [illegible] which will include the following: the Loadons, in their sensational casting act, Mlle. Vieorra's performing dog and leaping [illegible], the S. Lyceum troupe of Japanese in mystifying acts, George and Georgie, in their celebrated rebounding [illegible] act, and Mlle. Omega De Witt, [illegible] the tight wire

CLIMB FIRE ESCAPE IN BACK BAY THEFT

Robbers Believed to Have Been Frightened Away in Daylight Raid.

Deliberately making their way from the ground to the roof by means of the fire escape, and then gaining access [illegible] tenants below, crooks perpetrated one of the most daring of recent robberies [illegible] when they entered the house of Mrs. A. B. Everett, No. 104 Belvedere street, Back Bay, sometime yesterday [illegible].

All that the daring thief or thieves secured was three one-dollar gold pieces, some small change and a [illegible] worth $25. It is believed they were frightened before they got fairly started on their work.

Nothing was known of the robbery until Mrs. Everett returned home [illegible], when she at once telephoned the police.

HIGH LICENSE AT SHORE.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 1.—The City Council has decided upon a $42[illegible] license fee, raised from $350, and defeated the proposition for early closing of beach front bars, the principal reform sought in the fight for better control of local saloons.

FIRE LEVELS SHOE MACHINE BUILDING

Beverly Storage House Destroyed—Loss Is $5,000, Cause Unknown.

Beverly, June 1.—Fire tonight destroyed the storage house of the United Shoe Machinery Company's plant in this town. The loss is about $5,000. The blaze, the origin of which is not known at this time, broke out at about 7.30 o'clock this evening and in a short time, owing to the gasoline, oils and paints stored in the large wooden building, the fire was beyond control.

The first alarm was followed by another and then a general alarm was turned in and the whole Beverly fire department hastened to the scene, as the great main building, the factory of the United Shoe Machinery Company, not 120 feet distant, was threatened for a time with destruction.

For a time the fire gained on the firemen because the water had not been turned into the mains in the company's property and the firemen were compelled to go to Elliot street, more than 300 yards distant, and from the streets of the town run their hose to the burning building.

The flames were under control shortly after 9 o'clock.

CRISIS PENDS IN TEAMSTERS' STRIKE

Hearings on Injunction Suits Brought by Masters Scheduled for To-morrow.

The courts, the clergy and the stage bring three important developments to-morrow in the teamsters' strike.

All three issues in the matter are of immediate interest to the Team Drivers' Union and to the 300 teamsters on strike.

The court developments comprises two hearings to-morrow morning on injunction suits brought against the strikers by the bosses. The clergy enter the strike to-morrow morning when the Congregational Ministers' Society will discuss the strike. The stage interest comes in the monster benefit to be held in the Columbia Theatre to-morrow night to aid the strikers.

To-morrow morning the hearing of testimony before Master James D. Colt will be resumed to see if the temporary injunction restraining the striking teamsters from interfering with the master teamsters shall be made permanent.

UNITY CLUB ELECTION.

The nomination and election of officers of the Unity Club will be held at the West End House, No. 9 Eaton street, at 8 o'clock to-night.

UNDERTOW H[illegible] OCTOPUS DIVE

Trials May Have to Be [illegible] for Several Days, Dec[illegible] Officials.

The much heralded dive of the submarine boat Octopus will take place off [illegible] Ledge either to-morrow or Tuesday, and the date may have to be deferred later than that.

[illegible] a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter an official of the Fore River Works, Quincy, made the following statement:

"The delay has been necessitated by the heavy undertow off the light for the past few days, and until it abates there can be no question of a test. No submarine could be tested satisfactorily under such conditions, and the derrick arrangements would permit of no operations that would amount to anything more than a farce."

HAILS "TAINTED COIN."

Wabash, Ind., June 1.—"Tainted money will be accepted by me and will be placed to proper use," said Rev. Allen Jay of Richmond, Ind., in dedicating the new Friends Church. It meant that the Quakers do not object to tainted money. All of the $12,000 indebtedness was met at this dedication.

Century Dictionary & Cyclopedia & Atlas

Boston has always been a "CENTURY" city. This community was quick to appreciate the supreme usefulness of the work. It cost THE CENTURY Co. more than a million dollars before the first complete set was produced, and the price of the work was necessarily high. The rich took it quickly; students went without things to own it. More than 5000 people in Boston alone were glad to possess it even at the high price.

Now, all who act promptly may have it, at a great saving. It comes about through the unusual business enterprise of the well-known COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE, which secured exclusive control of the entire edition for 1907 and is distributing the sets as a supreme inducement to obtain desirable 2-year subscribers. THE COSMOPOLITAN resolved to make an offer entirely out of the ordinary, one that anybody could appreciate at a glance, one so attractive as to be well-nigh compelling. In a word, it resolved to present

The Greatest Book-Bargain Ever Offered

The price had to be brought down away down and this was done by having THE CENTURY Co. prepare the largest edition ever printed, thus reducing the cost of individual sets, while carefully maintaining the former high standard of mechanical excellence. The next step was to cut off absolutely all the big commissions that were being paid to book agents selling the work. THE COSMOPOLITAN did not figure upon any present profit for itself. It was satisfied with the large number of desirable subscribers certain to be added, because this increase in circulation would naturally command higher advertising rates in the near future. So the price was brought down to absolute bed-rock, making it possible to offer

Guaranty of The Century Co.

This edition (for 1907) of the Century Dictionary and Cyclopedia and Atlas, manufactured and published by us and just now being distributed by the Cosmopolitan Magazine, is unabridged, contains all the revisions and additions to date, is complete in every way, and is the latest edition published.

THE CENTURY CO.

The $80-CENTURY for Only $39 Including the COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE for 2 Full Years.

This is the offer of which so many thoughtful people in Boston and New England have wisely taken advantage during the past four weeks. This is the offer which remains open

"Seeing is Believing"

Some people may be sceptical about this really remarkable offer. It may seem "too good to be true." It is good and it is true. Although the price is so low, the value is all there. Every set is of the latest revised, enlarged and improved edition, fully guaranteed by THE CENTURY Co. and THE COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE, and fully endorsed by R. H. WHITE Co.—a pretty strong combination. But come and see for yourself. Inspect the volumes carefully. Compare them critically with any or all former editions and you can not fail to be absolutely convinced.

The allotment for Boston and New England (limited at the outset) is now nearly exhausted. It will soon be too late to enjoy any choice in the matter of bindings. ...R EXPOSES PANAMA TRIP

...sman Sent to Istamus so Disorderly He Was Put Out of Hotel.

...IERS PLAY ROUGH HOUSE

...ar Department Hears Woman Is Going South and Look Into Charges.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

New York, June 1.—The Rev. W. P. F. Ferguson, editor of the Defender, who recently made a sensational expose regarding conditions upon the Isthmus of Panama, says some pretty severe things about the Congressional party which visited the Isthmus recently. He says:

"Speaking of the visits of Congressmen I may [illegible] incidents that show the [illegible] of such visits. I was in [illegible] when the [illegible] Panama arrived there in the [illegible] part of the last month with a [illegible] of Congressmen. The greater part [illegible] appeared to me to be [illegible] of wh[illegible] American [illegible] property be [illegible].

"This was [illegible] tingent of [illegible] passed from [illegible] ing to report [illegible] deprived of [illegible] to the nearest [illegible] with ten [illegible] at her [illegible] bar, on [illegible].

Ejected from His Hotel.

"Some of this same party of Congressmen gave an exhibition of Anglo-Saxon civilization in this city by [illegible] one American [illegible] by drinking $60 worth of champagne in another.

"An [illegible] became so [illegible] the party was [illegible] that he was ejected from that respondent Government [illegible] and was forced to spend the night [illegible]. All whom I heard refer to this [illegible] was common talk [illegible] a week [illegible] the conduct of the hotel management [illegible] the only remarkable feature of the case. The matter was [illegible] the next morning [illegible] the fold [illegible] the incident, as they say in [illegible], was expunged from the record."

In speaking of Panama he says:

"One of the reasons why Panama gives at first the [illegible] impression than Colon is the fact that [illegible] most of the vicious resorts have [illegible] forced to seek the [illegible] of the side streets. This was not the case formerly [illegible], the leading street of the city formerly was thronged with the most infamous houses.

Vice Flourishes Here.

"Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, when she visited this city with her husband last November, rode down Central avenue, bowing right and left to women, many of them Americans, who [illegible] doubtless supposed to be the [illegible] and wives of American [illegible] who were in point of fact [illegible] the most remarkable aggregation of [illegible] women ever assembled.

"The [illegible] to show the [illegible] that being [illegible] was passed by the Panama Government of the city locating [illegible] on side streets."

Mr. Ferguson makes startling charges concerning the complicity of American officials with the vice traffic of Colon. He says: "It is [illegible] asserted, and, so far as I have heard never denied at Panama, that the most [illegible] vicious resort in Panama, an establishment that conducts a branch at Colon, and formerly occupied one of the most prominent sites on Central avenue, and now a large building in a convenient location, that this place was established upon the suggestion and the advice, as well as with the approval and under the patronage of the former Governors (American) of the Canal Zone.

Stories Well Substantiated.

"I am sorry to say that I think the scandalous stories well substantiated.

"I have it also upon evidence that would convince almost any jury that the new vice resort that has just been opened, a stone's throw from the grounds containing the Ancon Hospital and the Bachelor quarters in full sight of the new Governor's palace (for the American Governor) and close by the Ancon United States postoffice, is under the protection of a group of American officials.

"These people boast that they have the best pull on the Isthmus.

"As I have already indicated, their 'friends' include officials of high rank."

WHERE SHOPPERS MAY GET SPECIAL BARGAIN VALUES

Some Money Saving Reductions, Offered by Boston Merchants, Listed to Aid Busy Buyers.

JUNE'S Carnival of Bargains begins to-morrow, and things look rosy for shoppers. That readers of the Boston Sunday American may find easily the very best of the money-saving values offered by enterprising merchants to-morrow the following guide has been prepared:

BAILEY'S rubber store, on Boylston street will close out a lot of misses mackintoshes just the things for vacations and outings, including the colors blue and red. These $1 to $4 values you can get to-morrow for $1.50 and $2.

HOUGHTON & DUTTON CO. offer 250 pairs of very handsome Scotch lace curtains made to duplicate the richest hand-made laces, at the very special price of 60c. per pair. They also will sell about 100 pairs of their regular $3.48 Scotch madras weave lace curtains at $2.23 a pair.

HENRY SIEGEL CO. to-morrow begin their annual June sale of muslin underwear and French lingerie. They ask only 29c for 49c Night Gowns, [illegible] only 29c for 49c night gowns, square hemstitched ruffle. 79c for $1.25 night gowns, chemise and [illegible] with yoke of handsome embroidery and beading and draw ribbons. [illegible] for $1.50 night gowns, chemise and mother hubbard styles, prettily trimmed with cambric laces and hamburg insertion. 15c for 25c corset covers, round yoke, lace and hamburg edges. 37½c for 50c corset covers, several styles, elaborately trimmed with cluny, val and torchon laces. 75c for $1.00 corset covers, in a variety of dainty styles trimmed with fine lace and hamburgs.

FERDINAND'S (The Blue Store), in connection with their big sale of mission furniture, offer 5 patent adjustable back morris chairs with spring seat, spring back cushion and solid golden oak frame for only $5 each, good $12 values. They will also close out a lot of solid oak mission frame rockers at $3.98, all upholstered with spring seat covered with chase leather, regular $11 chairs.

DODGE-SPEAR CO. will have a millinery mark-down well worth noting. For instance, they will sell 150 dozen untrimmed hats of the most desirable shapes at [illegible] 75 cents and $1 values, for 25 cents, also regular $1.25 values in black, white and all colors, in all the best styles, including the Montauk and Jaunty Special at 49 cents.

E. R. KNIGHTS & CO. will put out for special sale $1 lawn waists in several styles with three-quarter sleeves, lace and embroidery trimmed to sell at sixty-nine cents each.

VORENBERG'S best novelty offerings include a silver water pitcher, standing eight inches high, all hand burnished and made by one of the best silversmiths in this country, quadruple plate, and warranted in every way. This pitcher sells usually for $7.50, sale price is $2.95.

TIMOTHY SMITH CO. will ask but 49 cents for their $1 negligee or lounging garments in new polka dots of all colors made fitted back with belt, full front, deep fancy scalloped collar button hole stitched three-quarter sleeve with ruffle.

SHEPARD NORWELL CO. will offer for to-morrow their Summer special in trimmed hats. In the lot are imported Tuscan flats in natural and burnt shades, trimmed with smart taffeta bows, Malines, etc., in white, black, navy and brown, making an exceedingly stylish hat, usual value $5, now at special price, each $3.95.

CONRAD'S have a great bargain in princess dresses, made of silk finished lingerie materials, trimmed with German val. laces, colors are blue, pink and white, value $10, to-morrow $5.95.

GILCHRIST CO., on the first floor, will offer ladies' pure silk vests, in regular and extra large sizes, $1.25 values for 85 cents.

THE PARISIAN, on Winter street, will put on sale for Monday only, 55 dozen fine lawn Swiss embroidered and 16 dozen strictly tailor-made linen waists, as well as tailor-made waists with four rows of embroidery, regular values $2 and $2.50, at 98 cents, sizes from 32 to 44.

WOLF'S, "My Clothier," as a drawing card in their cotton underwear department on the second floor will sell to-morrow women's cotton drawers with cambric ruffle and four rows of tucks for 29 cents, instead of the usual price of 39 cents.

BACON'S uptown department store will have a bargain to please good managing mothers, offering boy's double breasted suits with extra Knickerbocker pants to match in medium gray striped worsted material, sizes 10 to 16 years, a $3.50 value for $1.98.

MacDONNELL'S Tremont Temple Store offer Monday about 400 ladies white linen collars with hemstitched ruffle edge in different combinations, regular price 25 cents, for Monday only 15 cents. Also about 10 [illegible] spotted moline ribbons for bows for the [illegible] colors crown white and black, [illegible] always sold at 25 cents, Monday only, 15 cents. Tuesday morning both items will be marked back to regular price.

Our New Howe Sewing Machine Club

Join at Once—It Means a Real Saving of Money

A short time ago we announced the opening of our club plan to distribute 1,000 of these splendid machines at the club price of $19.75. The response has been tremendous. Already the largest part of a thousand have joined our club. We have not said very much about the machine and the club these last two weeks, because shipments have been delayed, and we sold out of machines. We have just received another carload, fresh from the factory, and there is still another shipment on the way. We should deliver at least 200 to club members this week. Don't delay.

New Howe Machines are warranted 5 years.

Attachments—Ruffler with shirring plate, tucker, 6 hemmers, braider, 1 narrow foot hemmer that sews on lace at one operation, 1 quilter and all necessary tools.

$2.00 First Payment—$1.00 a Week Thereafter

Howe machines are known all over the country and have sold for 50 years by agents at the highest prices. They are not the product of any "fly-by-night" factory. The name New Howe is cast in the stand and is also on the arm of the machine. There is no mystery used to cloak the sale of a cheap machine and the origin of its manufacture. That "under another name" kind, being advertised in Boston at $23.75 and in other cities at $20.00, we are selling at $12.48 and $13.90

If you are out of the city, send $2.00 and we will mail Club Agreement for your signature.

Special Sale This Week of these Well-Known Machines

1000 NEW CITY JOBS IN BOSTON UNDER RULE OF "BUSY" MAYOR.

Official Broom Makers, Sewer Photographers, Lantern Makers on Roll.

14,500 ARE REGULARS

MANY WHO DON'T APPEAR

Salaries Greatly Increased, but No Raise for the Poor Laborers.

It takes one thousand more people to run the city government of Boston than it did a year ago.

Last year there were 13,526 people nourished at the municipal crib. The annual list of city officials and employes, as issued yesterday by Superintendent of Printing Thomas A. Whalen, now contains 14,500 names.

This is one forty-second part of the total population of the city. Out of every forty-two Bostonians, one has to be set aside to keep the town going for the other forty-one—at their expense.

Can't Raise Laborers' Pay.

Increase in the number of employes and the amounts of their salaries are shown in nearly every city department. While Mayor Fitzgerald cannot find the necessary money to make good his promise to increase the pay of city laborers from $2.25 a day, he has approved increase in pay ranging all the way from $100 to $2,500 for persons employed in the various departments.

City Collector Garrett W. Scollard leads the list of those receiving the department heads to make "blanket" increases in the number of their assistants and in the amount of their salaries. The collector's office is larger than ever before, employing, on May 3, 1906, and the payroll of his department is bigger by $40,617 than it was a year ago. Last year the taxes of Boston were collected by sixty-two men, who received as a total annual stipend $94,705. To-day 1 of this year there were eighty-three employes in the city collector's office and their total annual salaries amount to $134,322.

There are now thirty deputy city collectors drawing $1,800 a year each from the city treasury as against twenty-five last year. Three who were on the payroll a year ago are missing this year, but it has been necessary or expedient to employ eight more to replace them. Francis J. Doherty, John L. Donovan, William F. Grady, William P. Hickey, Henry N. Hoyt, Edward F. McGuire, Edward J. Rossiter and Jeremiah J. Hartnett are the new deputy collectors placed on the payroll. All of the city collector's office through politics and by order of Mayor Fitzgerald. Doherty formerly tended bar at the Mayor's uncle's place, Donovan was the former Ward 7 leader, William P. Grady is from Ward 17 and was passed to the Parkers with 10 1/2 Hickeys, and he got for Mayor Fitzgerald in the Mayoralty campaign of 1905 in Ward 17.

Scollard's Big Raise.

City Collector Scollard had his own pay raised from $3,000 to $7,500 a year before he had been in office nine months, and himself approved increases for sixteen of his subordinates. Those who had their pay increased follow: Michael W. Abeara from $1,400 to $2,000; John J. Hannon from $1,400 to $1,800; Charles H. Brown from $2,200 to $2,500; Timothy J. Brinn a cut loaded J. Carey from $1,800 to $1,900, Edward J. Dillon from $1,200 to $1,500, James H. McCarthy, Thomas F. Mahoney, William H. Curley of Ward 17, from $1,400 to $1,600; Thomas A. Gorman and Jeremiah A. Hall, Jr., from $2,000 to $2,400, Henry Fehl and Thomas J. Hinchey from $1,000 to $1,200; Frank J. McHarney from $1,400 to $1,600; Joseph H. McElroy and John F. Quinn from $1,000 to $1,200 and Paul A. Fahey from $900 to $1,000. The number of extra clerks in the department at $5 a day "when employed" was increased from 10 to 15.

Each of the city employes, as disclosed by the payroll, who has been appointed during the last year, or who has been promoted or transferred to another department in which the pay is higher, is being examined by the board does not die or resign, to bring a corresponding decrease in the number of employes in the various departments. The civil service commissioners, rather than carrying their names on the payroll, in this manner, will keep their civil service commissioners to avoid in many cases.

The book contains the usual number of fake designations such as "lantern makers," "brush and broommaker's aide." This year the athletic department, according to the book, employs an "oddman's clerk" at a salary of $1,200 a year. Nearly four dozen paying yard hands need for the services of an "interpreter" at the rate of $2.25 a day. "Rick's sharpener" is a common designation in the book, while the civil service commissioners to avoid in many cases.

Boys come high in the street department. John F. Toad, who is employed as a "boy" in the sewer department, receives a salary of $2,250 a year. Nearly a dozen boys are receiving $2.25 a day.

The mayor's office this year has a payroll of $22,800, an increase of $1,600 over last year. Assistant Secretary Fields's pay since the last payroll book was issued has been increased from $1,400 to $2,500, and Assistant Secretary Joseph L. Casey's pay from $1,200 to $1,800. Stenographer William F. Brady has had his pay increased from $900 to $1,200 and Stenographer William F. Brady has had his pay increased from $900 to $1,200.

The assessors' office Chief Clerk Edwin J. Kelly has been raised from $2,500 to $3,000. Frank M. Flanagan, clerk and stenographer, from $1,200 to $1,400, and Louis J. Norman and Christopher L. Fitzgerald from $6 a day to $2,000 a year each.

Plucky Newsboy Who Supported Family Is Dying in Hospital

Stricken with Meningitis, Lad Will Soon Close Life of Brave Self-Denying Struggles.

One of the most pitiful cases that ever came into the Children's Hospital on Huntington avenue, and that means a very desolate case indeed, is that of ten-year-old Willie MacDonald, the newsboy, who is dying in his hospital cot of meningitis.

Willie's mother is a widow. There are five little sisters. Willie is the only boy and the money he earned by selling papers has been the principal item in the family income.

Willie never has had very much, anyway. He didn't have time to go out and play with the other kids because he had to hustle with his papers morning and night to make all the money he could. And, when he had scraped together a little every day he had to take it home and turn it over to his mother to keep the family going.

Willie had a business stand at the corner of Columbus avenue and Yarmouth street. He had a good many customers, for he was always on the job and looked like a worker.

Even the cops on the beat allowed that Willie was a good kid" which is over reference of an urchin, in any South End cop to make of a youngster.

It has been pretty tough for Willie MacDonald, having so much dependent on his scrawny shoulders. But it was a good deal tougher for Willie when he was taken sick. He had to quit the job, go to the hospital and realize that there was no money coming into the family from his paper sales.

Willie has fought a plucky fight against death, just as he fought against poverty. But it looks now, as the hospital doctors say, as though Willie MacDonald's brave little life was about over and as though the customers would have to get another newsboy.

"I Am Ready to Break Stones," Says Hummel To Prison Officials

Smiles for the First Time as a Fellow Prisoner Advises Him to Seek Garden Work.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

New York, June 1.—The authorities on Blackwell's Island are having a hard time to decide just what the Hummel is best qualified to do. The little lawyer made a very good patient in the hospital, but now that he has recovered from the breakdown that came shortly after his incarceration, he will have to be up and doing with the other prisoners in some regular work. He got busy in one of fifteen shops to-day for a preliminary try out.

"I am ready to go out and break stone now, if necessary," Hummel said yesterday when the physicians found him physically fit. Deputy Warden Martin smiled and replied. "We will, probably find something better than that for you to do."

Shake the quarry and make a bid for "garden work," one sympathizer said to Hummel later. The latter, who has been inclined to resent any familiarity on the part of other prisoners, smiled for the first time and replied:

"Well, I suppose digging in the dirt is better than hammering away at those rocks. Either occupation would be quite a new line of work for me."

Deputy Martin would not say exactly what Hummel will do, but thought that the lawyer's labors would be confined to the shops for some time. Hummel would like to have a clerical position. That may come later, but manual labor will have to come first.

North Shore People Up in Arms Against "Flying Fisherman"

Small Hope Felt That the B. & M. Train Service Will Improve in Spite of General Demand.

Gloucester and Cape Ann people are complaining with more and more emphasis of the train service which is being furnished them by the Boston & Maine railroad, and the protest made last week before the State Railway Commission indicated but feebly the depth of the feeling. It is said that "now it is all over I know how you feel" are

Yesterday morning the people were aroused. An Italian paving a dollar in front for wood, saw the children on the other side of the road. They pulled out their watches and found that Tommy is not.

When they lifted the body from the pavement it was stone cold and dead.

He was too smart and good to live, said the father mournfully to a few who ran afford the privilege, adds to the indignation of the general public who are going to put up with the slow going accommodation train and the far between at that.

A short time ago the representative here, here and there obtained many signatures to a petition with President Hale, Director Appleton and Superintendent Tarbox of Gloucester and Rowe. The request was duly received. Then the petition was forwarded to Boston, and the public knows were bound that the petition of the board was withheld. The general sentiment is that the commissioners will take action in the matter, and that the Boston & Maine will soon be compelled to consider the requirements of the public.

HARRY THAW'S TRIAL COST HIM $250,000

Rich Defendant Asks Accounting "From One of His Counsel."

New York, June 1.—Thaw's trial cost him a quarter of a million dollars, and of the large sum $100,000 is said to have been paid to one of his counsel. Delphin M. Delmas, the Californian, got $50,000. The lawyer who got the $100,000 is said to have been asked by Thaw for an accounting. It is said he asked for another $100,000.

CHARTER STREET IN MOURNING FOR LITTLE TOMMY O'NEILL

KNOWN TO ALL IN VICINITY

Whole District Was Scoured for Child, and Body Finally Found in Harbor.

By Eleanor Ames.

All Charter street mourns to-day and along the water front of the North End there is much sadness. It is the day of little Tommy O'Neill's funeral.

Outside the door of No. 115 Charter street a bit of white crepe flutters forth its sad message. Neighbors crowd up and down the narrow stairs to the top tenement to look for the last time on the baby face they knew and love. Then they form in groups on the sidewalks and in the streets talking softly, weeping in sympathy.

Since Thursday afternoon Tommy O'Neill has been the absorbing topic of that section of the North End. Then at three o'clock he was playing about the happiest of the holiday crowds. Soon after he heard his mother cry:

"Wait a minute," he asked his pal matee. "I will not wait."

While he was gone his children ran along in search of new fun. Down the narrow stairs with the wood and a piece of coke in his hand. The sidewalk was deserted.

"I guess you always get sufficiers," the mother said to be amused," says his father. "He was independent."

Body in the Harbor

The children gone, he reported around the corner of Commercial street, a block saw him go, and that was the last of him until the lifeless body was found floating in the water yesterday both legs off the last time Wharf.

Tommy O'Neill was a very capable baby man. He was only three years old in August, but ever since he could walk he had been taking care of Him. He was as big as a minute and as much as a boy of six. Everybody knew him and everybody was his friend. He was full of fun and mischief and his laugh could be heard above a dozen children voices.

From morning until night he was out the door. So sure and Water alike there were plenty of boats to see in the bay of course, but if he was alone he was very responsible. He had always three of the older and one young one but he was the only boy of the O'Neill flock and he seemed to feel his importance.

Picked and Sold Wood.

He was shrewd beyond his years with a financial instinct that was a delight. He knew that a penny would bring him in candy or cake that his sweet tooth craved. He also knew that pennies have to be earned. So he picked up wood every day in the street and water front and sold it for pennies. During the cold days of January and February the demand was great and the pennies were not forthcoming he sought as other customers.

His absences from home never caused great alarm. And so until the second day after no one worried about Tommy. On Thursday that darkness came his mother became fearful.

"I guess Tommy is hardly to-day," she said. "He is not at home at all."

Some one suggested that Tommy had "kidnapped." Instantly the street was in a turmoil. The search began in gathering forces at every step.

Hunted All Night.

All night long the child's mother and neighbors hunted and called and wept for Tommy.

All day Friday they continued their search. Tommy's father has been ill for a week, but fear gave him strength.

"I walked miles yesterday," he said, "now it is all over I know how my feet are."

Yesterday morning the suspense was relieved. An Italian paving a dollar in front for wood, saw the children on the other side of the road. They pulled out their watches and found that Tommy is not.

When they lifted the body from the pavement it was stone cold and dead.

GRAFT, SAY EXPERTS, IN $13,000,000 CAPITOL

Pennsylvania Investigation Committee Receives Startling Reports.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 1.—Reports of the experts employed by the Capitol investigating committee to investigate the expenditure of $13,000,000 in the building of the new Capitol show that the specifications have been violated, cheaper materials substituted and many flagrant duplications placed in the building. Charles F. Barker, an expert on granite, declared that in some places two or three pieces were used instead of single blocks.

MICHIGAN LEADS TILL LAST EVENT

Harvard Struggles Along in Seventh Position in Big Stadium Meet.

POINTS SCORED BY COLLEGES IN MEET

Pennsylvania	33
Michigan	29
Yale	23
Cornell	15
Princeton	10
Syracuse	8
Harvard	7
Swarthmore	6
Dartmouth	5
Amherst	4
Williams	2
Johns Hopkins	1

In a fiercely contested intercollegiate track meet in the Harvard Stadium yesterday afternoon 8,000 cheering spectators saw the University of Pennsylvania come out the final winner by a small margin, after athletic competition so strenuous that six intercollegiate records were broken. The new records made were in the 440-yard dash, mile run, two-mile run, high jump, pole vault and shot put.

The meet was on of the most important ever held in the country from a college athletic standpoint. It was the thirty-second intercollegiate annual track championship. Five preliminaries were held on Friday.

Penney won yesterday with a total of thirty-three points. University of Michigan was second with twenty-nine, Yale third with twenty-three.

Cornell Poor Fourth.

The best that Cornell could do was 15, and Princeton, principally through the efforts of its star sprinter, won fifth position with 10 points. Harvard and Harvard had a close tussle of it for sixth standing, but the New Yorkers got there by a dot. Then trailed Swarthmore, Dartmouth, Amherst, Williams and Johns Hopkins.

It can safely be stated that never before was there such an interest on the records. It was hardly looked for, considering the condition of the track, but they continued tumbling from the very first and it became a common occurrence, six of them going by the board.

It was clear that something didn't look right during the high calibre of the men competing, as they were fit to accomplish a team, was the line notes one, as he won two firsts and a second, thereby securing his college's totals by thirteen points.

The big blonde leader of the western band came in for lots of cheers, as he won both hurdle races, beating the record over the high horses, but being denied the glory because there was a stiff wind blowing down the course.

Next to Garrells was Haskins of Pennsylvania in the limelight for individual merit. He scored first in the mile run and smashed the record in that, and then appeared in the half-mile event. Considering the strain of his previous performance, he was not expected to be of any great consequence, but he upset all calculations by winning that, too, in one of the closest finishes of the day.

Penney Tore Off Firsts.

Pennsylvania's ability to tear off first places is largely responsible for her winning the meet. Six firsts were bagged, five on the track and one in the field. The men who turned the trick in favor of the Red and Blue were Taylor, Dray, Haskins and Moffitt. The points these men won were sufficient to have won the games by one point.

Garrells the Strenuous One.

The sport-loving spectators were kept excitement on the part when the announcement was made at the end of each race and then loud lots wild cheering when a new record was called out.

A new record in the 120-yard hurdles was not allowed because of the favoring wind.

If scoring the greatest number of points should determine the star of the big meet, then Garrells, captain of the Michigan team, was the limousine one, as he won two firsts and a second, thereby securing his college's totals by thirteen points.

BIG BATTLE RAGING IN CHINESE WAR.

REBELS FEARED WINNING

Officers Desert from Manchu Troops to Join and Drill Insurgents.

AFFECTS THREE PROVINCES

Chang-Chow, in Fokin District, Threatened with Destruction or Capture.

Amoy, China, June 2.—A great battle between the Imperial troops and rebels is reported to be in progress near Swatow. Thousands of men are said to be engaged. No word has been received here as to which side has had the best of the fighting.

Yesterday's brush between the contestants between here and Swatow was only the forerunner of the big battle today. In that conflict the Imperial troops gained the advantage and the rebels retired. To-day, it is reported, the fight was renewed with the rebels reinforced by thousands of recruits.

Fear Seaport Will Fall.

While the movements of the rebels and imperials, armies are not definitely known, it is certain that the rebels are the more determined the revolutionists in the race for seaport, and to-day in progress on Friday. It is said that the rebels have been driving the rebels from the outskirts of the seaport, but it is admitted by the authorities here that the rebels are the better armed.

Yesterday's fight, while not long continued, was of the severest character. It is a very short engagement, but 1,000 men fell. The rebels were the heaviest losers in the fight and quickly retreated. They rallied only their advance guard was engaged in the fight, while the bulk of the rebel army, in order for the possession of Swatow.

20,000 in Rebel Army.

That the rebels in the neighborhood of Swatow far outnumbered the loyal troops is well known. Reports have stated that as many as 20,000 armed men were in the rebel army. It is doubtful if the imperial forces number more than one-third as many. It is known also that many foreign officers are with the rebels. They have been able to bring them to a higher state of discipline than mostly obtains among rebellious.

Throughout China the situation is much worse, and every dispatch says that the revolt is spreading. The rebel army was reported yesterday to be threatening the cities of Chang-Chow, one of the largest cities in Fokin province. Three provinces are now affected by the revolt and additions have been daily attached into other provinces by the rebels who continue to join the rebel forces. If Swatow falls into the hands of the revolutionists it will give great impetus to the reconstituency movement which is designed to overthrow the Manchu dynasty.

ATTACKS UPON ALL FOREIGNERS FEARED AT WASHINGTON.

Washington, June 1.—Very little news from China is being received by the government, but it is known that American interests have not been involved in the trouble as yet.

Nearly every vessel of the Asiatic squadron is now in the port of the Chinese coast. The flagship Virginia, with Rear Admiral Sigsbee on board, left the Japanese ports on their way to the Chinese coast. The Baltimore, Yorktown, Princeton, Helena and Wheeling are also in the anti-foreign commotion. All communications have been sealed to keep the foreigners from gaining control of the situation. Marines have been stationed into other provinces to prevent the foreigners from joining the rebel forces. If Swatow falls into the hands of the revolutionists it will give great impetus to the reconstituency movement which is designed to overthrow the Manchu dynasty.

MILLION DOLLAR MILL TO EMPLOY 750 HANDS

William Whitman to Build One of 75,000 Spindles in New Bedford.

New Bedford, June 1.—A new million dollar cotton mill is to be built here by William Whitman of Boston. The mill will employ 750 hands and contain 75,000 spindles.

MILLIONAIRE SCHIFFER DIES FROM HIS BURNS

Will Be Buried With Little Daughter Who Met Similar Fate.

Long Branch, N. J., June 1.—Walter A. Schiffer, the millionaire New York manufacturer, whose Summer home on Ocean avenue, this city, was burned Thursday night, causing the death of his daughter and two servants, died today. The double funeral of the two victims which was set for to-morrow, will take place on Monday, when they will be buried with their father.

Two Held Up in Crowded Hub Streets and Robbed

Two daring robberies by footpads, both of them under glare of electric lights and in the presence of hundreds of passersby, were perpetrated right under the very noses of the police last night. In one case, citizens effected the capture of the man and held him until a policeman could be found and led to the captive. In the other case the footpads lent a hasty and are retired.

As Catherine Casey of No. 8 Schiffer street, was wending along Tremont Row, her pocketbook was snatched from her hand by a man who started to run.

Though the pocketbook contained only forty cents Miss Casey did not propose to be robbed in that fashion. She screamed and started in pursuit. The man was stopped in the crowd three times by policemen and Special Officer Sam Stein, in spite of his efforts. He gave his name as Frank McDonald, but on the Big Dipper bowling men looking in a dark door way near No. 27 Winter street at midnight started out on Detective Sergeant Jack Sullivan hastened to Police Station 2 where he reported his loss.

LEE CHOSEN HEAD OF CONFEDERATE VETS.

Next Annual Reunion of Wearers of Gray at Birmingham.

Richmond, Va., June 1.—The following officers were chosen by the United Confederate Veterans to-day:

Commander-in-chief, General Stephen D. Lee, lieutenant general, department Army of Northern Virginia, General Irvine Walker, lieutenant general, department of Tennessee, General Clement A. Evans; lieutenant general, trans-Mississippi department, General William J. Cabell Birmingham was chosen as the city for the eighteenth annual reunion of the veterans.

MARINES BATTLE WITH BLAZE ON COLUMBIA

Mystery Surrounds Fire's Origin, Because Ship Was Deserted.

Philadelphia, June 1.—The sailors and marines at League Island navy yard had an exciting fun with the fire department to the cruiser Columbia, which is lying in the back channel, when fire was discovered on tug gun deck, and expensive, if great difficulty in extinguishing the flames. The vessel is out of commission and has been tied up for two weeks in order to permit being the watchman. No person is permitted to place his feet upon the cruiser's deck. Under these circumstances it is not clear just how the fire could have started.

WHO WANTS THIS BLUE-EYED, FAIR HAIRED BABY?

The five-months-old baby girl recently offered for adoption through the medium of THE BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN has not yet been given into a new home.

She is a dear little creature with long golden hair and big blue eyes, and her cryin... is such a rare happening as to be an event when she goes to sleep early, and never wakes more than once or twice all night, and that only for food.

Such a baby seems too good to be true, but this one is true. Plain, and a little happy, but true. Little, too, she deserves the best home in the land.

Next Sunday there will be an interesting story about it.

LAW TO BAR CHILDREN.

Providence, R. I., June 1—The enforcement of a new law prohibiting children from attending theatres and dances unless accompanied by adults was undertaken in this city by the Police Commissioners today.

SEND IN THE BRIGHTEST SAYINGS OF LITTLE ONES

It Will Interest Everybody, and, in Addition, There's a $500 Prize For the Winner

WHO is the BRIGHTEST baby in Greater Boston?

What is his name or her name? How old is this brightest among so many bright babies? Who are the parents?

The BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN has been endeavoring really to find the most beautiful baby in Greater Boston.

Now it inaugurates a new feature of this contest. It offers a valuable prize to the BRIGHTEST baby in Greater Boston.

This prize is a $500 building lot in a choice residential section of Dorchester. The $500 lot is to be given to the parents of the brightest baby.

What Has Baby Said?

One may ask, how are you to decide who is the brightest baby. The "merits of the case," as the lawyers say, rest upon the brightest things that babies say. The baby saying the brightest thing will be adjudged the greatest baby. Its parents get the $500 lot.

MOTHER AND CHILD

Eleanor Ames Answers Queries of Mothers; No Time Like Present to Enter.

By Eleanor Ames.

"Is it too late to enter my baby's photograph in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN'S Prize Baby contest?"

"Are the judges still undecided as to the winner?"

"Will you please repeat the terms of the contest?"

These three questions are constantly being asked, and in order to answer them I will make clear what this wonderful contest really is.

To begin with it is one of the greatest, most generous, far-reaching and beneficial prize lists ever made by a newspaper.

The BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN wants to find the most beautiful baby in Greater Boston. In order to do that it must ask the co-operation of every parent and guardian by urging them to send in a photograph of every child under five years of age whom they consider eligible for competition.

It has secured the earnest, honest efforts of a board of well known women artists—artists of national fame—to decide which of all the photographs received is entitled to the first prize.

Give Baby a Start.

The BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN has decided that the most beautiful baby in Boston deserves a good start in life.

The grand prize of $500 is to be more than a reward of merit for beauty. It is to be made a nest egg of the child's independency.

To-day that it is awarded it is to be put in the bank in the name of the baby's parent and guardian, there to draw interest for the child until that child is of age, or, if necessary, during its minority, to be used "in any other way that may seem best to the owner."

Now all you have to do is to figure that a dollar a week and you can see what a snug little fortune a five hundred dollars working night and day piling up interest for at least thirteen years will make a birthday present beyond all dreams of generosity when your baby is of legal age.

It is your duty as a parent or guardian to get him the chance to win it.

In addition to the great grand prize, the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN has its jury of artists select with the greatest care the five prettiest babies each week and these are published in the Sunday paper, which entitles each of them to $10 worth of photographs absolutely free.

In addition to the best photograph of a mother and child there is a prize of $10.

Brains and Beauty Too.

Not to forget

Brains as well as beauty is to be rewarded.

Five hundred dollars for Brains.

That is the reason why Brighton Hill side the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN has a $500 building lot.

This goes to the brightest baby in Greater Boston, the baby who says the brightest thing.

It sometimes happens that the brightest baby may not be the prettiest. Here's a chance for him. If he can't have a trust fund created for him, you can let him become a property owner.

All you have to do is to send his photograph for one prize and his words for the other.

Write plainly. Give his name, age and address of you or both parents or guardian. All of which answers the last question.

It is not too late to enter the contest. It is just the right time. But I wouldn't delay indefinitely.

The judges have no idea who will be the winner. Collectively and individually they have told me so. Their interest is as keen as ever. They do not expect to form any definite opinion till the grand final judging.

No Time Like Present.

So send baby's picture along, send yours with the baby, send the baby's words of wisdom and wit.

The door of opportunity is wide open. It is your duty for your child's sake to enter it.

Melrose, Roxbury, Everett and Watertown Share in Glory; Artists Laud Motherhood Photo.

HURRAH for the baby boys!

Already they mean to give the girls a sharp struggle for that first beauty prize. Young as they are they have shrewd financial instinct, and they know the value of money in the form of nobby coats. Besides, every little chap has a tiny bank of his own, into which he drops the odd pennies and nickels and dimes that come his way.

Look at their four jolly little faces!

Good nature and good health beam forth from their big wondering eyes and curly chubby cheeks.

Gordon Lynn Wallo, Gilbert Purdy Grove and Alvah Bertell Wheeler, the youthful trio of the Rock, residing in the vicinity of four years, and Gordon Lynn Wallo in the ... for he was only nine days past his second birthday when this picture was taken.

Melrose, Roxbury, Everett and Watertown, four separate towns, are splendidly represented. If ever they cast their first votes those boys have developed also a fine splendid lines that nature has started them on. Greater Boston will have gained four fine, splendid, manly citizens.

Now, what parent will have the shame to have such beautiful babies grow into ugly men? Forget the Duke of Iowa?

One dear little girl is the queen of the ... prize winners. Margaret Frances Hunt, eight months old, whose home is in South Boston.

And isn't she a dear little creature? Doesn't she look daughter such a perfect little face pin-keyed up to every? You must though, for all healthy babies have to cry, and a baby as beautiful as Margaret by a right must be healthy.

The picture of Mrs. Charles T. Harding and her four months' daughter Dorothea received honorable mention when it was selected Mr. Harding, by the way is a clever young publisher, and the darling home at No. 3 Clement street, Dorchester, is an honest place since Baby Dorothea gave it the brightness and charm of her presence.

HERE IS THE CLASSIFIED LIST OF LATEST RIVALS

Here is the ... of the names of all baby ... have been received in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN Prize Baby contest from Wednesday, May 22, to Wednesday, May 29.

A complete list of those babies whose pictures had been received and classified up to Wednesday, May 22, was published last Sunday.

Next Sunday in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN there will be published a list of the names of all babies whose photographs reached this office after the list printed to-day was made up.

The ... of the photographs is so great that it is impossible for those names received later than Wednesday of each week to be classified in time for publication on the following Sunday. They will be printed in the next list.

Needham Captures Meet For High Schools Held In Woonsocket With 55½

Woonsocket, R. I., June 1.—The Midland Division Athletic Association, comprising the high schools of Woonsocket, Framingham, Natick and Needham, held its third annual field and track meet at the local trotting park to-day. Needham won with 53½ points; Woonsocket, second, 30½; Framingham, third, 26½; Natick, last, 10½.

The meet was the most successful that has ever been held, there being 75 entries in the different events. It was a day of record breaking. Smith of Woonsocket broke the league record for 100 yards in his preliminary try, going the distance in 10 4-5 seconds. Handy of Woonsocket established a new record in the hammer throw, 108 feet 5 inches.

Needham captured all the runs with the exception of the mile, the Webb brothers being strong point winners. O. Webb broke the league record for 440 yards, making it in 50 seconds. He secured 13 points for Needham. Smith of Woonsocket, second, 12 points. New records for the [illegible] hurdles and mile run were also established. Summaries:

LOWELL HIGH WON IN THE EIGHTEENTH

Newburyport, June 1.—In an eighteen-inning game this afternoon the Lowell High School nine defeated the local high school team by the score of 6 to 4. The game was one of the best exhibitions of baseball seen in school games in this city for years, and both teams showed up well until the last inning. Up to the ninth inning the score was 4 to 4, and remained the same until the eighteenth inning, when the visitors scored two runs on several misplays by the local players.

When he finished [illegible] in 4 20 3-5 the crowd [illegible] up and screamed, as he had [illegible] four fifths seconds [illegible] he would do [illegible] his time [illegible] wind [illegible] to last [illegible]

[illegible] in the 120-yard hurdle race [illegible] Garrells pushed by two of the [illegible] who ever skipped over the sticks ran through in 15 1-5 seconds, which was one fifth of a second better than that made by Kraenzlein and Steve Chase several years ago, but Referee Sullivan said there was too much wind to aid the runner and he could not allow the time to stand.

Another upheaval of records came in the two-mile run, which Rowe of Michigan won in 9 minutes 34 4-5 seconds, supplanting the record made by W. E. Shutt of Cornell in 1903 of 9 minutes 40 seconds.

Moffitt Gets Medal.

The shot putters were the first in the field to stir the figures. Krueger, the burly giant from Swarthmore, tossed the sixteen-pound weight through space for a distance of 46 feet 5 inches, which was just five inches better than Beck of Yale did four years ago.

Moffitt of Pennsylvania got the springs snapping in his limbs and scaled the bar in the high jump at 6 feet 3¼ inches, which was a new association record, as the last accepted one was that made by J. D. Winsor of Pennsylvania ten years ago. A quarter of an inch was a small margin, but it gave Moffitt an extra medal.

The pole vault took a long while to run off because the bar went considerably over eleven feet and the officials had to get a big step ladder to reach it.

Yale Man Wins Vault.

It was expected that Dray of Yale would acquit himself well in this event, and he fulfilled every confidence. As he had reached nearly a dozen feet before in vaulting, he was ready to duplicate past competition. He was the only one to clear eleven feet eleven and three-quarters inches, and thereby broke the record by an inch. Grant of Harvard and Jackson of Cornell did the eleven feet, ten and three-quarter inches last year, but failed to even get in the finals this year.

[illegible] assemblage concerning the winner of the hundred yard dash, with Cartmell going at his best clip. He got a poor start, compared with Roulin Miller, the Tiger sprinter. At seventy five yards the latter was close to Cartmell. The Quaker pulled [illegible] never wavered in his [illegible] lengthening his stride, [illegible] with a scant foot to spare. Gamble, another Princeton man, just got in front of Butler of Yale for third place.

Half-Mile Surprises.

The half mile run was the event which [illegible] of the whole meet. It was [illegible] that Parsons, of Eli, would be the dangerous one, as he held the record. He showed up well in the trials. He [illegible] off the mark as if he was going to [illegible] the field, but before the runners had gone the first quarter he was relegated to fourth position and Ramey, the stocky little Michigan stepper, was setting the pace with Baker of Swarthmore in his wake. Not till the bunch was nearing the first turn into the stretch did Haskins the Penn flyer show near the front.

[illegible] Ramey still held his lead, [illegible] French and Townsend [illegible] It was a hairraising [illegible] with set teeth [illegible] who was tiring and pulled along French, a teammate of Townsend and Baker. The quartette could have been covered with a blanket as they flung themselves across the [illegible]

Haskins made sure enough of his victory and had it clearly enough, but it was difficult picking the others. Townsend and French, both of Cornell, were side by side, and were awarded second and third. The slim Swarthmore runner, Baker, was the fourth.

Parsons, who [illegible] at the beginning, went [illegible] and was a bad last in the field of [illegible]

Taylor [illegible] the [illegible] but extricated himself by his fleet-footedness and ran completely around the others when the eight starters were straightened out for the finish. He went by them as if they [illegible] of Yale went after him, but was [illegible] The Yale man took second, with Rogers of Cornell third.

The two-mile run developed an excellent exhibition of a well-judged race by the winner. Rowe of Michigan ran in third position for seven laps, but when the bell [illegible] went up to the head of the procession and held it to the end in spite of the strenuous efforts of Magoffin of Cornell to oust him. Michigan showed another good runner in Dow, who [illegible]

[illegible] that Michigan gained a lead on Pennsylvania in points, and it remained for the final race on the track to change the conditions. It was the final of the 220-yard dash and Pennsylvania had Cartmell and Witham on [illegible] the eight points needed to put Pennsylvania ahead.

SPRINGFIELD H. S. CREW TAKES RACE

In an exciting race over the mile and one-quarter course on the Charles River ending at the Union Boathouse, the Springfield High School crew defeated the Harvard Freshman second crew last night by two and one-half lengths.

The Springfield crew were in the best condition, while the Harvard Freshman second crew showed lack of practice. The visitors started off at a faster stroke than the Crimson youngsters, and kept this up during the entire race, gradually drawing away from them. Hurd, the Harvard stroke, did not start to quicken the pace until too late.

Lincoln, the Springfield coxswain, had his men well in hand, and they rowed as a unit, each pulling a steady oar.

The orders of the crews were as follows:

Freshman Second—Stroke, Hurd; 7, Beard; 6, Davis; 5, McLeod; 4, Waide; 3, Hadden; 2, Jose; bow, H. Morgan; coxswain, Warren.

Springfield High—Stroke, Alstron; 7, Hicks; 6, Parsons; 5, Wilson; 4, Bennett; 3, Read; 2, Mathison; bow, Foster; coxswain, Lincoln.

3 POLO MATCHES DECIDED AT DEDHAM

At the Bradfield Polo Grounds in Westwood yesterday afternoon polo was played between three teams of the Dedham Polo Club.

In the first match Forbes' team beat Crane's team 4 to 3. In the second match Sterling's team beat Forbes' team 4 to 2 and in the third match Crane's team won from Sterling's team 5 to ½. The players were: 1st team—Burrage, Forbes, Shaw and Warren; 2d team—Corcoran, Shaw, Forbes and McQuillen. The third team—Sterling, Dabney and F[illegible]

Two ponies fell but their riders escaped injuries.

MYSTIC LEAGUE TENNIS.

In the Mystic League tennis match, held in Dedham yesterday afternoon, Belmont won two out of three matches at singles, and the doubles were a tie. Scores:

Singles—Hayes of Belmont beat Warren of Dedham, 6-4, 7-5. Chase of Belmont won from B. Hayes of Dedham 6-4, 6-3.

Dean of Dedham won from Kennis of Belmont, 11-9, 3-6, 6-2.

Brown and [illegible] of Belmont beat Cummings and Pratt of Dedham, 8-6, 6-8, 6-1.

EMERSONS VICTORIOUS.

In a hard fought contest in Charlestown yesterday afternoon the Emerson's defeated the St. Francis by the score of 4 to 3.

Full of Thrills

It was a fine game full of thrills. The New Yorks had plenty of chances to score runs and so did the Bostons. It was only in the sixth inning that the Pilgrims got a going right and [illegible] safe hits, winding up with a three-bagger by Hoey, and won the game with two runs.

YALE SUBMITS TO TIGER DEFEAT, 9-7

New Haven, June 1.—In one of the raggedest and, withal, one of the most exciting Yale-Princeton games ever played, the Blue lost to the Tigers in 12 innings to-day, 9 to 7.

Princeton batted three pitchers practically from the box. Meyer, Yale's best box[man] [illegible] lasting three innings, and Howard Jones, who replaced him, throwing out first [man] in the seventh. Van Vleck, Yale's third choice, held the Tigers till the 12th, when he was banged freely.

With the score 7 to 0 against her in the fourth inning, Yale crawled slowly [up] till she tied the Tigers in the sev[enth]. The tie was broken by Princeton's [batting] rally in the 12th.

One of the stellar features was Newcombe's triple in the seventh, which [he tried] to stretch into a home run, but [was caught] at the plate by Coann's throw, [illegible] Jones [illegible] relaying the ball. New[combe] was knocked out by Jones's [illegible] [illegible] unconscious several minutes.

Cooney threw [illegible] too late to get Camp, but McLean [illegible] the ball, catching Tad Jones, who [tried] to score on the throw.

All Boys Should Know How to Sail a Boat

By Julian Hawthorne.

"IS it prudent," writes a solicitous mother to me, "to let my son, fifteen years old, have a small sailing-boat? We are to live near the sea this Summer, and he is very desirous to learn how to sail, but, with so many cases of drowning reported every week, I feel that the risk is too great. What is your opinion?"

Shall I accept the responsibility of this risk? Of course, I want the boy to live and not die; and he might happen to die by drowning should he, inexperienced, attempt to sail a boat this Summer. And yet every boy ought to learn how to sail a boat; it is part of a boy's life—of the building up of his manhood; it is an admirable training for hand and brain and courage and self-reliance. Deprived of it he would lose one of the inherent rights of boyhood, and he would probably, in after life, often be in a boat with others more or less expert at sailing; and it might easily happen that the lack of knowledge on his part might bring about, at some critical moment, the very calamity which his mother would avert to-day. Ignorance is never really safety, unless it be ignorance of such things as a great philosopher once said, "a man would be a scoundrel for knowing."

Sailing a boat is certainly not one of those things; all life is attended with danger, if you look at the conditions anxiously enough; swimming is dangerous until you know how; but after you know, it is safety. I am not informed whether this boy can swim; if he cannot, I advise that he learn to swim without delay, and that his sailing lessons be postponed until after he has mastered the art. But, after that, I cannot see my way to deny him his boat. It is a splendid companion and instructor for a boy or for a man; it is pleasure and an exhileration. It breeds manly qualities; and after all, the danger is very small. Probably the water is enclosed—the Sound, or some such appendage of the sea—and even in case of an upset he would have ninety-nine chances out of a hundred of reaching shore with no worse calamity than a wetting. Let him have his boat.

Famous for Upsetting.

I lived on the Sound once, and my boys had a small catboat, about fifteen feet over-all. They taught themselves how to sail her, and became quite expert; they were overset almost every day, until they got quite a reputation for it among the neighbors; and when an overturned catboat was seen in the bay, the folks would give a glance at it, say, "Oh, it's only those Hawthorne kids!" and turn away to their affairs untroubled. None of them was drowned. It would have been very difficult to have drowned any of them. But in the course of a few years there was not much about small-boat sailing that they did not know, and that knowledge has stood at least one of them in good stead since he grew up to be a man. Sailing is a proper part of a boy's education; and what would England be to-day if Drake and Nelson had been prevented by their mothers from learning how to manage a boat? Where would we be had Columbus not endangered his life in the crazy little craft that plied in the Mediterranean in his day? There is no life worth living that does not involve some more or less remote risk of death. No; let all our boys that have the chance learn how to swim first, and then how to sail; and far more good than harm will come of it.

Julian Hawthorne.

HARVARD FRESHMAN NINE LOSES TO YALE

Defeat Is First of Season for Crimson, and at Home at That.

For the first time this season and on their home [illegible] at [illegible] the Harvard Freshman [illegible] team was defeated by Yale at Soldiers Field yesterday afternoon by a score of 8 to 4.

The game from start to finish was a hitting match [illegible] most of the stick work being done [illegible] youngsters. The fielding on [illegible] sides was ragged.

New Trotting Record Made by Altro L. on Franklin Field Speedway

By Edward E. Cogswell.

All previous records for trotters over the Franklin Field speedway were broken yesterday at the matinee of the Dorchester Driving Club, when Altro L. won the fifth and final heat of his race against India Panis in 31 [illegible]. Breaking badly had earlier in the contest lost him the first and third heats.

The extremely large crowd that lined the course saw record smashing, as nine of the thirteen events on the programme required [illegible] heats to decide the victors, in all [illegible] heats being raced, it showing how first [illegible] was the rivalry between the [illegible].

The three-cornered race with Yellow Boy, Helgamite and Miss Manager as starters, was well worth quite a journey to watch. In the [illegible] only heads separated the trio at the finish, with Fred Bellows crying encouragement to Helgamite at the top of his voice, but, though straining every nerve to get to the fore, the mare did not have sufficient speed to snatch victory from Yellow Boy.

Charlena Nosed Out Ahead.

Wilkesbrino and Charlena put up a five heat battle. The latter nosed out the opening heat in the fast time of 31 seconds, then broke [illegible] the second and [illegible] trips, won the fourth by going true [illegible] dislodged in [illegible], allowing the gelding to secure the title with little effort.

It was a surprise [illegible] speedway [illegible] Lady Mack [illegible] threw the books into La Gazelle. The direct cause of this was the unsteadiness of the latter in every heat except the second, which she won by going on a [illegible] the entire route.

L. N. Cushman [illegible] better judgment was to let M. A. Nevins drive his Broadview roan, and the result was determined by his defeat of Helen D. and reeling off one of the [illegible] to the tune of 32 seconds, a vast improvement over what he has done in past races.

It was easy for Pat McAneny to head the summary with Budweiser over A. S. [illegible] dean pacer of the speedway, Capt. Hall, but a lot of credit was due M. [illegible] for his skillful teaming of the beer [illegible].

The race of the ace between Al Ray and Mutineer proved the former is getting better every start he makes. That second heat of his in 31½ seconds tells that it will take pretty stiff goods to stall him off for the quarter [illegible] events at Franklin Field.

Serious Accident Prevented.

What looked at one time would prove a serious accident was fortunately averted in Class C through the cleverness of Helvetia. When nearing the finish of the second heat her bit parted as J. M. E. Morris was [illegible] from a break. With [illegible] centre from her driver, she soon [illegible] to a trot by herself and after going only a half mile beyond the speedway Mr. Morrill talked her to a stop. She was withdrawn for the final heat, which gave J. W. L. the red ribbons for finishing next to Rex.

In the final heat of the Rex Rachel class the spectators received another thrill of excitement through Rex going into a ditch fifty yards from the finish. The gelding landed at the bottom of the [illegible] on his side with the cart, and Mr. DeVoe the driver, on top of him. Help came to their aid immediately, and when cart and harness had been removed from the gelding he jumped to his feet, none the worse from his experience.

Randolph K. Clarke went over the course with his old favorite, Gladys M., 2:13¼, which he had just bought back from Al Furbush. Since selling her last [illegible] the mare had passed through half a dozen hands before coming back to her original home. Summary:

CRACK YACHTS IN LONG OCEAN RACE

They Will Start from New York for Bermuda Saturday.

The long distance race for power yachts from New York to Bermuda, which starts Saturday at 3 p. m. from New York, is one which is being looked forward to with great interest. The cup for which the race will be sailed has an intrinsic worth of $1,000, but to the fortunate winner its value cannot be expressed in figures.

Two formidable competitors, the Ailsa Craig and the Idaho, have appeared in the field to compete for this trophy. Ailsa Craig is designed by A. Cary Smith, New York's oldest and best-known naval architect, designer of many steam and sailing yachts, such as the Meteor for the Emperor of Germany, the former cup defender Mischief, the famous schooner Lasca, the Yampa, and many others.

The Idaho is designed and built by Stearns & McKay of Marblehead, a much younger firm, but one which became prominent in the last twelve years through the forcing of many successful racing and cruising yachts.

The Ailsa Craig is 50 feet 10 inches over all, 50 feet water line and 10 feet [illegible]. Is ketch rigged and carries 350 square feet of canvas. She is engined with a 75-horsepower Craig motor and will carry 1,000 gallons of gasolene, 175 gallons of water and provisions [illegible] month. Accommodations below consist of saloon, stateroom, engine room and galley.

The Idaho is a distinctly different type from the Ailsa Craig, with long, clean lines, an easy entrance forward, and without extreme features to secure speed she is an unusually beautiful and serviceable craft. Below decks she is very roomy and luxurious. There is a large engine room and galley, a very commodious cabin, two good sized staterooms, toilet rooms and ample locker and closet space. She is fitted throughout with electricity and carries a powerful searchlight. After her return from Bermuda she will be used by her owner for cruises along the Atlantic coast from his summer home at Cape May, New Jersey. Her dimensions are 60 feet over all, 53 feet water line, 12 feet 3 in hes breadth. She is driven by a 25-horsepower Standard motor, and has an auxiliary sail spread of 300 square feet.

CLOSE FINISHES AT B. Y. C. REGATTA

All the Events of the Annual Regatta Were Evenly Contested.

Over the regular course, the Boston Yacht Club, yesterday, held their annual races, which were [illegible] under a moderate wind and a smooth sea. All of the events were very evenly contested, the winners being in doubt till the line was crossed, particularly in Classes I, when only forty seconds separated the leading boats. Secret, that finished second in her class, was handled in the race by the three daughters of the owner, A. F. Loring. Fully 5,000 persons witnesses the races. Summary:

KIMBALL WINS ALLSTON TOURNEY

Dick Kimball, the former Brookline High School crack golfer, won the annual open handicap tourney of the Allston Golf Club yesterday afternoon with a gross score of seventy-six. Kimball was entered from the Chestnut Hill Golf Club, and, with a handicap of two, made a net score of seventy-four. His playing was the big feature of the two days' play and he exhibited the same form that characterized his playing on Memorial Day, when he broke the record for the Myopia Club course.

G. A. Sprague of the Woodland Golf Club and W. C. Hagar of the Allston Golf Club were tied for the prize for the best net score, each having seventy-two. Sprague had a gross of eighty-two and handicap of ten, while Hagar had a gross of ninety-four and handicap of twenty-two. They will play off the tie this week.

HAVERHILL DOWNS LAWRENCE H. S., 4-2

Haverhill, June 1.—Haverhill High School won from Lawrence High this afternoon in one of the finest games of the season. Marshal, Haverhill's pitcher, held Lawrence down to a few scattering hits until the [illegible], when on two passes, a hit and [illegible] error, the visitors scored their only two runs of the game.

Haverhill batted Barry, Garry and Ganley hard at times, securing three runs through a mixture of good and bad playing in the [illegible] inning and another in the eighth. [illegible] shortstop was [illegible] sent behind the bat [illegible].

TOMMY O'TOOLE NOT IN BAKER'S CLASS

Special to the Boston American.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 1.—The cleverness and speed of Harry Baker of San Francisco, proved too much for Tommy O'Toole of this city at the National A. C. to-night. Baker was like lightning in the first three rounds and danced in and out landing left jabs to Tommy's face repeatedly and frequently without a return.

Harry cut out O'Toole's lip in the first round and kept the wound open in each of the succeeding rounds. O'Toole cut loose in the fourth round and from that point until the middle of the fifth forced the Californian all over the ring. At the latter stage Tommy ran into a left hook on the jaw which weakened him.

In the sixth round Baker kept the fighting at long range and [illegible] damage. O'Toole tried to get in a right swing to Harry's face, but the best he could do was to reach Harry's cheek and draw blood.

This is ten seconds faster than the best time made by a gasoline car.

Our record was made in a trial against time. We could not compete against anything else because the Contest Committee of the Wilkes-Barre Automobile Club barred us from the "free-for-all" for reasons set forth in the following letter:

Wilkes-Barre Automobile Club,

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., May 29th, 1907.

Walter C. White, Esq.,
Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

My Dear Mr. White:—

Confirming my [illegible] with regard to your entries [illegible] am sorry that your entry [illegible] received [illegible] for [illegible] notify you that [illegible] cannot [illegible] that [illegible] event [illegible].

This conclusion was reached only after it was found that a large number of gasoline entries could not be received were steam cars allowed to compete in the gasoline events, and, inasmuch as up to that time, May 22d, and in fact until May 27th, no steam car entries had been received, the Contest Committee could see no other way to accomplish the greatest success of the Meet than to admit the large number of gasoline entries, by excluding the steam cars, which is a privilege reserved the committee by the wording of the entry blank, namely, "The [illegible] reserves the right [illegible]"

However, the [illegible] offered to the car that you are [illegible] with the cars, and that [illegible] car may be here, and that [illegible] the Quaker City [illegible] steam car [illegible] and [illegible] in the affirmative, [illegible] that [illegible] made by members of the Wilkes-Barre Motor Club [illegible], the Contest Committee has added as [illegible] to the programme for steam cars offering gold, silver and bronze medals for the winners of first, second and third places, respectively. This event, with a few Quaker City events, offers 10 prizes which are available to be won by steam cars.

If you are agreeable to having your entries transferred to the Quaker City, which the same will be allowed, kindly advise us to that effect immediately. Kindly return here with your original entries and cash deposits, which accompanied the same, and also new blanks for you to fill out, if the classes may meet with your approval.

Yours truly,

(Signed) P. [illegible] MCILVAIL, President.

We shall lodge a protest with the Racing Board of the American Automobile Association, asking that our exclusion from the "free-for-all" be declared invalid, and, in view of the fact that one of the cars which we entered in this event made the fastest climb of the contest, we shall ask that this event be awarded to us.

100-MILE AUTO RACES FOR STOCK CARS ARE NOT POPULAR WITH PUBLIC

BY J. C. KERRISON.

There is really no reason to believe that track racing for stock cars at the 100-mile distance will ever become popular with the masses. They are too long drawn out and tedious to a degree. They, judging from that seen at Readville on Thursday, lack that element so much desired by the sport loving public, intense excitement. While it is true that there was a certain amount of excitement in the contest, it could hardly be classed with the fifty mile event for real bona fide interest, interest which held the attention of the spectators throughout.

There was certainly a great contrast between the two events, the one at the 100 and the one at the fifty mile mark. The latter was interesting, and produced many exciting periods, the cars and the drivers being willing to take issue one with the other at almost every stage of the game. In the 100 mile it seemed like an easy thing at first for Morrison in the Stearns, and then after his accident or mishaps, whichever you care to term them, there was little or nothing to attract and hold the attention. The Oldsmobile ran true and well and won the race, never being passed after she had once taken the lead.

Good Generalship.

There was in this many illustrations of good generalship. There was likewise displayed on the part of the majority of the drivers a desire to drive out the 100 at what might be termed a schedule time. They each had seemingly figured that they could easily push their cars at a certain speed through, and rather than take chances in racing and overloading their engines with work they proceeded along at a steady consistent gait, being perfectly willing, seemingly, to let the other cars go along in the even tenor of their ways. This, of course, was not racing, racing such as the local people had been educated to anticipate, and therefore the big event seemed to lose its interest.

Not so in the fifty mile race, however. There was in that event witnessed earnest, real and exciting competition. In this several side issues were fought to a successful conclusion, one of which was the differences of opinion between the Oldsmobile and the American, which cars have been matched for a special road race for some weeks past. Although not generally well-known there was and is the greatest of rivalry between these two cars, and it was really fought out on this track and in this event. The Jackson showed superior speeding ability, and had it not been for her great misfortune in tire matters she and the Oldsmobile would certainly have made the race thoroughly interesting from the very start to finish, although to tell the truth there was nothing lacking in excitement after the Jackson had fallen to the rear.

Jackson vs. Stanley.

Then when the fight between the first two cars to finish was on the contest between the Jackson and the Stanley was interesting at every stage of the game. The steamer which it had been whispered would make a runaway of the contest was hardly up to top notch, and her showing was disappointing to thousands, but particularly gratifying to the gasoline men who all along have claimed that on long distance work, requiring speed and enduring ability, their product was superior to that of the steam variety, irrespective of makes or makers.

The impression prevails that track racing of the future in this vicinity at least will be limited in distance to the fifty mile mark, and that twenty-five-mile contests will be substituted for the longer distances. A 100-mile contest is too long drawn out, it tires both the spectators and the operators, and operates against particularly speedy work in the majority of cases by the fact that instead of causing a man to go out and push his car to the utmost it rather causes him to become cautious and wait developments. Each man is usually thoroughly conversant with the speed of his car, which cannot be used to the limit on a circular track, and rather than take more chances than absolutely necessary he is content to plug along at a steady reasonable gait and wait developments, which may include punctures to his competitors' tires or some slight mechanical trouble.

Mechanical troubles were decidedly absent in both of the events on Thursday, all the cars going through without any great difficulty in that direction. In fact not one reported any trouble with engines or machinery, the main cause of disaster being punctured tires. It was a surprise to the motorists to learn how many nails were concealed in the track. The Jackson picked up no less than six nails or spikes in tires. The Stearns landed a few just to show there was no ill feeling in the matter, while the Frayer-Miller and the Corbin were not without their souvenirs in that line. Howard Linne of the Goodrich company has several fine souvenirs which he secured from different cars after they came to the tire stations for repairs.

Races Successful.

But while admitting that long distance events such as the 100 mile was not be particularly popular in the future one cannot help but admit that this latest venture, surely an innovation, was in many ways particularly successful and reflects credit upon the men who handled the affair. There was not a single accident throughout the day. There were no long drawn out controversies as regards this, that or the other rule. Instead every one seemed to have a thorough understanding of the situation and conditions, and lived up to the same in a thoroughly and sportsmanlike manner. There were no vexatious delays, no clashing of officials and every thing went as well as a finely adjusted properly oiled piece of machinery, fully in keeping with what the Bay State Auto Association has previously done in this direction.

The entrants in both of the events all seemed pleased with the results of the contest. Many of course entered cars without the slightest expectations of winning, but rather just to prove that their cars could travel along at a fast pace and proved the reliability of their cars. This was particularly true of the Corbin, Frayer-Miller, and Knox cars, all air cooled propositions. The way they performed was particularly satisfactory to all three, as not only did they cover the distances, but they proved conclusively on the track as they did in the Glidden tour of last year that their method of cooling is practicable and reliable, their engines being fully as cool as any of the water cooled variety at the conclusion of their races.

Showed Up Strong.

The showing made by the Dragon was eminently satisfactory to George C. Lewis. The car entered the contest, not with the idea of capturing the premier honors, but rather to prove beyond all question its capability and reliability. It was driven on a set schedule, and performed most consistently throughout, being one of the few cars which was not forced to leave the track for any reason from the start to the finish of the 100 miles. Manager Lewis is delighted with the showing made by this, the latest addition to the cars of the day, as it proved conclusively that the Dragon is a car of merit and achievement.

The Grout car was driven according to schedule throughout and made a good showing. The four-cylinder Cadillac which heretofore has not done any work on the local track, showed up remarkably strong, being a close second to the winner of the 100 and being the only car with the exception of the winner that did not have any misfortune throughout the distance. It was driven steady and true throughout, never once wavering, and showing excellent form at every stage of the game. The Stearns and the Moon both exceptionally good cars, with plenty of speed and power were as is well known particularly unfortunate. The Royal Tourist which won second it was a schedule which proved partly which seemed to be driven on schedule, and it was schedule which proved particularly gratifying and successful to the owner thereof.

As a whole the race meet was interesting, the excitement in the 50-mile more than compensating one for the long wait through the 100-mile event.

BIG FIELD DAY OF ROXBURY SOCIETIES

Baseball Games and Running Races Features of the Program of Sport.

With perfect weather conditions prevailing, the annual field day held yesterday by the St. Alphonsus Association and the Guild of Our Lady, societies connected with the Mission Church on the Walpole street baseball grounds, was a complete success.

The day opened with a parade of the children from the church to the grounds, headed by the Mission Church Boys' Band.

The morning sports consisted of a baseball game between the Altar Boys and Choir Boys teams which was won by the Choir Boys by the score of 9 to 4.

The battery for the winning team was Jacobs, pitcher, Sullivan, catcher, while Hazlebrook and Cook were the battery for the losers. The feature of the game, one that caused the young fans to go wild, was a home run hit by Jacobs, with the bases full. The game was followed by children's foot races. The first race was for the girls, which was won by Miss Ester Kalren, with Miss Anna Duggan second.

The next and last race was for the boys, which was won by Frank Gatley, with James O'Donnell second.

In the afternoon the children gave way to the adults. At 3 o'clock the afternoon's sports began with a baseball game between the strong Holy Name Society team, of Cambridge, and the St. Alphonsus Association team. The Holy Name team won by the close score of 5 to 4. The score:

Holy Cross Nine Beaten by Fordham Boys 5 to 2

Fordham, N. Y., June 1.—Inability to hit Mahoney was largely responsible for the defeat of Holy Cross by Fordham today on Fordham Field by the score of 5 to 2. The speedy Fordham twirler fanned ten men and allowed but three hits. Only in the last two innings was Holy Cross able to be dangerous, then a hit and a combination of errors gave the visitors their tallies.

Dowd for the Holy Cross pitched a good game except in the fifth inning, when a hit, base on balls and an error filled the bases. An infield hit was fielded fast, cutting off the runner at home, and Sweeney throwing to first to make a double play struck the Fordham runner, the ball going wild. Three men scored before the ball could be fielded.

Fordham had already made good in the third on Hartman's two-bagger and Egan's single. Things looked rather bad for the visitors, who could not fathom Mahoney until the eighth, when O'Rourke knocked a single to right field and circled the bases on slow fielding. In the ninth Cahill got a hit and made third on Coffey's error. Barry followed with a long fly, enabling Cahill to score with the visitors second tally. It was a pretty rally but came too late to threaten. Fordham's lead. Both teams played good ball, but the brunt of the work fell to the pitchers, the lion's share of the honor falling to Mahoney. ARLINGTON H. S. WON BRONZE LOVING CUP

Arlington High yesterday afternoon defeated Winchester High, 12 to 4, on Lawrence field, Arlington, and won the bronze loving cup offered by the central committee. The teams had met twice before and honors were even. Soderquist was in the box for Arlington and he pitched a strong game, striking out 10 men and allowing Manchester but two hits, both to short outfield, of the scratchy variety.

Carlfield, who started to pitch for Manchester, was hit in the arm by a pitched ball and was obliged to retire in favor of Howe in the sixth. Howe was very erratic, making five wild pitches in four innings.

Arlington batted both Carlfield and Howe for singles almost at will. Sea[illegible] and Kealy did the heavy batting for Arlington, getting three hits. Tyler's [illegible] for Arlington was very speedy, [illegible] ing to score [illegible] ding five Manchester men who tried to [illegible] the sack. The [illegible] uents [illegible] was shown through [illegible] contest by the 3,000 spectators present. Score:

NEW DEVICE SAVES THE AUTO TIRES

The latest invention in tires is the Hartford Midgley Tread, Dunlop or Clinchers. Herbert Lyttle, the famous racing driver, put a set of these tires on his big Pope-Toledo demonstrating car at the Chicago show, so he says, and has run them by Odometer 4,440 miles since [illegible] has the same air he had [illegible] at Chicago. This, too, on a testing car which is put through all kinds of stunts, over all kinds of roads, and under all kinds of conditions. The tire is also indorsed by Hiram Percy Maxim, Henry Souther, and other experts who have made tests. All are agreed. It is the greatest tire invention of the age.

The tires with this Midgley tread service cost only slightly more than the regular tire, [illegible] but when [illegible] at the long life which the tread gives [illegible] taken into consideration the cost is [illegible] less than that of other tires.

HURONS GET BIG SCORE.

In a runaway match at Town Field, Milton, yesterday afternoon, the Hurons of Roxbury defeated the Mattapan Milton combination by the score of 14 to 3. [illegible] who was in the points for the Hurons, pitched one of the finest games ever seen at Milton. He fanned 19 of the opposing batters and allowed them but two [illegible] bases. The base running of Twamsley and the all-around work of McLaughlin was also noticeable. Score:

FAST CAR TO CATCH SPEEDERS

New Jersey officials, strong against the speeding of automobiles along the public highway, have decided to enforce the speed ordinance and have purchased a type XV. Pope-Toledo to run down the violators. J. B. R. Smith, State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, in expressing his opinion, says:

"The car is not an extravagance, but an absolute necessity, and will give the department an immense advantage over the motorists who insist upon breaking the automobile speed law."

The car will be operated under sealed orders like a man-of-war. A telegraph code has been arranged for the [illegible] line without attracting the attention of violators of the speed laws.

NEW YORK TIP ON THE GLIDDEN

A New York man has experienced a dazzling flash of thought in which he has conceived that the club having the greatest number of entries is bound to win the Glidden trophy this year. He has doped it out that because a team of fifteen cars will start with 1,780 points, and a team of eight cars with 1,150 points, the fifteen-car team, losing one-fifteenth of a point on each penalization, while the eight-car team is losing one-eighth of a point, the larger team is certain to win. And it hasn't yet occurred to him that the team of fifteen cars of mixed makes is taking any more chances of being penalized than one of eight cars.

GOOD BREEZES FOR LYNN YACHTSMEN

Stride-Away Defeats Trump in a Close Race of 25-Footers. Nip Also a Winner.

Lynn, June 1.—The first regatta of the season of the Lynn Yacht Club was held this afternoon on Lynn harbor. There was a spanking breeze for the sail boats, while the race for power boats was close and exciting.

Interest centered in the sailing race and there was a hot contest of the twenty-five footers, between Trump, owned by Russel brothers, Lynn Yacht Club, and Stride-Away, owned by R. C. Tillitson, West Lynn Yacht Club. The course was six miles, and the finish was Stride-Away, 56.27, Trump, 57.01. Linerowl, owned by J. Moran, was third in 1.02.03.

Nine power boats started in the race for that class of boats, and the distance was seven miles. The times made are subject to revision by the Power Boat Association, but the actual times at the finish were as follows:

MELROSE BOYS SHUT OUT MEDFORD

Defeated Team Only Got One Hit Off McMullin's Twisters.

Medford High went down to defeat at their home grounds yesterday before Melrose High by the score of 11 to 0. Medford was entirely at the mercy of McMullin, who only allowed them one hit, gave one base on balls and struck out eight. He was backed up in the field perfectly, Melrose not making an error through the game. The score:

PITCHER DROHAN OF NEW BEDFORDS SUED

Declaring that Jimmie Drohan, the crack pitcher of the New Bedford baseball team owes him $41.50 for money advanced to him that he might take out a life insurance policy on a New York insurance company, Mortimer C. O'Donnell, of 77 S[illegible] street, this city, has filed a suit to recover the amount, and through Treasurer Joseph A. Brooks of the New Bedford club has attached Drohan's salary.

Drohan denies that he owes O'Donnell a cent and has retained Attorney Joseph Kenney of New Bedford to fight the suit, which will be tried in the Third District Court at New Bedford.

BUSY A. A. A. QUARTERS.

So rapidly is the membership and the detail work of the American Automobile Association growing that the new headquarters of Secretary F. H. Elliott, at No. 439 Fifth avenue, New York, are proving none too roomy for the work of the executive officers. They are even, they present is as busy as that in the offices for some big corporation.

VETERAN AUTO SALESMAN.

It is reliably said that the first travelling salesman of automobiles in this country was F. M. Hobitt, who was selling cars as long ago as 1896. In 1898 Mr. Hobitt ordered the first big shipment of cars to California, a carload of Waverleys. He is now the travelling representative of the American Locomotive Automobile Company and is on the Pacific Coast in the interest of the Berliet.

"MAN-HUNT" FOR PROCTOR FLAGS

'Wanted' by Police, but 'Pols' Fail to See Any Strenuous Dragnet in Operation.

Robert G. Proctor, Senator Lodge's former private secretary, a fugitive from justice since his $500 cash bail was formally declared defaulted last Monday, is still "wanted" by the police. The police do not appear to "want" the former Quincy man so badly that they are missing any meals in the man hunt, but Lodge's private secretary is still officially "wanted," nevertheless, and police departments everywhere in the United States are supposed to have been notified of the fact.

Proctor has been sentenced to ten months in the House of Correction on Deer Island for taking a $225 contribution from John G. Bestgen in the Fall of 1904 and failing to turn it over to the Republican State Committee. "It was for the campaign fund," says Bestgen, who had been talked of in connection with a consular appointment. Proctor was his friend.

"Has Considerable Sympathy"

Very few people who knew Proctor in Boston, and who know about his pull in politics, expect to see the former secretary and confidential man of United States Senator Lodge doing a turn down the [illegible].

"A fine chance they'll have [illegible] Proctor on the Island," said one [illegible] last night. "Why, to hear some people talk you might think 'Bob' Proctor was a common vagrant or a hobo. You know, [illegible] isn't plain John Smith who took the Quincy come-on's roll. It was 'Bob' Proctor, private secretary to Henry Cabot Lodge. Yes, I know he resigned his private secretary thing. That's all right; that's all right, but take it from me that there is a whole lot of sympathy for Proctor in high circles, and that nobody in authority hereabouts is breaking his blooming neck trying to find out."

"Broke," But Put Up Bail.

Proctor testified that he turned the Bestgen $225 over to "somebody" in the State Committee rooms. He couldn't remember to whom. Most of the State Committee officers of that year were called before the Grand Jury.

The Grand Jury indicted Proctor. A petit jury found him guilty, although the former Attorney-General of the Commonwealth, Herbert Parker of Lancaster, defended him.

His bondsmen originally were Jere McCarthy, Surveyor of the Port, since reappointed through Senator Lodge over the protests of the Republican City Committee of Boston and State Senator Daniel W. Lane.

They withdrew when Proctor was sentenced. Though supposed to be "broke," the defendant put up five one hundred dollar bills as surety during a stay of sentence.

Seen in Washington?

The fugitive is said to have been seen two weeks ago in Washington where, in other days, he was said to be so indispensible to Senator Lodge that it was said he did everything for his Senator "except deliver his speeches and go walking with the President." Other reports have had it that Proctor is in the mining country about Goldfield, Nev. In any event, he is not on Deer Island serving a ten months' sentence for larceny.

"And he will not be," say "wise" folk who think they know.

WHY?

SUMMER PARKS OFFER COUNTLESS ATTRACTIONS

Season Already Fairly Launched, and Thousands Flock to Favorite Resorts

The Summer park season is fairly launched, and Wonderland and Norumbega Park are enjoying unusually heavy patronage. The popular Paragon Park de Luxe will open on June 15. In all three a great many improvements and added attractions will be noted by old patrons.

With many new free open air exhibitions and pay shows of amazing ingenuity, Paragon Park at Nantasket will open on June 15, under the sole management of George A. Dodge. For more than four months carpenters, painters and decorators have been at work at this popular resort, the first big amusement enterprise of the new "White City" variety to locate near Boston, and patrons of the resort will be astonished at the changes that have been effected since last season.

The big feature show of last year, the [illegible] Boston [illegible] retained. With this single exception, [illegible] every other attraction in the park is new this season. Among the features secured are the Human Roulette, a gigantic mechanical invention that is said to [illegible] one of the most successful amusement [illegible] shows [illegible] Summer but two will be exhibited in this country: One at Coney Island on the famous Steeplechase Park and the other at Paragon de Luxe. Other new shows will be a great production of "Creation," a novelty called "Switzerland," the Sea Wave, Beauty Show, Trip to the Moon, Theatre [illegible] and many others [illegible] of the new free exhibitions [illegible] taken altogether [illegible] de Luxe promises to surpass its own reputation with amusement seekers.

AT NORUMBEGA PARK.

The backward Spring has not delayed preparations for the regular Summer season at Norumbega Park, the popular resort on the Charles, and the magnificent natural setting that this favorite outing place enjoys is more beautiful than ever, it seems, because of the very perversity of the weather of the past few weeks. The trees and shrubbery are in prime condition, and the gardeners and landscape artists have certainly surpassed their previous efforts in their endeavors to make Norumbega a true Arcadia-for-a-day. The park has enjoyed heavy patronage since Memorial Day, and the management is satisfied that the "old favorite" is still as popular as ever. The restaurant, under new management this season, has fairly leapt into popular favor. What is of more interest to the public is that, although the prices are lower, the food and service is improved.

In the big open-air rustic theatre, a full concert orchestra will furnish music in connection with the regular attractions seen at the theatre, in which, as in past seasons, performers of a high order of merit will appear. The bill changes weekly. The swiss [illegible] the [illegible] chalet, the lunch service, the canoes and boating and the electric fountains continue as popular features.

AT WONDERLAND.

Attractions at Wonderland this season are so varied that it is almost impossible to speak of them in detail. The simple fact is that Wonderland is one of the greatest recreation grounds in America, and if the weather conditions are favorable last year's record of over 2,000,000 visitors will surely be broken. The sensational flights of [illegible] have already become the talk of New England. It is one of the most thrilling and interesting exhibitions ever presented. The concerts by the band of the First Corps of Cadets in the new $10,000 music court are proving a treat. The band plays every afternoon and evening. In the free open-air circus this week [illegible] Every [illegible] Battle Abbey, [illegible] Under the Sea, [illegible] nations, the scenic railway, [illegible] swing, [illegible] horses [illegible] the railway and the pony carts, the infant incubators, and even when one has made the rounds of all these attractions, had his fortune told in the palmistry grove, dined at McDonald's, danced in the ball room, eaten peanuts and popcorn, drank iced drinks and so on, all of the wonders of Wonderland have not been enjoyed. Children accompanied by parents will be admitted free every afternoon, Saturdays, Sundays and holidays included.

'BILL' TURTLE WOULD BE A REAL SENATOR

Special Friend of the Trust Simply "Impossible," Say Party Leaders.

It is charged by knowing ones at the State House and by politicians in the western part of the State that Representative "Bill" Turtle of Pittsfield, the so-called "House leader," and special friend of the trusts, is ambitious for promotion from the House to the Senate.

He thinks he has done enough for the corporations to entitle him to their support in attempting to shift from the 240 class of legislators to the 40 class.

Senator Thomas F. Cassidy represents the district now and has a most excellent record for his two terms. It is understood that he does not care to come back again, and that he is wanted by the Democrats of the Berkshire-Hampden district to run for District Attorney. Solicitor John H. Mack of North Adams to be their senatorial [illegible].

Mr. Mack is [illegible] one of the strongest public men in the district. He was the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant Governor the year Robert Treat Paine, Jr., ran for Governor.

In the event of his [illegible] to again be a candidate for [illegible] effort will be made by leading Democrats and independents of Berkshire to induce City [illegible] Paine, Jr., ran for Governor.

Mr. Mack says: "I would not hesitate to run against Turtle, if I should be wanted, but all talk about my nomination must be on the positive understanding that Senator Cassidy is out of [illegible] and for him if he desires [illegible] think his good work [illegible] to it. If he should [illegible] candidate I would like nothing [illegible] to run against Turtle."

Prominent Republicans [illegible] that if Turtle should carry off [illegible] for the Senate he would be [illegible] defeated by Cassidy or Mack. His [illegible] of opposition to the bucket-shop bill, the shoe arbitrary bill and to labor legislation, they say, would make him simply impossible, even if he had not gained the reputation of being the foremost corporation man in the House. And his shifting attitudes on the bill for sessions of the Superior Court at North Adams would cause many of the Republicans in the northern section of Berkshire to knife him.

U. S. GETS MILLIONS BY TARIFF TREATY

Washington, June 1.—According to the State Department the tariff agreement with Germany, which was countersigned to-day, is decidedly in favor of the United States.

The agreement was proclaimed by the President and signed by him before he left for the West.

When countersigned by the State Department the proclamation was made public.

The agreement becomes operative, so far as it relates to the administration of customs laws in the United States, at once. Changes of tariff rates in goods exchanged between the two countries does not become effective [illegible].

According to German statistics the reduction of duties on American goods under the new agreement would amount to $6,661,000 per annum, while according to our statistics, the remission of federal revenue in consequence of the concessional reduction in favor of German goods, would amount to only $208,188 per annum, on the basis of the importations of the fiscal year, 1906.

HOLD CONCERT TO AID JEWISH HOME FUND

To raise a building fund for the new quarters of the Helping Hand Temporary Home, an institution conducted by Jewish residents, a concert will be held this evening at the Colonial Theatre under the auspices of the ladies' auxiliary. Charles H. Hertz, president of the auxiliary, will direct the concert, which includes numbers by many Hebrew singers and musicians of prominence.

SERVICES IN MEMORY OF LORD FITZGERALD

To commemorate the life and services of Lord Edward Fitzgerald there will be a meeting of the County Dublin Association in Rathbone Hall, No. 694 Washington street, this evening at 8 o'clock. There will be a special programme of songs, recitations and addresses. Among the musical numbers will be selections by the Dublin choir.

SALEM MUSICIAN DIES AT HOSPITAL

Joseph M[illegible], forty-five, a well known musician of Salem, who was taken out of the Falmouth House, on Causeway street, last Wednesday in an unconscious condition, died at the Relief Hospital last night. When Miller was found the circumstances were such as to arouse the suspicion of the police, but the doctors reported that his condition was due to kidney trouble.

TREASURY SURPLUS IS NOW $65,499,723

Washington, June 1.—The surplus in the United States treasury to-day, the opening of the last month of the fiscal year, was $65,499,723. For May the receipts exceeded the expenditures by within a few dollars of $9,000,000.

About June Sales

Values as advertised by us suggest something different from the ordinary sales, the difference between inferior goods at low prices and "Good Goods" at "Right Prices." We don't hold so-called June Sales of Muslin Underwear. Why should we? June is no different to us than April and May. It's when the season is over that we hold our Semi-Annual Sales. Then's the time we cut prices and cut them good, but to do this in June is nonsense, pure and simple. If we can't make a profit now, when can we? While we mention some "Specials" for this week, and admit there's a profit attached to each item, yet at the same time we challenge any house in the business to beat our values. Think this over.

¶ It is not the big authors alone but the big subjects they write on which make a magazine appeal to you—its readers.

¶ The fact that many big authors have written for June Cosmopolitan means nothing. But the fact that many big authors have written on many big subjects (both fact and fiction) compels your attention.

HERE ARE A FEW:

¶ JACK LONDON makes a comparison and describes a phase of life that few, very few, people know anything about.

¶ ELEANOR GATES tells a typical breezy Western story that she alone can do so well. "A Run for Material" tingles with interest throughout.

¶ OWEN KILDARE tells what life means to him, a one time pugilist and a notorious politician, now a man who is devoting his life to the highest ideals.

¶ BRUNO LESSING'S story, "Renunciation," will bring tears to the dryest eye. It is not maudlin in its sentiment, but will find a deep, strong, responsive chord of sympathy in every human heart—in you.

¶ LEE ANDERSON'S remarkable little story, "The King's Great Victory," is the tale of a little child that "grown-ups," once having read it, will read again and again, and tell their friends about it.

¶ JOHN H. GIRDNER, M. D., writes an authoritative article in popular style on the phenomena of "Sleep and Death." This article is really a remarkable contribution to an inexhaustible subject.

FREED OF MURDER CHARGE, BOY SAYS STATE SHOULD PAY COSTS.

To Present Monster Petition to Justices in Edgar Meikle's Behalf.

WANTS TO GET DIPLOMA

Youth Works Hard and Will Resume His School Studies To-morrow.

EDGAR WESTON MEIKLE, the Lynn schoolboy recently acquitted of the charge of killing his father, Charles C. G. Meikle, will resume his studies at the Lewis School at Lynn to-morrow. He hopes by hard work to prepare himself for passing the examinations and to receive his diploma of graduation at the close of the month.

Principal Anna M. Hunt of the school believes that Edgar won his diploma. His teacher, Miss Mabel Allen of the ninth grade who has been a weekly visitor to his cell at the Salem Jail, also holds the opinion that the boy is capable of passing the test which will enable him to be graduated a bona fide high school pupil. Although he was in jail eight months of his school year, young Meikle studied faithfully, and when his teacher Miss Allen visited him on Saturday she always found the lad (although prepared his lessons. If he is successful he may continue his studies at the Lynn High School next Fall.

Receives Many Letters.

The postman this week brought a large number of letters to the boy at his home, No. 59 Lexington street, where he lives with his guardian, Joseph E. Trimble. Many of the letters are from young girls, mostly unknown to the lad. Numerous letters of congratulation have been received by him from leading citizens of Lynn and lesser country for which the young lad is profoundly grateful. A large army of callers was lately besieged his house to welcome him back and protest their fun belief in him.

The color in his cheeks, due to his long confinement, is rapidly giving way to a pink shade of health. No sooner than he was he doing something on his return to Freed is that he has polled about the premises home with rake and shovel, turning over the little garden plot. Edgar's Will Rhyme.

Edgar's Will Rhyme.

as his friendship he was just finishing being a yard swing. Asked if he had received many letters he said:

Resents People Staring.

"Yes, I have had quite a few this week, and many from people whom I don't know. One girl said she'd like to, I waived her to send me her picture. But I shall not answer her letter. I'm not interested in anything but being free and going back to school.

"Everybody has been good to me since I came home. But I wish I have gone down town people have stared at me as if I were some curio. I wish they wouldn't do that. I can be going them pointing me out and saying 'That's the Meikle boy.' After a while I suppose they'll stop staring at me.

A large number of girls living near Edgar's home, and whom he has long known, planned a surprise party for him last week at one of their homes, but later decided to defer the invitation, and his guardian, Joseph E. Trimble, supported him. He thought he ought to protect just now Edgar wants to be left alone.

Says He Suffered Enough.

So long as the public sentiment in Lynn for the boy that it is planned to present a monster petition to the justices who sat in the case of the boy to relieve them also of payment for his counsel and not compel him to part with the little money that he has left after his long ordeal. It is understood that Justice Stevens, the junior member of the court at the trial, is favorably disposed toward this plan. Many prominent women will head the petition. Attorney Richard Soak, who has been Edgar's counsel from the first breath of gossip pointed to him, has already taken the question of his fees up to Judges Stevens and Sanborn. It is hoped that his young client may be relieved of payment of his services.

The funds in custody for Edgar amount to $1,200. The cost of the counsel to him will wipe this out and leave him with a tidy little nest egg. Rather than part with his money, Edgar declared:

Why should I, an innocent boy, be compelled to pay the cost of my defense, after the State shut me up for eight months and I may not see Mrs. Lacy have made me suffer too much already. I don't think the State has any right to that. I earned what little money I have after all I had to stand."

Crossing Ocean to Marry Daughter of Kaiser's Physician

By Boston American Leased Wire.

New York, June 1.—After a courtship begun in Athens seven years ago, when as a Johns Hopkins graduate he went to study, Theodore Leslie Shear, professor of languages at Columbia, is on his way hurry to Dresden and in the romantic Castle Thorwald marry the daughter of Emperor William's physician.

For brides-to-be Miss Nora Cornelia Jenkins' father, Dr. Newell Sills Jenkins, was a well known professor, and his family reside in known theological circles in the American set in Athens. Miss Jenkins was also studying in Athens, when Professor Shear first met her. When he left the Grecian capital to continue his studies in Germany Miss Jenkins went to Paris for the same purpose. While in Germany Professor Shear received high honors and from there was called to Columbia.

In Paris Miss Jenkins received her degree and returned to her parents in Germany, but all the time the acquaintance that began in Athens had been ripening into love. Theodore R. Shear, lawyer, father of the young professor, lives at No. 364 West One Hundred and Twentieth street, and said he greatly regretted that important business would prevent him and Mrs. Shear from attending the wedding.

Wed Four Years Ago; Marriage Trial Over, Pays Minister's Fee

Pawtucket, R. I., June 1.—The Rev. Sherman A. Ross of the First Methodist church is congratulating himself on receiving a $25 check for a wedding he performed four years ago.

He is not only glad to get the $25, but he feels assured that the marriage must have proven a success. There is no reason given for the delay in sending the fee. Mr. Ross knows the bridegroom must have acted to see how the marriage turned out, probably, being a believer in trial marriages.

This wedding was performed by Cherry Valley, Kan. Mr. Ross recalls the young couple. After the ceremony the bridegroom said he would mail a fee to the clergyman.

After four years the bridegroom seems to feel warranted in squaring the nuptial account. He writes Mr. Ross that he is happy and that he is the father of a fine baby girl, now ten months old.

ARLINGTON GAY ON ITS 100TH BIRTHDAY.

Parades, Fireworks, Concerts, Addresses and Feasts Mark Town's Anniversary.

GOVERNOR GUILD SPEAKER

THE 100th anniversary celebration of the town of Arlington was observed yesterday with all anticipated enthusiasm and success. From the time the celebration began at sunrise, when a salute of 100 guns was fired at Russell Park, until the display of fireworks in the evening thousands of people thronged the streets of the historic town. Fully 30,000 people visited Arlington yesterday.

Hundreds of Arlington's sons and daughters came to participate in the festivities of the red letter day in the town's history. The town was in gala dress to welcome its guests and visitors. Hardly a business block was without decorations. From sunrise until midnight open house was the rule among the clubs, associations and residents.

A detail of fifty patrolmen and fifteen plain clothes men were sent from Boston at the request of the town authorities. The detail did efficient service, for, at the end of the day's celebration not a single complaint had been received at headquarters. Following the hundred gun salute at sunrise the summons was taken up by the ringing of bells, which lasted for over an hour. The big feature of the day was the spectacular parade, nearly a mile in length, which started promptly at 10:30 in the morning. Headed by Chief Marshal W. W. Rawson and staff, it marched down Massachusetts avenue to Arlington Centre and as far as Winter street, from there it swung to the east, returning into Medford street and then to the town square, via Massachusetts avenue, where it dismissed.

The first division was composed of Chief Marshal W. W. Rawson, Capt. F. Ellis, two captains of militia, Post 36, G. A. R., and Sons of Veterans. The second division was headed by Marshal William A. Muller and staff, and was composed of town officials, centennial committee, invited guests, fire department, Veteran Firemen's Association, and the town's brass band. The third division, headed by Marshal Henry L. Stone and staff, was made up of floats and wagons. The fourth division was composed of floats from the schools.

Knights Win Prize for Float.

Prizes were for the best features of the parade and a special prize for the best float by the school children. The first prize in the miscellaneous contest was won by the Knights of Columbus, with a float representing Columbus discovering Arlington. The second prize went to Joseph Moore, a market gardner, whose float was a small greenhouse. The third prize went to Lucas L. Gott, a carriage builder. His float represented a blacksmith's forge.

In the school contest the prize was awarded to the Russell School float, representing the purchase of Menotomy, or Arlington, from the Indians in 1637. The idea of the representation was conceived by Miss Louise B. Warren, the oldest teacher in Arlington. The float was decorated with Indian colors and trophies and the pupils of Miss Warren's class represented the characters as follows:

Sachem, Miss Alice Cotton; squaw women, Margaret Burns; Indian braves, Fletcher Tuttle, Frank Priest, Roy MacIver; Indian children, Edith McClure, Olive Rich, Lucy Frost, Charles Moore and Robert Cooke; whites, Thornton Butler, Edward Rowe, Kenneth McLane, John Colbert.

The centres among the schools was keen and many fine floats were the result. Some of them were, "Growth of the Public School, by the High School; "Sixties in the Union in 1907," by the Crosby School.

Jolstreet Lee Garden, by the Cutter School; "Peace Congress," by the Locke School, and the "Ruby Chain," by the Parmenter School.

A feature that won great applause all along the route of the parade was the float from Donn a News Agency at Arlington Heights. The float was occupied by the "newsies" of the agency dressed in uniforms representing the various newspapers, including Henry Woodenough and George Horner, representing the Boston American. The team was drawn by two mules, both caimates to the honor of being the original "Mandy."

At one o'clock a reception to Governor Guild and the invited guests of the day was held at the home of Ex-Governor John D. Brackett, chairman of the General Committee. At the same time refreshments were served at the Town Hall, G. A. R. house, and Willina Frost Bee house, to the participants in the parade.

Three Thousand Hear Governor.

At half past one the Governor and party were taken to the tent erected on the new town house site where the banquet of the day was served. Nearly a thousand people attended the dinner. After dinner the tent was opened and fully 3,000 people gathered to hear the address of welcome by Governor Guild and the introduction of the speakers. Governor Guild referred to the times when a man was fined who failed to attend a town meeting and was termed a criminal. Continuing, he said:

"Nowadays we do not call men criminals who consider themselves so self important that they do not attend either caucus or town meeting. I men criminals who [illegible] carrying canons to [illegible] January," yet those [illegible] as just as much an evil and "pocketbook."

The present meeting was followed by Professor Arthur W. Porter, of Bates College, orator and historian of the day. He was followed by Congressman Samuel W. McCall and Mayor Wilbur C. Wardwell, of Cambridge. Nixon Waterman was the poet of the day.

At 4:30 Governor Guild was driven to the St. James Church, where he delivered a brief address to the school children. At 7:30 a band concert was given in Russell Park and one hour later the celebration ended with the display of fireworks in the park.

Nearly Everybody Decorated.

From the Somerville line to the outer limits of the Heights, practically every public building and dwelling house in Arlington, was in gala attire for the centennial.

The soldiers' monument at the junction of Broadway and Massachusetts avenue was one of the most attractive sights. Flags and bunting were draped over the face of the monument and streamers of multicolored flags had been strung from the top of the shaft to the four corners of the enclosure. Every building in the town square was decorated. The Town Hall was draped from top to basement with streamers and [illegible] In the centre was the long wall which [illegible] three names under which the town has been known since 1637. Below was the centennial banner bearing the dates, 1807-1907. The Robinson Memorial Library was tastefully decorated. The High School and all the grammar schools were draped with bunting. Hose Company No. 1, building at Arlington Centre and No. 2's at the Heights were both elaborately decorated.

Post office block, Ex-sheriff's pharmacy, the knight of Columbus hall, H. W. Peirce company, and Upham's market, Rosalsky's shoe store, the Arling[illegible] Light Company, Hall's grocery store, Sean[illegible]'s, Dodge building, F. T. Heuiltier's [illegible] Cook's [illegible] Dow and Hall, H. Murray's store and Schwamb's factory, were all decorated.

At Arlington Heights, Pierce and Winn's Crescent Hall market, W. K. Hutchins's, B. Bradley's, G. H. Evans's Park avenue pharmacy, J. T. Mello's C. H. Kimball's, the Boston Elevated car barns and Donn a News Agency were decorated.

The residents of Arlington along the route of the parade displayed great interest in the celebration, and nearly all of them decorated their homes. Many of them showed beautiful displays. Among them were the homes of Selectmen E. F. Hicks, C. P. Monk, Howell Wyeth, ex-Governor Brackett, James A. Bailey, A. Taft, Henry Swinburne, F. M. Kilbey, C. E. F. Stickney, G. A. Swan, H. WAIT DECISION THIS WEEK IN EDDY SUIT

Expect Judge Chamberlain to Rule on Trustees' Motion to Intervene.

SCIENTISTS ARE CONFIDENT

Concord, N. H., June 1.—Interest in the forthcoming decision upon the motion to intervene made by the defendants in the Mary Baker G. Eddy case, April 2, when the case was first called in court, is at white heat. As the time when Judge Robert N. Chamberlin, of the Superior Court, before whom the motion was argued last week, will render his decision, has drawn near, the interest has not abated but grown still more intense.

It is expected that the decision will be filed early next week. Judge Chamberlain went to Cambridge Friday afternoon, after he had received the brief of the plaintiffs, and will pass Sunday with his son, who is a student at Harvard Law School. He will return Monday for the final week of the present session of the court, and may make his ruling at that time.

Expect Legal Sparring.

Counsel for the plaintiffs declare their intention of fighting the case through to the end in any contingency. If the motion is granted, it will practically throw the case out of court, of it is not believed the trustees, in view of their statements will continue it unless some new evidence can be produced. On the other hand, if the motion is denied and the "next friends" are allowed to continue as plaintiffs, it is expected that legal sparring will follow over the question of carrying the ruling to the Supreme Court before a trial of the case.

The plaintiffs have already declared that they regard this as only an interlocutory proceeding, and that, as such, it should go to the Supreme Court, if at all, at the close of the case after a trial by jury or before a master, and not at present.

It is believed that the defendants will make an opposite view and will attempt to get before the Supreme Court the legal question as to whether or not to intervene.

In any case it will be impossible to get a trial of the case before October, when the full term of the Superior Court begins in this city.

Bullets Mysteriously Shot Into Cambridge House Rouse Police

Plot Against Members of Nadeau Family Theory of Investigators of Attacks.

Cambridge police officials were busy last night investigating a series of what they deem mysterious attempts to shoot some members of George Nadeau's family at the Nadeau house, No. 27 Clay street, North Cambridge.

The entire neighborhood is aroused over the matter. The fact that the Nadeau family is quite popular in that vicinity and has no enemies, so far as known, adds to the puzzle.

The latest shooting was thought to be merely a careless use of firearms, but a recurrence of the affair makes the police think the accident theory.

Mrs. Joseph Nadeau, Mrs. Eugene Nadeau and Mrs. Henry and Alfred Nadeau, wives of Canucks, were happening for tea in one of the upper rooms of the Nadeau house, a bullet crashed through the window, passed close to a lamp on the table, narrow margin of about three inches and lodged in the mantle on the other side of the room. The ladies hurried out and no trace of the person who fired the shot could be found.

Two weeks ago, while the family, including George Nadeau, his wife, two sons and a friend named Wilfred Provencal, were at supper in the dining room, a bullet crashed through the window, beside which the elder Nadeau was sitting. The missel passed within six inches of his head and buried itself in the wall.

HIBERNIAN LEADER FLAYS MAYOR FOR DEFENCE OF DOUGLAS.

National Lecturer E. J. Slattery Declares He Was First to Cry Discrimination.

RAISED RELIGIOUS ISSUE

Says Catholics Feel Former Governor Was Not Fairly Disposed Toward Them.

E. J. SLATTERY of South Framingham, national lecturer for the Ancient Order of Hibernians yesterday sent to the BOSTON AMERICAN office the following letter:

"Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

"For over two weeks I have looked to see if some reply to the palliating and preserving defense of the administrative policy of Governor Douglas, which, on May 11 appeared in the Republic, the personal organ for Mayor Fitzgerald, the opening sentence of which reads as follows:

"There undoubtedly exists in many places in Massachusetts among the Catholic element of the population a feeling that former Governor Douglas was not fairly disposed towards them when he was in office on Beacon Hill."

Religion in Politics.

"The above was supplemented by a column article defending the ex-Governor in his treatment of Catholics. If such a feeling exists, what caused it and who is responsible for it? The first prominent man that I know of to raise the public cry of proscription and religious discrimination against the administration of ex-Governor Douglas was the present Mayor of Boston, and if he was not justified he should make public apology to the people at large and to the ex-Governor in particular.

"I do not believe that such a feeling exists without sufficient cause, for I claim that our Catholic people are fully as capable of impartial judgment on the service of public men as those of any other class of citizens. Would Mayor Fitzgerald have the public believe otherwise?

As to A. P. A. Ism.

"If such a feeling does exist and as careful political student will deny that it does, it is only one more impressive, and, I hope, instructive lesson, on 'cause and effect,' and Mr. Mayor, try as you may, you cannot erase it, as such lessons are indelibly written. No such feeling exists relative to our present Governor.

"If Mayor Hugh A. P. A. speech made the ex-Governor in 1894, in the interest of the Republican candidate for Mayor of Brockton, and now applied by Mayor Fitzgerald as a basis for political absolution, implies, if it implies anything, that the Democratic party of Brockton or the opposition to the Republican candidate constitute the A. P. A. party. The aldermanic contest in Brockton last year should be an object lesson to Boston politicians; they cannot make playthings out of religious and racial sentiment for their support, no matter what office they hold or aspire to.

Lauds Whitney.

"Mr. Mayor, your extreme dislike of a few leading Democrats in Boston, who have done much for their party but who refuse to accept your mandates as infallible party gospel, should not cause you to lend your influence and assistance to the senatorial candidate of a party representing an absolute monopoly that ever existed in Massachusetts, and thus not only destroy the splendid opportunity of making a direct issue in every Senatorial and Representative district in the State, but by so doing to also assist in the political murder of the most advanced and practical tariff reformer, Henry M. Whitney, Esq., that your party can boast of in New England.

"Mr. Mayor, haven't you and your immediate political friends enough for that monopoly without assisting their governmental candidate, either for your own or any other party? I do not advise or criticise from a Democratic standpoint, as I did not support the party ticket last November, and therefore feel quite happy in my political independence at the present time. Very respectfully,

"E. J. SLATTERY."

Shonts Forgot to See Baroness Off Until Ship Was Starting

By Boston American Leased Wire.

New York, June 1.—Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough Company, announced to-day that he anticipates trouble with Mrs. Shonts now in Paris.

As the American liner St. Paul left her pier to-day and headed for the open sea, Mr. Shonts was seen to start after her. In the end was ing frantic and seemingly impossible manner. Then he stopped, his perspiring brow and looked perturbed when the liner slowly passed out.

What's the trouble?" asked a BOSTON AMERICAN MAN.

"I've waited my hand at every woman aboard the ship," said Mr. Shonts, "but the one I was to see and know that I was left off, and I've just discovered it. Mrs. Shonts would me from Paris the other day that I was to see Baroness Von Rosen off on the St. Paul and ordered to see her on board. Well, I was talking to a man up the street and forgot all about it and afraid when the ship was gone to Paris and tell my wife I didn't appear interest or disdain.

Mr. Shonts said he had not changed his views about the undesirability of foreign noblemen as husbands for American girls, and he could not tell anything about the reported engagement of his daughter to the Duc de Chaulnes.

"If she's going to marry that Duke, her father doesn't know it," he said.

ROOSEVELT SPEECH BOOSTS STOCKS

WASHINGTON LEAK PREVENTS PANIC

Pres[illegible] [illegible] Bo[illegible]

[illegible] the prevailing weakness, [illegible] helped along the decline. The break was forecasted Friday afternoon [illegible] sharp advance [illegible] were [illegible] market was given.

The week opened with violent [illegible] week before, [illegible] speculative [illegible] Monday night, the [illegible] found that they [illegible] of the address which [illegible] was to deliver at Indianapolis [illegible] thanks [illegible] of journals [illegible] some New York [illegible] Adroit speculators [illegible] terms [illegible] address [illegible] which would [illegible] no scare of prices. So they determined to create the advance first.

"Leak" Causes Advance.

This was done the next day, and the change in the course of stocks was swift. The President's address did what intrinsic values of corporations had been unable to do [illegible]. The amorphous bears into [illegible], and although the change of [illegible] was purely speculative it nevertheless broke the prolonged decline that had brought one panic and [illegible] two others. The advance was practically counteracted [illegible], but it had provided the speculators with [illegible] and "easy" profits. Even yesterday's decline was caused by the turning of these into cash.

During the selling violence which shook the stock market on Monday, the prices of more than a score of stocks reached levels even lower than those created by the March panic. A continuance of the selling pressure on Tuesday must have resulted in another panic, [illegible] the advance [illegible] of the President's address were [illegible] and it was an [illegible] that did not have one on Tuesday [illegible]. The trend of events was immediately changed. The financial world had been eagerly awaiting the details of the speech ever since the Presidential deliverance at the Jamestown exposition had failed to afford it a crumb of comfort. The speculators quickly realized that the address would have been [illegible] used as a bullish argument on Friday in case it was not to become public [illegible] Thursday night, the proper time [illegible] the leak placed the weapons of successful speculation in their hands. Exercising their specialty of gambling with marked cards, they bought stocks [illegible] for an advance, and realized their [illegible] Friday afternoon and yesterday. [illegible] have been the better able to do this, [illegible] "little ones" who had not had privilege of reading the speech in advance came in late with their buying orders, this providing a nice, comfortable market for the area speculators who had already placed their own selling orders and were ready to sell.

State Street Felt Result.

What has been true of the events in Wall Street has pertained also to State Street, although to a smaller and milder extent. The copper shares were not directly affected by the speculation which President Roosevelt's address developed, but the Boston stock market, reflecting the course of that in New York, immediately strengthened and permitted the copper stocks to advance. That is, the traders shifted their position and began to buy stocks. The "shorts" were forced to cover previous sales, and even the "professionals" changed sides. The trouble locally has been that some traders began to take profits on the same day that they sold "short." Others waited until Friday, and still others until yesterday. As the professionals monopolized the market this profit-taking could only result in irregular prices, for some traders were selling while others were buying. The next result, however, in spite of the recession in yesterday's prices, has been at least a temporary check to the prolonged decline to which the copper stocks had been floundering for some four months.

The opening of a new month also brought a change in the money market. The change has been manifested in a slight advance in rates during the closing days of the week. Dulness is nevertheless the chief characteristic, and the added firmness in rates has not been of more than moderate extent. There is not a large supply of money in the banks, but it happens that the demand is light. The exportation of gold, which had served as the cry of "wolf" by the [illegible] for several weeks, actually came [illegible] it did no damage what [illegible] the New York money market and did not cause the slightest ripple on the surface of Boston's money matters. Only a [illegible] over $3,000,000 was exported—hardly a sufficiently large sum to do any damage.

A Disappointing Item.

The New York bank statement yesterday showed a decrease of about $3,000,000 in the surplus. The gain in cash was less than $1,000,000 and was more than offset [illegible] increased [illegible]. Loans were increased by $13,541,000 and deposits by $15,354,000. Thus all but about $2,000,000 of the gain in deposits represents increase in loans, and this item was, therefore, disappointing. The surplus itself compares favorably with the amount held at this season of previous years. The total of the loans is about $12,000,000 greater than that of the deposits, but this is somewhat less than the loan excess of a year ago.

The New York stock market yesterday [illegible] Indiana[illegible] speech," as one trader expressed it, meaning that the effect of the address had been felt and that traders were turning their profits into cash. Improved technical conditions were ignored. Selling was carried on as a matter of professional speculation. Aside from this taint, the market was tired out and depressed. Feeble attempts to make the recent reaching of record prices in cotton a bearish argument were made. Cotton has taken the place of wheat as a basis of argument as to what should happen to stocks.

The New York Market.

The New York market yesterday was only moderately active, even for a Saturday short session. The total sales amounted to 225,000 shares. Reading was the mar-

PUBLIC AGAIN PUTS SURPLUS IN STOCKS

By Thomas C. Shotwell.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Although the stock market has displayed [illegible] hesitancy the last two days and by its ups and downs has indicated public doubt as to how the President's Memorial [illegible] should be interpreted, most experienced financiers seem [illegible] that the speech is not entitled to have any effect whatever on [illegible] market. For every bullish feature in it there is a bearish one and vice versa.

A very general advance in the stock market is expected within the next sixty days regardless of what may happen later. It is admitted that when the tariff war gets in full swing, and when tight money comes in the Autumn another point of view may have to be taken but the operators are concerning themselves now with the immediate future. Never before in the history of the country was the public so rich and so free of financial scares. It has kept out of the stock market so long that is has forgotten how it suffered four years ago. It is even now beginning to put its surplus money into stocks.

NO NEED OF FEARING TO MISS NEXT TRAIN

Many Additions in the Summer Schedule of New Haven Road.

The Summer schedules of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad will go into effect commencing to-day, when important changes and additions will be made in the present train service, including also the inauguration of local parlor car lines. Besides the usual increase in train service for Summer travel, a number of new trains will be added.

A new train Sundays only will leave Providence for Mansfield and Boston at 9 05 a. m., due Boston 10 13 a. m., and returning a new train will leave Boston Sundays only at 4 27 p. m., for Providence and intermediate stations.

There also will be additional train service between Boston and New York via the Shore Line, beginning on June 9. One train, consisting of parlor and dining cars, will run in each direction, leaving Boston and New York at 10 a. m., and there will be another, also of parlor and dining coaches, at 5 p. m. Both these trains will run on a five and one-half-hour schedule and will reach their destinations at 3.30 and 10 30 p. m., respectively.

For further information concerning the above and numerous other important changes in train service, the public is respectfully referred to the new time table posters at stations and new pocket folders and leaflets, which may be obtained at ticket offices in advance of the change.

Mystery in Coppers' Drop.

Companies Have Made Record-Breaking Earnings in Last Four Months.

An explanation of the mystery of copper stocks falling in price during the past four months in spite of the record breaking earnings of the companies which they represent is believed to have been found in a renewal of the reports that the price of copper metal is soon to decline.

The lower prices, it is believed, will take the form of concessions granted by the big producers and selling agencies to their largest customers in order to stimulate business. As the country's output for June has already been sold, however, there is no possibility that the decline will develop until some time in July, and even then it is not expected to amount to more than a few cents.

A study of the present prices of Boston's copper shares would develop the fact that they are the lowest for nearly three years. That is, the high prices for 1907, 1906 and 1905 were many points above the present level of copper stocks. For this reason it is considered by copper experts that copper stocks have already discounted any decline that may be coming in the price of the metal.

Dividends Declining.

During all of this year, in a 25 and 26 cent copper market, the copper producing companies have been making the largest profits in their history. The prices of their shares on the local Stock Exchange, however, have been steadily declining. Only a few dividend rates, moreover, have been increased, in spite of the enormously enlarged earnings.

These facts lead to the conclusion that the "insiders," the producers of copper themselves, have felt all along that the high prices for the metal were not to prove permanent, and that they decided to take advantage of the opportunity which presented itself, and increase the amount of cash held in the treasuries.

The usages to which copper is put are increasing steadily. [illegible] that the consumption of the metal is increasing, the while the production is not. The amount of copper produced thus far this year is somewhat smaller than that produced during the first five months of 1906. The ratio of demand and supply, therefore, is such as to preclude the possibility of a serious break in the price of copper metal. The temporary demand for copper has fallen off.

This fact is admitted on all sides. But the consumers either have large supplies on hand with which to meet the daily demands of their business or else they are holding to a hand-to-mouth policy of placing orders for only just enough copper for their immediate needs. Thus it is that the consumption is being maintained in spite of a temporary lessening of the demand for the metal.

Hoping for Concessions.

The producers, in about a month, will be able to contract for new deliveries of the metal. The consumers will wait until then, if possible, before contracting for any large supplies. They are still hoping that concessions in price will be made. Knowing this and knowing that they prefer to contract for their output in large amounts instead of in many small ones, the producers are already discussing the advisability of making the concessions expected.

The Calumet & Hecla Company, the largest independent producer of copper, is not in the market at present as a seller of copper, and probably will not be for two or three weeks. It is well sold ahead at high prices, and, unlike some of the smaller producers, it is not obliged to make sales except when it wishes. During the past week Calumet received a bid from one of the shrewdest buyers in Germany for a large amount of copper at a price equivalent to 25 cents per pound. The bid was refused.

PITTSBURG COMPANY HITS GOLD DEPOSIT NEAR ITS OLD DRIFT

New York, June 1.—The Pittsburg Lead & Zinc Company has struck a body of rich ore on the eighty-foot level. In the drift at this point and within about fifty feet of No. 3 shaft, in a space of about thirty feet square, four pillars have been entirely cut, the ore from which is estimated at 7,000 tons. Manager Elmer of the Cobalt Central reports that a new drift, known as No. 2, has been started in the Big Pete shaft at the 115-foot level. The ore taken from this level continues to show rich values. The foundation for the company's new mill has been completed.

General Manager Robert W. Davis, Jr., of the Red Hundred mines, reports that two [illegible] of large capacity with [illegible] new machinery has been installed. With this machinery in operation the mill will be able to handle ore at the rate of 10,000 tons a month. The output of gold at the Rand in May is estimated as 500,000 fine ounces, against 537,019 fine ounces in April and 461,[illegible]00 fine ounces in May a year ago.

KING-CROWTHER

The public generally will be interested to know that the King-Crowther Corporation is to-day operating in the proven oil belts of Indiana, Ohio and Texas, 608 oil wells, this being the largest number of oil wells operated by any corporation in the United States, with the single exception of the Standard Oil Company.

The capital stock of the King-Crowther Corporation has recently been increased from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000, the par value of the shares being $100 each. The new stock is held as a special treasury reserve, to be used in the absorption of additional properties from time to time, the amount of stock carried in the treasury of the corporation for this purpose on May 31st being 25,770 shares, having a par value of $2,577,000. The treasurer's report also shows cash on hand and accounts receivable to the amount of $131,986.44.

The King-Crowther Corporation is earning at the present time in excess of 12% on all of its outstanding stock, and is paying dividends at the rate of 8% per annum. The next regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share and 50 cents extra per share will be paid June 15th to all stockholders of record June 5th.

I expect to see the King-Crowther Corporation go upon a 10% dividend basis by the end of this year, and I shall be disappointed if the rate for 1908 is less than 12%.

The stock of the King-Crowther Corporation is not listed on any Exchange, and neither is it dealt in on the Curb.

The stock is held by bona fide investors and not speculators. Investors desiring to realize on any number of shares will find a quick, strong and genuine market by calling at my office.

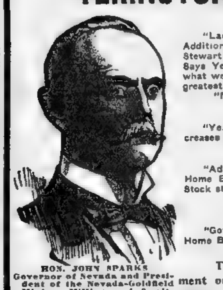
GOVERNOR SPARKS SAYS:

"YERINGTON WILL EQUAL BUTTE"



HON. JOHN SPARKS
Governor of Nevada and President of the Nevada-Goldfield Mining, Milling and Smelting Co.

TELEGRAM FROM W. T. WATSON, GEN. SUPT.

"Large force men now at work on our properties. More to follow. Additional machinery ordered. Mining engineers, especially Stewart, elated. Stewart says our proposition can't be beat. Governor very enthusiastic. Says Yerington will equal Butte. First shipment will be more than double what we expected. Assays show higher values. Entire outlook better than greatest anticipation. W. T. Watson, Gen. Supt.
"NEVADA-GOLDFIELD MINING, MILLING & SMELTING CO."

TELEGRAM FROM YERINGTON

"Yerington property will make big mine. Each day's development increases valuation. John H. Reniger, Vice-President."

TELEGRAM FROM SAN FRANCISCO

"Advise all customers to purchase all stock they can present price. Home Bee property Yerington believe has apex of proven copper mine. Stock should go to par or better. Act quickly.
"John Reniger, Vice-President."

TELEGRAM FROM GOLDFIELD

The above telegrams give in brief the story of the development on the great properties of the Nevada-Goldfield Mining, Milling and Smelting Co. in the past ten days.

STOCK NOW 75 CENTS PER SHARE—PAR VALUE $5.00—WILL ADVANCE TO $1.00 OR MORE IN THE NEXT FEW DAYS

OUR RICH HOLDINGS AT YERINGTON

Our "Home Bee" mine, referred to in the telegram from Goldfield, is surrounded by proved properties of great value. The "Nevada-Douglas" has an estimated value of $40,000,000. Its shares are selling around $14.00. The "Ludwig" is valued at $2,500,000. Capt. De la Mar's "Bluestone," $12,000,000; the "Spragg," $2,000,000, with stock worth $7.00 or $8.00 a share.

The Nevada-Goldfield M., M. & S. Co.'s is the only stock of all those mentioned selling at less than $5.00, and expert judges estimate the value of its "Home Bee" holdings as being fully as valuable as any property around Yerington.

We figure conservatively that we have at least 1,000,000 tons of ore in the "Home Bee" mine, enough for sure enormous dividends, leaving out of consideration our rich holdings of hundreds of acres at Lida, Liberty, Goldfield and Tonopah.

In the big 8½x11 prospectus we have prepared, fully describing our entire proposition, we show four large maps, giving the location of all our groups of claims. Send for this beautifully illustrated book. It is the most complete mining prospectus ever issued.

NOTE—The Western Assay Co. of Denver made a number of assays of ore taken from our various properties at different levels and reported an average value of 11.5 per cent copper. Many of the world's greatest copper mines that have paid millions in dividends produce ore that assays only from 3 per cent to 7 per cent copper.

CAPITALIZATION

This company is conservatively capitalized at $5,000,000, divided into 1,000,000 shares, par value $5.00 each. In view of the immense acreage and the millions of tons of ore known to be in the 50 claims held by the company, a capitalization of $20,000,000 would not be inconsistent. There is no preferred stock or bonded indebtedness. All shares are common, non-forfeitable and non-assessable, carrying no personal liability.

There are 400,000 shares of Treasury Stock. We offer 200,000 shares, par value $1,000,000, for the purpose of raising money quickly for development work on a large scale.

WHY STOCK IS SOLD

It will be our policy to pursue an active and vigorous campaign of development. The money received from stock subscriptions, after legitimate expenses are paid, will be applied only for the legitimate work of opening up the properties and putting them on a productive, dividend-paying basis as soon as possible. We will put a large force of miners at work on the Yerington group and as soon as sufficient tonnage is in sight we will build our own smelter, thereby saving an enormous amount in transportation charges.

We will also develop the properties near Goldfield and Lida and build a mill to treat these ores. The Liberty property will be worked and the ores treated at one of the plants in the neighborhood. Greenwater ores will be treated at the large smelter to be built near there by the Schwab interests.

MR. WATSON'S SWORN STATEMENT.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, County of Cook. } ss.

W. T. Watson, on oath, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is the General Superintendent of the Nevada-Goldfield Mining, Milling and Smelting Co., and that he has been such superintendent since the incorporation of said mining company, that his duties have consisted in taking general charge of mining operations on the properties of said company, and that there is at the present time at the "Home Bee" mine of said company copper ore to the amount of fully One Hundred and Twenty (120) tons, sacked and ready for shipment.

Affiant further says that he has thoroughly sampled said ore and that the results obtained show a value of shipping grade, and the same can be profitably shipped at any time.

GENERAL COUNSEL

Howard W. Harrington, Chicago. Henry M. Farnum, Goldfield.

This property is so good, so extensive and with such a wonderful showing of proved ore values, that the Governor of Nevada, the richest mining State in the Union, after a full personal investigation, accepted the Presidency of the Nevada Goldfield M., M. & S. Co. Read

WHAT THE GOVERNOR SAYS:

"I would never have accepted the Presidency of this company unless I believed in it thoroughly. I consider this $5.00 stock—selling for a limited time at 50c—the greatest opportunity offered investors in many years to make a fortune in legitimate mining. It is my honest opinion that those who are fortunate enough to buy shares now at the bottom price will reap rich profits within the next few months."

This is entitled to the respect and confidence of every thinking man or woman who has a little money to invest in a safe and profitable enterprise. It is the statement of an honest man, Chief Executive of one of our greatest States. Can you find, anywhere, at the head of a mining company a man whose word carries more weight or whose official standing gives you a better guarantee of protection?

ket leader in point of activity, but the price fluctuated much less than usual. The stock touched 100¼, but closed at 99⅝, off ⅝. Union Pacific was only fairly active, with the majority of traders working on the bear side. The price finally lost 1⅛ to 132. Amalgamated was sold quite heavily, but was accorded enough support to prevent it losing more than ⅞ to 84½. American Smelting was a weak issue, losing 1⅜ to 114½, after touching 115⅜. Some of the selling of this issue was caused by a report from Denver that A. P. Heinze and associates are contemplating the formation of a company to compete directly with the American Smelting & Refining Company. Steel common was sold freely, but the price declined only a fraction of a point, the last sale being at 32⅝. Steel preferred lost ½ to 97. The common is still in active demand in the "loan crowd," as the result of previous short sales of this issue, but the special liquidation, which was said to come from Pittsburg, seemed to be suspended, if not completed. The floating supply of the stock is still small for such a large issue. London had sold down Canadian Pacific before the opening of the New York market, and the price of this stock lost one ... to 80½. At New York Brooklyn Rapid Transit was inclined to be weak although not active. The price lost 1⅛ to 49⅝. The market was heavy at the close, but the final prices were a little above the lowest for the day.

Hub Market Dull.

In Boston yesterday the stock market was dull, heavy and narrow, with about all of such price changes as occurred, showing losses. Calumet & Arizona, Shoe Machinery common and Wolverine were the weakest issues. The "coppers" were weak, and there was renewed talk of concessions to be made in copper metal prices by the producers and leading selling agencies. This possibility is believed to have been already discounted in the prices of the copper shares, however, and the declines of yesterday in the more yearly active issues were more the result of speculation on the "short" side than to a renewal of the old reports that the metal is to be lowered in price.

Calumet & Arizona lost 4 points to 152, Osceola gained 4½ to 129½. Shoe Machinery lost 2 to 58 and Wolverine 2 to 153. None of these stocks presented a semblance of activity, the losses being sustained on light transactions. Greene Canadea, which was fairly active comparatively, managed to gain a fraction to 14⅛. The American Pneumatic issues were at most at a standstill, pending some definite news from the annual meeting at Wilmington, Del. Arbitrage houses were free sellers of stocks generally, and throughout the list there was a tendency to sag under light selling pressure, and otherwise follow the course of the New York stocks.

MOULDERS ASK 25 CENTS RAISE

Holyoke, June 1.—The iron moulders in the employ of the Deane Steam Pump company have demanded $3 per day for moulders and $2.75 for core makers, an advance of twenty-five cents a day.

About 300 men are affected.

Finishers and machine men in the employ of the Crocker Division of the American Writing Paper Company stopped work to-day on account of the strike of the cutter girls.

The 150 bookbinders of the National Blank Book Company have declared a lockout because the company will not recognize the union. The men quit work earlier in the week on account of a reduction in the schedule for piece work.

The Lyman Mills Company has granted a voluntary increase of from 7 to 10 per cent, to 1400 operatives. The company today announced that it would build a three hundred thousand dollar addition to its plant, giving employment to 600 more.

HOLD MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Memorial services will be held by the Moses Mendelssohn Lodge, I. O. F. of L., at their cemetery in Dedham to-day at 3 p. m.

K. OF C. TO WELCOME CARDINAL GIBBONS

Worcester, June 1.—Alhambra Council, Knights of Columbus, will be principal escort to Cardinal Gibbons when the distinguished churchman visits Worcester, June 17, to be present at the commencement exercises at Holy Cross College the following day. The council will turn out in a body. It will be the first time that Cardinal Gibbons has ever visited the city.

The council committee on arrangements is Joseph P. Harney, Matthew R. H. McCann, Patrick F. Sullivan, John F. J. Herbert and James J. Reardon.

Members of the order in Webster, Southbridge, Whitinsville, Spencer and Westfield will participate in the fete. The Worcester Brass Band has been engaged.

All the French societies of the city are to unite in a general greeting to the Cardinal and before many days it is believed that every Catholic organization in the city will vote to participate in the monster parade planned in honor of the prelate.

MANY ATTEND RECITAL.

Colorado Springs, June 1.—Miss Viva Anderson gave a piano recital at Perkins Hall that was an event of much social interest. The inclement weather did not prevent a large audience from gathering, and the numbers on the program were generously applauded.

BIG SHIP STRIKE MENACE TO FRANCE

Paris, June 1.—Preparations made by the government to-day to care for mail to the United States indicate that the authorities contemplate a long struggle with the striking seamen. This is taken as a practical declaration by the government that it will not yield to the demands of the seamen for increase of pensions.

Fifteen bags of mail bound for the United States were to-day sent by the American liner St. Louis instead of the Provence of the French line, which was prevented from sailing owing to the strike. Now the government has arranged with the American line to carry the Saturday mails as long as the strike continues.

The strike of seamen may be complicated by a strike of dock hands and stevedores. This danger is said to threaten not only the French ports but English and German ports as well. Though the dock hands of every English, German and American line engaged in shipping between New York and European points are said to contemplate such action, officers of the big trans-atlantic companies declare they are not worried over this prospect, as they say they can easily fill the places of the dock hands.

ECUADOR SHAKEN BY AN EARTHQUAKE

Quito, Ecuador, June 1.—All Ecuador was shaken by an earthquake to-day. Several distinct shocks were felt here, one of which shook down several buildings and caused considerable damage. Only meagre reports have come from the interior telling of the shock being felt in various localities. It is believed, however, that heavy damage and considerable loss of life has been caused.

Residents of this city were thrown into a panic by the earthquake and there is a general dread lest the shocks will be repeated.

SIXTY HIBERNIAN LODGES TO ATTEND

The Hibernians of Suffolk county will attend the exemplification of the new ritual by the Randolph degree corps this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The initiation will be under the auspices of Division No. 50. The division of printers, which was recently instituted, has been invited to participate. The officers and members of the sixty divisions have been invited to attend. The meeting will be addressed by State President Rogers, County President Dillon and Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell. Street Commissioner James H. Doyle will preside after the regular meeting.

SUNBURST

Stock Advances from 15c to 50c a Share

Rich Ore from Mine Now Being Milled
Lead and Zinc a Safe and Enormously Profitable Investment

The directors of the Sunburst Mining Company have authorized an advance of the stock of the Sunburst Mining Company from 15 to 50 cents a share. A clean profit of over 300 per cent., buying at the present price of 15 cents. The allotment to be sold at this price is limited and will be given to those who send their orders first.

As soon as the present small block of stock is taken, the stock of the Sunburst Mining Company will positively be withdrawn from the market.

The mine is made. Dividends are the next thing to look for by fortunate investors in Sunburst stock.

The steadily advancing price of lead and zinc in the world's markets, and the sensational rich development encountered in opening up the Sunburst Mines, together with the milling of the last ore thrown on the dump, has created a tremendous demand for the stock.

We feel confident in predicting that Sunburst shares will go to par in less than 12 months' time.

120 Per Cent Dividends.

The Baxter Mining Co. is NOW paying dividends of 10 per cent. a month. It is a sister company, operating in the same camp, and under the direction of the same officers.

If you are desirous of permanently increasing your income, of making an investment that is not only secure, but immensely profitable, and finally of buying on a RISING MARKET—reserve shares TO-DAY.

The next advance is to 50 cents a share, and the entire issue is subject to withdrawal from the market without further notice.

Such an investment opportunity can hardly be repeated. It is made possible only by extraordinary natural conditions. Companies in this field are paying all the way from 25 to 120 per cent. to stockholders, millions of dollars of lead and zinc will be marketed from these mines—fortunes are being made now—and even greater ones will be reaped as a result of the prompt seizure of the opportunity offered by the mineral riches of Baxter Springs.

The Sunburst Mine is no longer a prospect but a Producing Property—and bids fair to rank with the great dividend paying enterprises of the Southwest. Buy on the advance, and see your holdings steadily grow more valuable, your dollars grow into a fortune.

A Business Proposition.

Sunburst stockholders are investors, not speculators. They are co-operating in a plain business proposition that should bring much larger returns than any other form of commercial enterprise. They know the property is proven. They know the supply is practically limitless and the demand forcing prices of lead and zinc upwards by leaps and bounds. They know that the Sunburst property is on an absolutely secure basis. They have the evidence of the actual milling of ore taken from the mine, and transformed into the commercial product. They have the expert and unbiassed statements of men such as Mr. Watson, president of a prosperous concern operating in this district.

So much public interest has been awakened in this property that the Kansas City Post, a great newspaper, sent a special correspondent to Baxter Springs to investigate. His report as published in the Post is too long to be reproduced here. But a copy will be sent on application. It is a clean cut, vividly written, thoroughgoing INDORSEMENT.

He interviewed such men as H. L. Rice of Baxter Springs, who said: "The Sunburst is mighty rich. I'd like to have it. It will make good money."

This article should be read in full. It gives a plain, commonsense review of the whole field.

Baxter Springs, Kas., May 23, 1907.

Gentlemen.—Last Monday I began the installation of the new machinery on the Sunburst property, the old machinery which was on the ground being inadequate for the rapid development of the mine. A new boiler was installed, steam drills put in, and, in fact everything done to insure the rapid and, at the same time, economic development you require of me.

The first drill was put to work in the east drift, which had been pushed about thirty feet from the shaft. The first shots put off resulted in the uncovering of some fine ore, which, together with other ore broken down, was hoisted to the surface and same is now being milled in the concentrating plant of the Nebraska Mining Company, same being not over one thousand feet from our No. 3 shaft. The ore certainly looks fine and I am sure you will be pleased with the yield.

In talking over the situation with Mr. Craney, it was decided to sink the shaft to a lower level. With this in view, shots were put in which opened up richer ore than any I have yet seen in the Sunburst mine, which is saying a great deal.

This discovery of a rich vein of ore lower down adds immensely to the value of your property.

Everyone who has seen the mine lately is impressed with its great richness.

At present I am working only a small force of men. Monday it will be doubled and more added from time to time as we have room.

I want to get the ground thoroughly opened up before the mill is built.

Just as soon as I have this development well in hand, I will make careful inspection of the other holdings of the Sunburst Company and make my report of same to you.

Will say that you have a mighty good proposition opening up now, and I will exert my every effort to make it a great winner for you.

Very respectfully,

W. A. WOOD,
Superintendent Sunburst Mine.

EVIDENCE FROM AN EXPERT.

Baxter Springs, Kas., May 24, 1907.

Kansas City, Mo.

Gentlemen.—In reply to your question as to my opinion of the Sunburst mines, I wish to say that I consider the future of the Sunburst property as one of the brightest of any mining company in the Southwest field.

The ore that we ran through our mill this week coming from the Sunburst mine is a surprise to me. While I knew that it would run very high in lead and zinc concentrates, I was hardly prepared for the results that were secured.

I was down in your mine the other day and found by examination that you have a large deposit below where you are working at the present time. Your foreman informs me that he is going deeper in order to get the full face to operate on.

Your plan of thoroughly opening up the ground before building a mill meets with my idea of how a mine should be developed. I believe you will have a great money maker.

Yours very truly,

J. W. WATSON,
Pres. and Gen. Mgr., Nebraska Mining & Development Co.

New Gold Camp
—OF—
NORTHERN ONTARIO.

The greatest stampede that was ever known to any gold mining camp is now on to Larder Lake, the new Eldorado of northern Ontario, Canada. Larder Lake lies 60 miles north of Cobalt. Mining experts and prospectors from all parts of the world are pouring in by the thousand, and all proclaim that it will be the greatest gold producing country the world has ever known. The ores are free milling and can be treated at very little expense. The Blue Bell Gold Mines, Ltd., own 28 claims of 40 acres each, making a total acreage of 1,120 acres on the shores of Larder Lake. These properties are all paid for in full and free from all debt or other encumbrances whatever. We have been to a big expense and have sent our own engineers to ascertain the merits of Blue Bell. We have certified assays (in our office) by a well-known firm of assayers showing as high as $42,754.76 to the ton. Stamp mills are being rushed in with as little delay as possible, and the directors hope to be shipping out gold within six months. Blue Bell is looked upon as the Tonopah of the Larder Lake district. Energetic and aggressive work is being pushed ahead by men of brains and ability. The directors are now offering 100,000 shares of treasury stock for development purposes at 50c per share (par value $1.00, fully paid and non-assessable). Subscriptions will be filled in the order they are received. We do not hesitate for one moment to state that we believe the Blue Bell shares will be worth five or six dollars per share within six months. We are in a position to know what we are talking about and we stake our reputation on the merits of Blue Bell. Invest your money in a company that has merit. One that will make you some money. Larder Lake will startle the world with its wonderful and enormous production. Blue Bell is in the very heart of the district. Look into this proposition. It may be the means of making you many thousands of dollars. Investigate the merits of Blue Bell, and send for particulars to-day. HAVERHILL GAS LOOT MORE THAN $240,000

Company Has for Over Seven Years Violated Order of the Gas Commissioners by Refusing to Cut Rate

Derelict State Officials Just Awoke to Fact That Law Has Been So Grossly Violated.

MALONE PROPOSES TO FIGHT IT OUT NOW TO THE FINISH

Immune From Prosecution by the Lobbyists Protection, the Trust Has Done As It Pleased.

A BIG STORY IN A NUTSHELL.

Since that date Haverhill has paid $1 for gas

The gas company, by keeping its price up in violation of the law, has robbed Haverhill of over $240,000.

This, divided among every man, woman and child in Haverhill, would give each about $6.50.

By Clement L. Pollock.

HAVERHILL, June 1.—Behind an action which the Attorney General of Massachusetts has just been forced to take against the Haverhill Gas Light Company to compel that corporation to furnish gas at eighty cents instead of $1, as it was ordered to do seven years ago, lies the story of a crime against this city that is unprecedented for brazen effrontery in the annals of New England history.

It is the story of the alleged theft of more than $240,000 from Haverhill citizens by the Gas Trust of this place through political machinations that are simply astounding, even in this day of graft revelation. Through it runs the zigzag trail of the paid lobbyist, and on it is the finger print of the black hand of the political "practical man."

It is not an infrequent occurrence for a thief to administer knockout drops that cause his victim to doze for a short time while his pockets are rifled. Here a mysterious mixture has been administered to a city of nearly 40,000 that has held it in a semi-comatose condition for more than seven years, during which time their purses have been picked with systematic impunity.

In answer to the demand of the citizens of Haverhill for their rights, as provided and declared under the laws of the Commonwealth, the Haverhill Gas Company has raised the cry of CONFISCATION!

This is the latest popular plaint of the vandal trusts when they have been halted in their criminal careers. "Confiscation" is a sort of fashionable appendicitis of the corporations!

The names of men of power in political and legislative circles weave in and out of this plain recital. First may be mentioned that of J. Otis Wardwell, as he is known and kow-towed to in this city. Under the gilded dome in Boston, where he has figured so prominently, he is generally referred to as

"JAKE WARDWELL, THE LOBBYIST."

Wardwell lives here in Haverhill. He is a member of the Republican State Committee and of the Executive Committee of that body. In this Grand Old Party stronghold "Jake" Wardwell is the real power behind the throne so far as Haverhill is concerned. Incidentally, "Jake" is the legislative agent of the Association of Massachusetts Gas Companies. The Haverhill company belongs to that. He is also the legislative agent of the Haverhill Electric Light Company. To those who have been familiar with the history of this adroit individual this information will afford a hint as to what follows.

A Chance and a Fortune.

Another more or less well-known personage enters the case from Haverhill. He is Samuel W. George, former Representative, Senator and Gas Commissioner. Although George was once a shoe worker at something like $15 a week, he is now credited with being worth at least $50,000. All this, of course, Mr. George may have made legitimately. The only way he figures in this story is in the chance he had to do something for the citizens of Haverhill—and didn't do it.

Then comes the consideration of Mayor Roswell L. Wood and the remarkable si[lence he has maintained] [illegible] proposition since he began [illegible] the destinies of this city. [illegible] influence that may be mentioned which are the local press, some Attorney General and some other Gas Commissioners.

The story starts in 1899. John [illegible] was then Mayor. In looking the situation over he came across the report of the Haverhill Gas Company of the year before. The company had a capital of $75,000. It had, Mr. Chace found, a dividend of $3,500. It had also divided a surplus of $30,000.

Gas was then $1 a thousand. In view of the fact that the company was making [illegible] profits, Mayor Chase [illegible] that [illegible] was [illegible] the city council passed an order favoring eighty cent gas, and in November [illegible] 1899, Mayor [illegible] sent a petition with the Gas Commissioners asking that that figure be fixed.

In Haverhill and before the Gas Commissioners in Boston, the question was fought out by the city and the gas company. Lawyer George W. Anderson of Boston represented Haverhill, and the price of making gas was gone into to the bottom. Anderson proved by expert evidence that gas did not cost the Haverhill company more than sixty-five cents, and that they would still make a profit of fifteen cents per thousand if they reduced the price to eighty cents. The company, however, claimed that it had cost them eighty-one cents to make gas, and that they were selling it too cheap at $1 a thousand.

After hearing all the evidence the Gas Commissioners, who at that time consisted of Forrest E. Barker, Morris Schaff and Charles H. Gifford, ordered that the Haverhill Company should furnish gas at eighty cents after February 1, 1900. Here is the notice that was sent to the company:

> Ordered, That the net price to be charged for gas sold and delivered by the Haverhill Gaslight Company, on and after the first day of February, 1900, shall not exceed eighty (80) cents per thousand cubic feet. R. G. TOBEY, Clerk.

It should be remembered from here right on to the end that the order of the Gas Commissioners is the order of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

When the people of Haverhill heard what the Gas Commissioners had done they felicitated themselves on having elected Mr. Chace mayor. The idea that they wouldn't get 80-cent gas never entered their minds.

Gas Company Gets Busy.

The Haverhill Gas Company got busy at once. It brought a suit in the Circuit Court asking that the action of the Gas Commissioners be declared null and void and that the Commissioners be restrained from taking steps to enforce their order. Hosea M. Knowlton was then attorney general of Massachusetts, and it was his business to see that the order of the Gas Commissioners was obeyed. He demurred to the bill brought by the Gas Company on technical grounds, and his demurrer was overruled by Judge Lowell.

Then Mr. Knowlton should have filed an answer to the claim of the Gas Company that its property was [illegible] [illegible] in the courts. But so far as anybody knows Knowlton never made a move in the case. He is dead now.

In the papers of the Gas Company which have been made out since the case was recently stirred up I find this remarkable statement:

"It is well understood by the complainant and others that Attorney General Knowlton had no confidence in the validity of the order of February 1, 1900, or in the merits of the d[efendant's] [illegible] [c]ity of Haverhill" and for that [illegible]

If this really explains the attitude of the former Attorney-General, it is a pretty wicked slam at the then Gas Commissioners and also at the law that clothes them with power. If the Attorney-General, WITHOUT TRYING THE CASE IN COURT, can decide that there is no merit in the decision of the commissioners, and call it null and void, what is the use of the commission?

[illegible] the Summer of 1900 [illegible] Haverhill had [illegible] of their [illegible] would have had [illegible] refused to pay [illegible] and many of the [illegible]. The latter found [illegible] pretty soon and [illegible] mayor. He [illegible] Park Flanders [illegible] and it is related that one [illegible] a big [illegible] of bills in front of [illegible] and was induced to stamp [illegible] approval and later he [illegible] were among them. He explained that he did it by mistake.

Still, the people wondered why they did not get [illegible] and the [illegible] in Boston about [illegible] petulant because [illegible] the gas [illegible] began to [illegible] that would not [illegible] but would remain [illegible] on the eighty cent gas proposition altogether.

Some Bay State Lobbying.

Right here I want to call the attention of the citizens of this State to the way lobbying is done according to twentieth century methods. Many people have got the idea that because the lobbyists do not swarm through the corridors of the State House that they have been driven out of business. That's a figment of the imagination.

The real lobbying for corporations now, in this and other States, is done at the primaries, at the conventions and at the polls. When the man is landed once in his chair in the House or the Senate, there is seldom any need to see him again. It may be necessary to prod his memory with a few highballs, or some such light attention, but he has been fixed long before on any measure inimical to the corporation that nominated and elected him.

With this in mind, and the further fact that Jake Wardwell, the Pooh Bah of the Republican party in this city, was interested in the [illegible] it is interesting to [illegible] the nomination and election of Roswell L. Wood as mayor.

Wood was [illegible]. He is now serving his [illegible] term, and if he has ever done anything [illegible] [illegible] the Gas [illegible]

[illegible] city, so far as the [illegible] question [illegible] Wardwell [illegible] that at tention to the Board of Gas Commissioners. They had practically been [illegible] out of office, so far as their real power was concerned, but the gas company could not tell when the worm might turn, and so Wardwell's protege, Sam George, was made a gas commissioner.

Governor Bates always explained, it is declared, that he made George gas commissioner on the recommendation among others of William H. [Moody], formerly attorney general of the United States and now associate justice of the Supreme Court. Mr. Moody and Mr. Wardwell at one time were in [illegible] at No. 84 State street, Boston.

George, after he got on the Board of Gas Commissioners, [illegible] vindicate the [illegible] that [illegible] do a thing [illegible] reduction of gas to [illegible] cents [illegible] and George [illegible] [illegible] commissioners [illegible] sat on and sat tight and silent.

In this city there is one man that the various corporations have not got in their grip. He is a lawyer and property owner. His name is Nathaniel C. Bartlett. He, with the others, kept wondering what had become of that eight-cent gas. Mr. Bartlett went to Boston one day and called at the Attorney General's office. [illegible] was [illegible] at the head of the legal department of the State. Mr. Bartlett told what happened.

Bartlett Wanted to Know.

"What about that 80-cent gas order?" he asked.

"Never heard of it," the visitor was told. [illegible] was by one of the clerks. Finally [illegible] going into a [illegible] of [illegible] some papers [illegible] had about half an inch of dust [illegible].

"[What] are you going to do about this?" Mr. Bartlett asked.

"Nothing," replied the attache of the office.

"[illegible] this thing has been ordered [illegible] we want the case [illegible] It is an outrage on our citizens."

"Why, we are for the defendant," replied the Attorney General's man, "and we never make any move when we are for the defendant."

That's all Mr. Bartlett got out of the Attorney General [illegible] Simply because the gas company [illegible] temporary [illegible] commissioners and the Attorney General, AND THE CAPTION OF THE CASE WAS HAVERHILL GAS COMPANY VERSUS THE GAS COMMISSIONERS and THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL, the office was absolved from taking action! That is the way it was explained to Mr. Bartlett. The Haverhill man came back home disgusted and with his mind filled with a lot of things that he let loose last Fall when he was a candidate for the nomination for Mayor against Mr. Wood. He was beaten.

Then Richard Kavanagh entered into the gas problem. Kavanagh is a bright young man, independent in his views and not afraid to speak out what he thinks. He is a hard worker. He lives in what is known as the Irish ward, the only Democratic ward in the city. He is a Republican. He was a candidate for the council last Fall, but as the Democratic plurality is from 150 to 200, not much attention was paid to him.

Kavanagh said on the stump and in circulars that if he were elected he would stir up the eighty cent gas matter. The gas people laughed. When the ballots were counted it was found that Kavanagh had won out by sixty votes. The other [illegible] candidate on the Democratic ticket in that ward was elected. And he is the only Democrat in the whole city government.

As soon as the council met Kavanagh proceeded to make good his promise. He introduced an order calling upon the Mayor to take some action on the eighty cent gas [illegible]. The Mayor, according to Kavanagh, [illegible] of the order and had it killed [illegible] Board of Aldermen.

But Kavanagh [illegible]. He and his [illegible] Alderman William H. [illegible] went to Boston. They saw Gas Commissioner [illegible]. They talked to Attorney General [illegible] Malone. [illegible] they returned to Haverhill [illegible] Kavanagh introduced another order [illegible] asked the Mayor and [illegible] make some move in the gas [illegible]. This went through because they [illegible] that Kavanagh wouldn't let up.

Breaks Seven-Year Silence.

Days passed and Kavanagh did not hear anything from Attorney General Malone. He wrote another letter. The Attorney General [illegible] proposed [illegible] going away. Then the Gas Commissioners [illegible] May 5 [illegible] a letter to the Haverhill Gas Company. It was signed R. G. Tobey, who wrote to them seven years and one month before, and told them [the] price of gas was eighty cents.

If there is any humorist connected with the Haverhill Gas Company he must have chuckled when he got this second communication from Clerk Tobey. It said in effect, "See here, didn't we tell you seven years ago that the price of gas had been cut to eighty cents? Now you better mind what we told you or maybe we'll get after you!"

Mr. Malone, on April 17 last, seven years and two months and a half after the Gas Commissioners had sent forth their mandate to the Haverhill Gas Company, filed a petition in the Supreme Judicial Court to compel the company to obey the order of February 1, 1900.

The company asked for another injunction against the present commissioners and the present Attorney General, and on May [illegible] Judge Colt issued it on the stipulation that the company would put up a bond [illegible] to refund to [illegible] of Haverhill for the extra gas bills they have been paying. This bond was furnished last Tuesday, and Mr. Malone will make his answer to the gas company to-morrow.

The people of Haverhill are in dense ignorance of the real situation of the case, however, because they only have one newspaper and it has been very [illegible] on the eighty cent gas proposition. The Haverhill Gazette, according to a worn legend, [illegible] [illegible] thing like 100 years old. It apparently doesn't care whether the citizens [illegible] get 80-cent gas or not. It is strictly looking after the interests of the Haverhill Gazette, and they do not lie in that direction, according to Haverhill residents.

Those who read the Gazette learned shortly after Judge Colt granted the temporary injunction about ten days ago, that he had issued the injunction halting the proceedings against the gas company after the case had been fought through all the courts.

That [illegible] as [illegible] somebody had been active in the interests of Haverhill citizens and that as long as it had "been fought through all the courts, there really wasn't much show for the poor eighty cent gas [illegible]."

As a matter of fact, the case was never tried in any court and the Gazette knew it when it handed out that corporation mixed dope for the purpose of lulling the Haverhill citizens back into the lethargic condition where they have been for so long. The only time the case was ever heard on its merits was at Haverhill and in Boston before the Gas Commissioners, and they decided unanimously against the gas company. [illegible] much for the tainted news of the aged Gazette.

Malone Has Lapse of Memory.

When I called at the Attorney General's office in reference to this case Mr. Malone was very courteous, and gave me access to all the papers.

"When I came into this office," said Mr. Malone, suavely, "I found this case on the books. I resolved to take it up and see it through. I propose to [fight] it out and have a decision one way or the other."

Mr. Malone apparently forgot that he had been in office one whole term and had started in on his second before he found the case on his books. He also neglected to mention the fact that Councilman Kavanagh of Haverhill had called on him about the matter, and afterwards wrote to him [illegible]. This lapse of memory on the part of the Attorney General [illegible] have been accidental!

That Mayor Wood of this city doesn't [like] young Kavanagh was emphasized a few days ago when the Mayor made a speech at the State House in Boston in connection with the schoolhouse scandal that is not bringing any credit to this city. The Mayor denounced Councilman Kavanagh as an undesirable citizen in many ways. He said that the Councilman was not fit to represent Haverhill, or words to that effect. And yet Kavanagh is the man who has started the gas fight going again after it lay dormant for so many years. No wonder the $1 gas Mayor doesn't like him!

Forrest E. Barker, who signed the decree for 80 cent gas seven years ago that [illegible]

"It seems that Attorney General Knowlton made some arrangement with the gas company about not going on with the case. I was [illegible] and I do not know what it was. The Haverhill Gas Company [illegible] made no improvements and there have been [illegible] against the service."

According to the report to the Gas Commissioners for the year 1906, the Haverhill Company delivered to public and private consumers 126,438,700 cubic feet of gas. At that rate per year since February 1, 1900, up to to-day, there were consumed here 1,138,987,000 cubic feet. The company, according to the order that was not [obeyed], [has] overcharged twenty cents per thousand [illegible] $242,706. That would give every man, woman and child in Haverhill, if it were so distributed, $6.50.

HAVERHILL'S G. O. P. BOSS.

J. Otis Wardwell, legislative agent of the Gas Trust, which has robbed his fellow townsfolk of over a quarter million in the last few years.

Affords Exceptional Opportunity for Workingmen to Secure His Own Home in Delightful Locality.

With the advent of several big land "booms" by real estate merchants, whose ever-ready cooperation to make Boston bigger, better and busier is unequalled by any other business fraternity, the wage-earner is groping through the opportunities offered in the suburban field for investment.

For the [illegible] man, the rent haunted [illegible] sober, serious [illegible] of the real estate [illegible]. He has devoted to [illegible] improvident advice of [illegible] "Don't worry [illegible] the cares of owning land, be care free and pay rent."

[illegible] convincing fact has been laid down to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN readers [by] Edward T. Harrington, the Nestor of Boston's real estate men, whose advice is [the result] of nearly two score years of practical experience. Its truth is so obviously [illegible] it is undeniable. It is [illegible] tiously [illegible] and keep within your means."

With practically all the desired means of rapid transit within easy access, Wellington affords exceptional opportunities. It is rapidly improving. Under [illegible] tracts of land are rapidly disappearing. Streets and snug houses are beautifying the country.

Wellington is located just beyond Woburn. It is a thin almost equal touch with three of the [greatest] centres of population in Massachusetts—Boston, Lowell and Lawrence [illegible] it with the [illegible] centres of industry.

Land valuations in Wellington are soaring upward with great bounds. It offers a fine field for judicious investment. It would pay to study into the features of its development.

Wage-Earners Cautious.

"If it were cheaper to pay rent than to own a [illegible] there would be no landlord. Landlords [illegible] philanthropists."

[illegible] with the deep-rooted [illegible] own home and to be [illegible] his window on velvet [illegible] his tots are romping. [illegible] He has read of bank failures, [illegible] of innumerable wild-oat [illegible] have swallowed the life [savings] of poor, gullible investors.

[illegible] hesitates. Vultures of [illegible] too many inviting [illegible] when the appointed [illegible] then he reasons out the [illegible] that has forever [illegible].

Real Estate Only Hope.

[illegible] his only hope. There are [illegible] real estate where all the [illegible] disappears into vapor. The [illegible] there. The only warning, the [illegible] on the wall, is, "Buy cau-

LEAVES TO-MORROW FOR MAINE OUTING

Friends of George Edward Davis, who is well known in Boston newspaper circles, surprised him with a number of valuable gifts last night. Mr. Davis departs to-morrow for an extended outing in the Maine woods.

BAY STATE SUNDAY STILL "LORD'S DAY"

Sunday will continue to be known in the laws of Massachusetts as the "Lord's Day."

It seems to have passed [illegible] that one [illegible] commendations [illegible] to the pre[illegible] stopping of the [illegible] day. But the [illegible] House of Representatives last week as the result of that committee's labors has now been substituted by the one drawn by Representative Frederick G. Katzmann of Hyde Park. Mr. Katzmann calls Sunday the "Lord's Day" and the session will be, at least a couple of days shorter by reason of his foresight.

The Katzmann Sunday bill, having had three legislative readings, will be [illegible] [illegible] considered by the Senate.

The Katzmann bill leaves the Sunday law just where it is now, but proposes additional exemptions, allowing the letting and use of motor vehicles, the sale of flowers until 11 o'clock, the digging of clams, furnishing music in hotels, the opening of libraries and museums where no admission fee is charged, and, up to 8 o'clock in the morning, the transportation of musical instruments, scenery and theatrical properties.

Drunkenness a Disease

ORRINE EFFECTS CURE OR MONEY REFUNDED

Orrine will cure the disease and the patient will not miss the drink. Steady nerves, refreshing sleep and a healthy appetite follow its use.

Mothers, wives and sisters can give Orrine without the patient's knowledge. It is perfectly tasteless, colorless and odorless. Orrine No. 1 is to be given secretly, while Orrine No. 2, in pill form, is for those desiring to take the remedy. Either form costs but $1 per box, with an absolute guarantee that the expense will be nothing unless a cure is effected. Mail orders filled on receipt of price. Write to the Orrine Co., 1109 Fifteenth st., Washington, D. C., for a free treatise on drunkenness. Mailed in plain sealed envelope.

THE GUARANTEE

ORRINE is sold under a positive guarantee that it will cure the drink habit or your money will be refunded. No other treatment for the liquor habit is sold with such a liberal guarantee.

THE NEW AMERICAN PLAN TO GET A FINE PIANO

The New American Plan enables you to easily get any of the following standard makes at prices away below anything ever before quoted, and on the safest and most liberal terms ever given readers of this paper.

Henry F. Miller, Merrill, Hallet & Davis, Vose & Sons, J. & C. Fischer, Sohmer, Ivers & Pond, Steinway, Kranich & Bach, Gilbert, Gabler, Chickering, Knabe

THE NEW AMERICAN PLAN, which is now presented to the readers of this paper, contains all the pleasing features of the other American plan and some improvements, the most important of which is a greater selection of the well-known makes of pianos. By special arrangements we have secured many of the best known makes, and through the co-operation of well-known makers whom we have induced to participate in our plan we are enabled to present a perfect co-operative plan to the readers of this paper.

COLD PIANO FACTS

We don't make any pianos. We don't advertise any special pianos. We have nothing special to say about any piano in particular. The Piano Trust is fighting us and we are fighting the Piano Trust tooth and nail. We ask no mercy—we expect none—and we give none. Trust pianos are fine, in fact some of the finest pianos in the world are in the Trust, and we sell these same pianos every week at Trust-fighting prices—Lower, away lower by many dollars than you can buy them any place in this wide world. We lose money they say. Well, that's our business. What do you care? You buy while the fight is on: never mind our losses. We'll take care of ourselves. Come this week and see the fight.

SCIENTISTS TELL US

THE TWO SIDES of the face are never exactly alike. In two out of every five people the eyes are out of line; in seven persons out of ten one eye is stronger than the other, and in nine cases out of ten the right ear is generally higher than the left. Because your right ear is so high is no excuse for your being flat-chested, thin, scrawny, with no hips and no bosom. We make you full, firm, plump, voluptuous and charming with Dr. Conway's Bustoids or forfeit $1,000. We enlarge your breasts 4 to 10 inches by legal contract; you may do it quietly at home with this Great Vitalizer and Bust Stimulant. Dr. Conway's Bustoids are scientific, safe, natural and sure. You get FREE PROOFS and INSTRUCTIONS at the office. Sealed facts 4c stamps. Smart women will investigate. CONWAY SPECIFIC CO., 164 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

OUTCLASSED TROTTER.

$85 WILL BUY a handsome Kentucky bred, fast trotting family and road mare, 15.3 hands high, weighs 1,500 lbs., color bay, age 8 years; one of the finest gaited mares that ever stepped over a speedway; natural roadster of 10 miles per hour; absolutely fearless of all road sights; safe for a lady to harness or drive; come quick and see this snap; 30 trials allowed. 120 Dover street.

$150 BUYS GOLDIE.

THIS is the handsomest horse in Boston, golden chestnut in color, silver mane and tail, weighs 1,000 lbs.; 6 years old, has the conformation, style and action necessary for a high-class horse, is thoroughly broken, well mannered, accustomed to all city sights, is a pure-gaited, level-headed trotter; this horse was trained 6 weeks last season and showed miles in 2:20, is a free, easy roadster of 10 miles an hour, has a velvet mouth, and can be driven with perfect safety by lady or most timid person; would be cheap at $250 to anyone wanting a safe, reliable horse. 120 Dover st.

$250 BUYS PAIR DAPPLE

GRAY CHUNKS, 6 and 7 years old, 2,800 lbs., true to work, single or double. 120 Dover st.

$150 BUYS MARE IN FOAL,

WEIGHS 1,200 lbs., 7 years old, sound, true to work, worth $250. 120 Dover st.

AFRAID OF ELEVATED.

$75 BUYS bay horse, age 7, stands 15.3¾ hands high, wt. 1,075 lbs., beautiful conformation, very breedy looking, goes on the trot, wears no boots, drives with open or closed bridle, does not pull or tug on the bit; has as good feet and legs as any horse living, not having even a speed puff; this horse cost $350 a short time ago; was left standing under the elevated and ran away, and owner will not drive him again, but we will warrant him perfectly safe in every way, away from the elevated; this fellow would be a great horse to take to the country. 120 Dover st.; tel., 21935 Tremont.

$150 BUYS FARM TEAM.

At 32 Cambridge St., Charlestown

Allie Wilkes, Pacer, $80, Wt. 1,075

CHESTNUT, age 7, can pace half in 1.05 and outbrush any man's horse to the road; sound and fearless, wears only pacing quarter boots; trial given. 32 Cambridge st., Charlestown.

$100 BUYS PAIR OF

CHEAP HORSES and worth $250; they are every way clever and true to work, but a trifle pavement sore. 32 Cambridge st., Charlestown.

$150 BUYS DOCTOR'S OUTFIT

CONSISTING of brown mare, 7 years old, weighs 1,075 lbs., natural roadster of 10 miles an hour, can step a mile in 2:40 to a wagon, is a strongly built, compactly made horse, has perfect feet and legs, is fat and handsome, very stylish in harness, accustomed to all kinds of cars and autos, stands anywhere without hitching or weight; also a r.-t. runabout buggy, nearly new, elegant Swiss breast-plate harness, with English bit, double russet reins, whips, robes, street and stable blankets; this team has been used by a prominent business man who can be referred to; this team originally cost $375 and is being sold at this low price, as the owner has purchased an automobile. 32 Cambridge st., Sullivan sq.

$40 BUYS BROWN HORSE

$125 BUYS BAY CHUNK.

WEIGHS 1,200, age 7, as good a worker and driver as lives, would make a fine express horse, fully warranted and trial allowed. 32 Cambridge st., Charlestown, Sullivan sq.

FAST PACER,

$125—SADIE REX.

SADIE is a blood bay mare, weighs 975, is as sound as a new mint dollar, with a long, flowing tail and mane, is perfectly safe for a lady to harness or drive, will road 10 miles an hour on her courage all the time, and does not pull or lug on the bit a might; she can step a half-mile over any speedway or track in 1.06; show purchaser she is as handsome a mare as stands in this city, and is a bargain for anyone in search of a good mare. Can be seen at 32 Cambridge st., Charlestown.

PRINCE GEORGE,

GENTLEMAN'S ROAD HORSE.

$175 Buys him; he is 6 years of age, is perfectly sound in every way and fearless, stands 15.3 hands high, is a rich seal brown in color, has great style and action and is made up about as good as any you have seen in a long time; he can road 10 or 12 miles an hour as desired and step a 2.30 clip to any man that calls to see him; if you don't find him as advertised I will pay your expenses for calling, no matter how much. I will allow 30 days' trial to any responsible parties without paying one dollar. 32 Cambridge st., Charlestown. P. S., he cost the present owner $350.00. He has purchased an auto, reason for selling.

$45.00—SADDLE AND POLO PONY,

COLOR bay, weighs 650 lbs. and is a dandy; call and see him if you want a bargain. 32 Cambridge st., Charlestown.

$25.00 BUYS BAY

COB, little sprung forward, but sound every other way; is a fine driver, work or saddle horse; weighs 900 lbs. 32 Cambridge st., Charlestown.

$45.00 BUYS LITTLE FRED,

FAST brush horse; is a little thin from over-driving; worth $100.00; can step a quarter in 33 seconds, and is a fine roader; is safe and fearless. 32 Cambridge st., Charlestown.

$85.00 BUYS MARE IN FOAL.

HANDSOME BAY MARE for family speed or business use; is 7 years of age and sound in every way and fearless; weighs about 1,100 lbs.; this is a great opportunity for any one that wants to raise a good colt, as the sire is one of the best in this State. 32 Cambridge st., Charlestown.

$125.00 BUYS PAIR OF BAYS.

BEEN USED in express wagon, they weigh about 2,400 lbs. and as good a team as any poor man would want to use. 32 Cambridge st., Charlestown.

$65.00 BUYS EXPRESS HORSE,

GOOD WORKER and fine roader, weighs 1,150 lbs., age 9 years, cost $150.00 less than a year ago. Left at 32 Cambridge st., Charlestown.

$55.00—AFRAID OF ELEVATED TRAINS.

BAY HORSE, weighs 1,150 lbs., age 8 years and sound, but owner has to use him under the elevated and he won't stand, he ran away; would make a good horse in the country, as he is fearless of steam and electric cars and autos. Left at 32 Cambridge st., Charlestown.

Also 25 Cheap Horses and Mares

RANGING in weight from 1,000 to 1,300 lbs., were bought green last Spring; they are all in good working condition and are not old, wornout plugs, but good, young, sound horses, and must be sold at once to stop the expense; be sure and call here before buying elsewhere; our motto is justice to owners and protection to buyers, and we have been doing business at the same place for over 8 years and intend to stay here 8 more; don't forget the place, 32 Cambridge st., Charlestown; tel.; take elevated to Sullivan sq., walk through the park; stable directly opposite; a trial given with every horse, and we will split any pair.

HONEST WHISKEY
IN HONEST BOTTLES
AT HONEST PRICES

131 Whiskeys bottled by us are Straight Two-Stamp Whiskeys, and up in Full Quart (32 oz.) Bottles only. A very large percentage of the Blended Whiskeys we handle are put up in short quarts (a fact unknown to the public). Consequently when you pay 50 cents for the ordinary size bottle of Whiskey (1-5 of a gallon) you get at the rate of one dollar per quart, as there is exactly 25 per cent. more in a full quart than in the so called "Pint."

In accordance with the latest ruling of the Attorney-General straight Whiskey must be labelled "straight Whiskey," and straight Whiskeys must be labelled "Blended Whiskey." Many of our straight Whiskeys are of such merit and excellence that we have refused to allow them to be labelled "Imitation Whiskey must be labelled as such," etc. All Whiskeys advertised by us are Straight and sold exactly as received from the United States bonded warehouse.

FILLEBROWN SHOWS HOW TAX IS AVOIDED

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Mr. Henry B. Blackwell takes exception to my suggestion that Mayor Fitzgerald should levy his proposed new "street" tax of $500,000 at a rate of "less than 70 cents per thousand upon the present $635,000,000 land value of Boston, which now practically bears no tax burden at all," and states, no doubt truly, that "there is no untaxed land in Boston."

I had no intention of asserting that there was any untaxed land in Boston, but that the tax upon Boston land was not a tax upon the owner's net investment of $635,000,000, and hence not a burden upon the owners themselves.

Land Has Two Values.

In further explanation land may be said to have two values, one value to the user and another value to the owner, and the difference between the two is accounted for by the tax. Land is valuable to the owner because (speculation aside) it gives him command of a net rent thereon upon his investment, and the particular value is fixed by the amount of that net income. In other words, the value, to the owner, of a given lot of land is greater or less in proportion as the tax is large or small.

A tax upon land operates to reduce, by the amount of that tax, the landowner's income from the ground rent received from his tenant to the net rent, an income that is free of tax. If Boston land were untaxed it would be worth, in round numbers, to the owners, as it now is to the users, $858,000,000, and would be worth to them this amount just as well as it is now worth $635,000,000. The fact is that, 5 per cent. on this difference of $223,000,000 is absorbed in paying the present land tax of $10,000,000, leaving to the landlords a net income of 5 per cent. on $635,000,000, which therefore represents the value of their investment.

Five Per Cent. Left to Landlords.

The 5 per cent. income from the $635,000,000 is what is left to them out of the gross rent after all taxes have been paid. Five per cent. on $202,000,000 of the $838,000,000 "value to the user" suffices to pay these taxes, and neither the landlords nor their investment of $635,000,000 nor their income thereon bear practically any burden of taxation.

A man who pays taxes on unimproved land does so because he believes that a future user will reimburse him for his outlay.

C. B. FILLEBROWN.

ST. PETER'S CHURCH ARRANGES PARTY

An excellent programme has been arranged for the annual grand out-door festival of St. Peter's Catholic Church, Cambridge, to be held on the rectory grounds Saturday, June 8.

The programme will include dancing, afternoon and evening, on a large platform erected for the purpose, dancing for the elder people on a smaller platform, and a vaudeville show in the evening.

The children will not be forgotten by the committee on arrangements, as the flying horses, African dodger, cane board, fish ponds, pony carts and swings will be on hand.

The refreshments booths will be in charge of ladies from various sections of the parish.

BOSTON YOUTH WHO REFUSED CAREER ON STAGE FOR CHURCH

RICHARD STEPHEN BURKE

MARJORIE GOULD ILL OF PNEUMONIA

London, June 1.—Summoned from Lyons, whither he had gone on an automobile trip with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Gould, Jay Gould arrived here on the way to Southampton, where his sister, Miss Marjorie, is ill on board her father's yacht Atalanta. Miss Gould was on the yacht with two of the younger Gould children when she was stricken with pneumonia. Her parents are also expected.

INVITED BY KAISER TO INSTRUCT SON

Berlin, June 1.—Professor John W. Burgess of Columbia University has been invited by the Kaiser to return to Germany this Summer and deliver a course of lectures on the American political system and constitutional law at the University of Berlin, where Prince August Wilhelm is now a student.

REJECTED STAGE FOR PRIESTHOOD

HAS WONDERFUL VOICE

When Cardinal Gibbons hands the sheepskin to Richard Stephen Burke at the Catholic University in Washington, D. C., next Wednesday, he will confer a degree upon a Boston boy who could have become a grand opera singer instead of a priest.

Richard Burke is a splendid baritone, and four years ago Henry W. Savage made him a tempting offer to join his grand opera company. But Burke had set his heart upon becoming a priest and a stage career held no glamour for him. He was always of a religious turn of mind and a deep student. All of his time, however, was not spent with his books. He loved music, learned to play the piano skilfully and took voice culture with the best teachers.

Henry Savage heard of his voice and sent for him. No sooner had he listened to the singing than he made the young man an offer by which one might have won fame behind the footlights. But Burke had not yet reached that stage in life he was meant for him.

Richard Burke is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Burke of Mayfield street, Dorchester. He is now twenty-four and is finishing at the Catholic University this year. Next year he will go to Rome, where in four years he will become a priest. He went to the Edward Everett Hale school and then to Boston College. Next he took a special course at Harvard for two years and then went to Washington.

Through his being a young man's political study while in Washington with psychology and philosophy at minor graduate psychology and philosophy at minor graduate degrees. He has won highest honors in philosophy this year and will receive Ph. D. "Summa cum laude" was given him for his thesis on "The Theory of Comparison in Psychology."

Anna Burke, a sister, is also a student, having two years ago graduated from Trinity College in Washington for the higher education of women.

DEMOCRATS DEMAND SUFFRAGE OF CZAR

St. Petersburg, June 1.—Conditions upon which the Constitutional-Democrats will support the Government were submitted to the Czar to-day by Speaker Golovin, accompanying his report of the Duma's work. The Democrats agree to pass the budget and several ministerial bills if the Government will agree to universal suffrage, the suspension of martial law and other extraordinary laws.

Golovin's success is doubtful. The Government and the Duma are distrustful of each other utterly. Besides, the Government does not feel certain that the Duma could control a majority to back up their agreement. This is the first attempt at direct negotiations between the Czar and Constitutional Democrats.

POPE ALLAYS GOUT BY VEGETARIANISM

London, June 1.—According to a news agency's dispatch from Rome, the Pope adopted vegetarianism in January, hoping to defeat his perpetual enemy, the gout. He has not suffered since. The Pope's health condition entirely to his diet.

London, June 1.—In the House of Commons the bill for the establishment of a Court of Appeal in criminal cases has been passed to its second reading without a division.

LOVED HER AS MISS OF 8; PASTOR TO WED

Announcement of Betrothal Tells Pretty Romance of North Woburn.

NOW WELLESLEY SENIOR

"The engagement is announced of Miss Avis Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hill of North Woburn, to Theodore F. Berle of New York, formerly pastor of the North Congregational Church of Woburn."

To those who know, a pretty little romance can be read between the lines of this simple paragraph which appeared last week in a local paper of Woburn.

Avis Hill, a tall and dark, gem with rare Southern coloring and grace of manner, is known in Woburn as one of the brightest and prettiest girls. She will be graduated from Wellesley College this month and the first of July she is to be married to Mr. Berle of New York at her beautiful home on Main street in North Woburn. All the town is interested in these two most important events of the girl's life.

They Met, and She Was Eight.

W. W. Hill, father of Avis Hill, is a well-known business man of Boston, being prominent in the insurance world with a large office on Milk street. Miss Avis is an only child. When about fourteen years and the young pastor of the Congregational Church took a fancy to her, she promptly asked him to call at her home. Miss Hill was then the dignified age of eight.

The young minister often went home with her from Sunday school. He told her Bible stories, wonderful tales of the East, and she always listened with great interest. For nearly five years he visited her parents in their home. He frequently talked the insurance business over with Mr. Hill, and finally concluded that his vocation was a business life instead of the ministry. He had come to know the ins and outs of the insurance business, and secured a position with an insurance company in New York.

Graduates This Month.

When Mr. Berle left North Woburn Avis was just finishing grammar school. He and the little school girl were great friends, and in the Summer vacations he sometimes visited the Hill family. Then she went to the Woburn High School and was graduated in 1904. Later she entered Wellesley.

Mr. Berle and his young bride will make their home in New York.

MACHINISTS DELAY FITCHBURG STRIKE

Fitchburg, June 1.—Rumors were circulated all day that the 328 members of Rollstone Lodge, machinists, would go on strike at noon, the time decided upon Thursday, but no strike was declared. It is not probable one will be before Tuesday. The demands of the union are a nine-hour day and Saturday half holiday, with minimum rate for toolmakers forty cents an hour and wages of machinists and handymen increased five cents per hour, with arbitration of future troubles. Nearly fifty machine shops are against these demands.

HAYWOOD ILL AND TRIAL IS DELAYED

Both Sides Expect Jury at Boise to Be Completed Quickly, However.

Boise, Idaho, June 1.—William D. Haywood, accused of complicity in the Governor Steunenberg murder, was seized with a severe attack of neuralgia in the head today, and although Drs. Pallister and Edwis worked hard to get him in physical shape to be present in court it was found impossible, and court ordered a recess until 1 o'clock.

There were but two men remaining to qualify for the jury, one to fill the seat of Twoyerlette, who disqualified himself, and one to fill the seat of a man to be removed by the last peremptory challenge of the defense.

It is declared by counsel on both sides that the jury will be promptly filled and the trial begun in earnest early next week.

Very Dangerous

Some People Virtually Dynamite the Bowels.

We have the utmost pity and sympathy for those misguided creatures who virtually "dynamite" their bowels in the desperate effort to relieve or cure constipation. One of the most intractable forms of constipation is that caused by taking violent purgative pills, tablets or other strong cathartics, instead of using a gentle, soothing, but always effective, medicine. If you are really sick, why, of course, take the proper medicines—plain, common vegetable treatment, which will not shatter the nerves or ruin the stomach.

When requested for such a prescription for the cure of indigestion and stomach trouble, a noted authority said: "You must make the stomach do its work; and, most of all, you must keep acids from forming in the stomach. This is the cause of stomach troubles and poor digestion. For these conditions I would suggest the following prescription, which is composed of only vegetable ingredients, which can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy. Any one can mix them by shaking well in a bottle. Tincture Cinchona Compound, two and one-half ounces; Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, one ounce, and Kastor Compound, one ounce. To be taken in teaspoonful doses after each meal, repeat in half-hour if necessary. This valuable information and simple prescription should be posted up in each household and used at the first sign of an attack of indigestion."

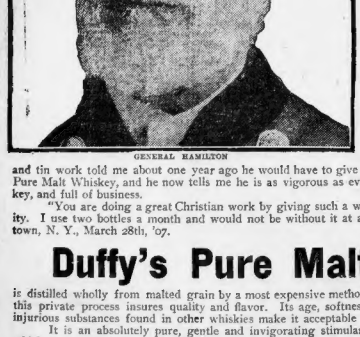
"Great Christian Work"



GENERAL HAMILTON

Says Gen. Alexander Hamilton, namesake and descendant of the great American patriot and signer of the Declaration of Independence, who was cured of Chronic Catarrh and serious complications from wounds received in the Civil War by taking Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and says that giving suffering humanity such a wonderful medicine is a great Christian work.

"For many years I suffered from Chronic Catarrh and serious complications as a result of wounds received in the Civil War. After trying almost every remedy without results, I began four years ago to use Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. I am in my ninety-second year, feel strong and vigorous, possess all my faculties and my catarrh has entirely disappeared. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the greatest cure in the world for a broken down system.

"It has revived many of my friends who were seriously ill. I have induced many neighbors and parties throughout the country, even to the West Indian Islands, to use Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and all join in singing the praise of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for the benefit they have derived from it.

"One leading mechanic in plumbing and tin work told me about one year ago he would have to give up business. I urged him to use Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and he now tells me he is as vigorous as ever from using Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, and full of business.

"You are doing a great Christian work by giving such a wonderful medicine to suffering humanity. I use two bottles a month and would not be without it at any cost."—Alexander Hamilton, Tarrytown, N. Y., March 28th, '07.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is distilled wholly from malted grain by a most expensive method which has never been made public and this private process insures quality and flavor. Its age, softness, palatability and freedom from those injurious substances found in other whiskies make it acceptable to the most sensitive stomach.

It is an absolutely pure, gentle and invigorating stimulant and tonic. It acts as an antitoxin which destroys and drives out all disease germs, creates new nerve tissues, tones and strengthens the heart, gives power to the brain and elasticity to the muscles, enriches the blood and soothes and heals the mucous membranes. It brings into action all the vital forces. It makes digestion perfect, and enables you to get from the food you eat the nourishment it contains. It is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It strengthens the system, is a promoter of health and longevity, makes the old young and keeps the young strong. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is a form of food already digested, and is recognized as a medicine everywhere.

Caution—Sold by all druggists, grocers and dealers, or direct, in sealed bottles only; never in bulk. Price $1. Insist on the genuine and see that the "Old Chemist" trade-mark is on the label and that the seal over the cork is unbroken. Beware of refilled bottles and spurious malt whiskey substitutes offered for sale by unreliable dealers. They are positively harmful and will not cure. Illustrated medical booklet and doctor's advice free. Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.
